17,000,000 New Babies. Mussolini Orders Them. Bad Immigration Laws. Spending Big Money.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

MIAMI, Fla., March 28.

MUSSOLINI, constructive dictator, tells mothers and fathers of Italy, also young men and women not yet married, that he wants Italy's population increased in the next ten years by SEVENTEEN MILLIONS.

In other words, a country much smaller than California, far behind California in fertility and wealth of every kind, already possessing nearly ten times the population of California, proposes to add in ten years four times California's population to what Italy has already.

AS USUAL, Italy co-operated with Mussolini in his plans. They have come to believe that what he says ought to be done.

Some Italian cities offer cash rewards for marriages, others for babies. Houses, cribs, bedding, sums in cash, many inducements attract "the first ten brides and grooms, the first fifty babies, etc."

WISE MUSSOLINI knows that the real wealth of the world is INTELLIGENT POPULATION, and that he will find room and useful work for the seventeen million new Italians when they come.

The most energetic will go to Italy's possessions in Africa, and elsewhere outside Italy. Others will cultivate new lands that Mussolini has added to limited Italian territory by draining marshes. All the additional seventeen million Italians will be made useful as rapidly as Mussolini gets them.

THIS COUNTRY'S foolish immigration laws, as you will notice, have NOT prevented this panic, and we might learn something from Mussolini.

How can you meet the problem of OVER PRODUCTION except with INCREASED CONSUMPTION?

Farmers in the United States have helped to keep out immigration, the kind that this country needs, that has made it what it is.

What are those farmers, union laborers, white collar men, and the others that have fought against more immigration? Are not they the children, grandchildren or great-grandchildren of immigrants?

UNION LABOR says if you allow more immigration and increase population wages will decrease. Why? When there were only four million people in the United States, there was only one man in the country, a New England carpenter, able to earn as much as $1 a day all the year 'round. Conditions are not as bad as that even now, and we have 123,000,000 people here.

Other countries shut out our products, but we have room here and could immediately feed and provide with everything they need TWO HUNDRED AND FIFTY MILLION MORE PEOPLE.

IF MUSSOLINI could send us seventeen millions of his good Italians that know how to work and are willing to work ON THE SOIL, they would add billions a year to the wealth of this country and consume wheat that our farmers cannot sell.

They would utilize the fertile lands of Florida, California and the Gulf Coast now wasted. They would be a blessing to the United States and do more than all our talking and technocracy nonsense to make this country prosperous.

What is true of Italians is true of the other hard-working races, if we can get them. We need fifty million more Irishmen, Scotchmen, Englishmen, Germans, Australians, Russians, all of the racial strains that, combined, have produced the EFFICIENT AMERICAN.

A TRAIN coming from the North to this city yesterday passed through thousands of acres of fertile UNUSED land. Here and there, north and south of the Florida border, were traces of fires; here and there miserable huts, in each of them a Negro family, with a mule and a small plow, trying to make a living from low-priced cotton.

You saw thousands of acres of mutilated pine trees, a gash in each tree, securing a few ounces of turpentine.

On those lands that lie idle, and will remain idle under our present immigration laws for five hundred years to come, would it not be better to have happy working families, adding to the country's wealth, consuming at fair prices the American wheat, automobiles, cotton, sewing machines and other products?

We have many kinds of stupidity in the United States, and the most harmful is forbidding intelligent ambitious men and women to come here from Europe, as our ancestors came.

Talk that idea to your farmer, union labor or white collar friend.

WASTEFULNESS is our American specialty. F. B. Shutts, who owns the Miami Herald, is excited on the front page today, because one of his writers, Kenneth Ballinger, discovers that when the state was building $23,000,000 worth of good roads in a year it had for its office force just half as many people and spent on them half as much money as now, when road building has fallen off two-thirds.

In other words, Florida hires twice as many men and pays twice as much money to get one-third as much work done.

Mr. Shutts' indignation will cool when he considers how patriots spent money for the United States in the big war.

AMERICAN CITIZENS now paying in taxes for that war, glance over the figures that Mr. P. Swan Harding has extracted from the government reports for the March "forum."

Consider "shoes." During the period of the war our govern-

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(INS.)—Legislation to control the manufacture and sale of beer, drafted by the state administration as a coalition proposal, was introduced in the House today with Representative James H. McClure Allegheny, as the sponsor. A fight on the proposal is anticipated.

The legislation consisted of two bills, one for the imposition of license fees and taxes, and the other controlling the sale of the beverages.

One of the features is the delegation of local authority to restrict sale of beer for consumption on the premises. Cities and towns by ordinance could prohibit business places from dispensing beer intended for drinking in public.

SALOON BANNED

Lindy Threat Writer To Face Grand Jury

MIAMI, Fla., March 28.—(AP.)—Assistant U. S. District Attorney Emory Akerman today said a grand jury which will assemble here April 10 will consider the case of Gilford Clobridge, 38, charged with writing a letter demanding $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and mailing a pint of liquor to Federal Judge Halsted L. Ritter.

Clobridge, who lost a leg in the war service, said he was trying to get revenge against his estranged wife, and sister-in-law, whose return addresses appeared on the letter and package.

Gambling Casino Raided in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, March 28.—(INS.)—Raiding the Hollywood gambling casino which is reputed to enjoy the patronage of many Hollywood celebrities, deputy sheriffs early today arrested six men and confiscated several gaming devices.

The patrons, including many men and women in evening attire, were not molested.

Boy Blackmailer's Target

ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH . . . TWO DEMANDS MAILED HER

Mrs. Lindbergh, spared the necessity of reading two more extortion notes through the vigilance of postoffice inspectors who intercepted them and arrested a 15-year-old schoolboy at Akron, O.

LINDY THREAT JAILS BOY

AKRON, O., March 28.—(AP.)—A 15-year-old boy accused of attempting to blackmail Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg for $25,000 was held in jail today while officials debated what to do with him.

Postal Inspector Ernest D. Claggett said the lad, Priveno "Peanuts" Marcella, son of a filling station operator near here, probably would be turned over to juvenile authorities.

The boy, Postoffice Inspector Ernest D. Claggett said, readily admitted mailing two letters to the famous aviator's wife but said:

"I don't know what I would have done with the money if I had got it. My father will kill me, though, when he hears of this."

One of the letters was mailed February 27. It was seized by postoffice inspectors here. The second, dated March 14, was intercepted by Washington postal authorities. Neither was seen by Mrs. Lindbergh. The second message said:

"We are watching you. Your lives are in danger. There are 30 in our gang. Send the money by parcel post to 'Dad,' care of Bluebird Inn, Route 8, Hudson."

15 Perish In Plane Crash

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 28.—(AP.)—Fifteen persons were killed today in the wreck of an Imperial Airways passenger liner near Essen.

Eleven of the victims were English.

The plane, bound from Cologne to Croydon, England, by way of Brussels, was the trimotored City of Liverpool.

The burned bodies of the pilot, mechanic and four passengers, one of them a woman, were recovered from the wreckage.

Persons who saw the ship fall said it burst into flames and dropped like a spent rocket. It fell in a field.

The bodies of four of the dead were found at some distance from the plane. Apparently they had jumped.

Rooney, Improved, To Be Moved Here

BEDFORD, Pa., March 28.—(AP.)—Hospital attaches said today that James P. Rooney, former University of Pittsburgh football star, will be removed Friday to Mercy Hospital in Pittsburgh. The condition of the former State Assemblyman was described as "fair," which was an improvement over his condition yesterday.

Rooney was injured March 22 in an automobile crash in which Albert (Irish) Kane, Pittsburgh manager of prize fighters, was fatally hurt. Kane died yesterday.

Troop Call Threat Disperses Farmers

ELKHORN, Ia., March 28.—(AP.)—Threats of Sheriff George Jensen, of Harlan, to ask for troops today dispersed 700 farmers who gathered to protest eviction of Chris Lange from his foreclosed farm.

KLINE SAYS FAREWELL TO AIDES

Herron Prepares to Take Office; Legal Hitch Brings Delay

Mayor Charles H. Kline today said goodbye to his departmental cabinet on the eve of his resignation.

Behind closed doors and in a session that was much shorter than routine cabinet meetings, the Mayor took formal leave of his department heads.

As they left the executive chambers, the members of the Kline official family were quiet and downcast. Only one, Public Works Director Edward G. Lang, would talk to reporters.

Asked if Kline had said goodbye, he answered:

"Yes."

As Kline was saying farewell, John S. Herron, who, 25 years ago, was a bricklayer, prepared to become Pittsburgh's mayor.

RESIGNATION READY

Mr. Herron, now president of Council, leaves that seat to succeed Kline, whose resignation will be presented to Council by Attorney Edward G Coll.

Indications were that the Mayor's resignation would not be formally presented to Council before Friday. Coll planned to send the resignation, dated March 25, to City Clerk Robert Clark late today.

Clark will send out notices for a special meeting, which likely will be held Friday. Rules of Council require 48 hours' notice for special sessions.

City Solicitor C. A. Waldschmidt held that the resignation, under the charter, could not be submitted to Council, sitting in committee session, today.

With the abdication of Mayor Kline, who resigns after the six-months jail term against him was

G. O. P. BEATEN ON PENSION BILL

HARRISBURG, March 28.—In a revolutionary overturning of the Republican state leadership and the Grundy element in the Legislature, the House today by a vote of 129 to 63 took from the Committee on Constitutional Amendments two bills authorizing a vote next November on an old age pension amendment to the Constitution.

A coalition of Philadelphia and Pinchot Republicans and Democrats forced the hand of the committee after a bitter debate, during which it was charged by Representative Clinton A. Sowers, Philadelphia, author of the bills, that an effort had been made to bury them in a sub-committee.

The Allegheny County delegation voted 23 to 1 to report out the bill. Representative Leonard Kane was the only negative vote. Representatives Shenkel, Scorza and Spann were absent. Representatives Dwyer, Maloney, Lynch and Metzler, who had first voted against reporting the bill, changed their votes after roll call was completed. They explained they had "voted under a misapprehension."

Today's almost unprecedented action followed a promise by Grundy leaders to call the committee this afternoon to consider the bills if Sowers would not force action on his motion to discharge the committee. The Philadelphians insisted the committee should meet this morning before convening of the House and report out the bills. Sixty-nine Republicans and 60 Democrats voted to discharge the committee.

This Is No Time for League Court Folly

SENATE DEMOCRATS will jeopardize the success of the Roosevelt program for the restoration of prosperity if they attempt to jam through the ratification at the present special session of the League Court protocols.

These protocols do not provide any relief for our twelve million unemployed fellow citizens.

These protocols will not reopen any of our closed banks, or release to depositors any of their hard-earned savings which are tied up in these banks.

These protocols will not purge our banking system, nationalize our transportation system, reduce our unemployment, rehabilitate the American farmer or relieve the American taxpayer.

TO ATTEMPT the ratification of the League Court protocols in this national emergency would plunge the Senate into a prolonged debate and divert the minds of the American people from their own pressing problems to the political quarrels of Europe and Asia.

To force the United States into the League of Nations by the trap-door of its court at the very time when Japan is leaving the league through the front door would be an act of national folly that could and should cost the Democratic party the control of the House in 1934 and control of the Senate and the presidency in 1936.

It would seem that the idol of gold has feet of clay.

NAME LENCHER COUNTY JUDGE

An arduous and rapid rise from immigrant boy to an appointment to the County Court bench by Gov. Pinchot, climaxed today the boyhood ambitions of Attorney Benjamin Lencher, 37, former assistant district attorney. When he dons judicial robes and takes his new office, his career will stand out as one of the most unusual and interesting in the history of the local court. Next to Judge Ralph H. Smith, he is the youngest jurist in Allegheny County.

Attorney Lencher has been a contender for the County Court vacancy, created by the death of Judge Thomas C. Jones, of McKeesport, for the past three months. Announcement of his appointment was made last night by Judge Smith, after a telephone conversation with the Governor. Judge Smith said:

"I have been authorized by Gov. Pinchot to announce his decision to appoint Benjamin Lencher to the vacancy in the County Court of Allegheny County created by the death of Judge Thomas Jones."

TOLD OF APPOINTMENT

Word of the appointment was given to Attorney Lencher last night, just a few minutes before he mounted the speakers' stand at a mass meeting in Carnegie [illegible] Hall to protest persecutions by Nazis in Germany.

Squire, Aide Accused in Cost Fake

Justice of the Peace Walter Wickline, of McKees Rocks, and Constable Albert Streets, working out of his office, today were placed under $4,000 bail each on charges of conspiracy, false pretense and misbehavior in office.

County Detective David Drexler, following an investigation by the District Attorney's office, made information against the two before Alderman Thomas Flanigan, alleging "faked" cases had been written on the squire's books for which the county was assessed the costs.

An audit of Wickline's books showed, according to Drexler, that many of the 639 discharged cases had been falsely entered.

MASS MEETING SCORES HITLER

Declaring the entire German nation will suffer international condemnation unless Chancellor Hitler immediately stops persecution of Jews, the Rt. Rev. Alexander Mann, Bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Western Pennsylvania, addressed 2,000 persons who crowded into Carnegie Music Hall last night while 2,500 more stood in the street and heard the proceedings through amplifiers.

The meeting, held under the auspices of 75 Jewish organizations, had the co-operation of leading Catholic and Protestant groups who joined with the Jews in protesting Nazi action against their people in Germany.

FALL PREDICTED

Bishop Mann said in part:

"The moral and Christian faith of a multitude of German people is on trial. We cannot indict a whole nation because of this attitude taken by their Chancellor.

"The Nazi government is riding for a fall and fall they will. The time is not far off when the most potent voice lifted in protest will be that of a great section of the German people themselves. They are still trying to live down the World War and do not again wish to have the eyes of the world turned upon them with hatred and distrust."

NAZIS PUSH BOYCOTT ON JEWS

1,350 Under Arrest As Berlin Fears Conspiracy

Associated Press.

Fifteen hundred war veterans affiliated with the Steel Helmet organization, a political ally of the National Socialist Party, are under arrest at Brunswick, suspected of fomenting a revolt against the Nazi rule.

They were interned all night at their headquarters building and taken out in droves for breakfast. A Steel Helmet leader said it was a "cracy" thing to do that the Nazis apparently had been panic-stricken by reports that radicals were joining the Steel Helmets in large numbers, but that anyway it was a purely local issue and that the co-operation between the Nazis and Steel Helmets would not be interrupted.

The Nazi "anti-lie" campaign to offset widespread reports of persecution of the Jews has taken the form of a general boycott of Jewish shopkeepers and professional men. The government has indicated that it will not interfere so long as the foreign newspapers continue to report atrocities.

Jews all over the world have joined the protest against what they believe to be persecution in Germany. An anti-German boycott has begun in Palestine.

BRUNSWICK, Germany, March 28.—(AP.)—The first counter-revolt plot within the ranks of supporters of the two-month old Hitler government was reported uncovered today with 1,350 men under arrest.

A state-wide ban on the Steel Helmet war veterans, allies of the Nazi brown-shirted Storm Troops since the creation of the Hitler coalition cabinet, was declared.

TROOPS ARRESTED

Those arrested included 200 Steel Helmeters, who had been made auxiliary police along with the Nazi Storm Troops. The remainder under arrest were mostly youthful Socialists and Communists.

Franz Seldte, the one-armed leader of 1,000,000 Steel Helmets throughout the country, stated in Berlin early today that he was convinced of the trustworthiness of the organization's leader in Brunswick.

This leader, Dr. Schrader, however, was roused from bed early this morning in Wolfenbuettel, Brunswick, and placed under arrest.

Seldte is also minister of labor

Pittsburgh Woman Killed in Florida

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Esther Lienenthal, 55, of Pittsburgh, was killed last night by an automomile while crossing the county causeway, from which she had been fishing.

Police said Nathan Goldberg, 44, of Troy, N. Y., was driving the car which struck the woman. He was released pending an inquest.

Garbo Back in Skirts After Posing as Man

LONDON, March 28.—(INS.)—Greta Garbo has changed back from trousers to skirts, the London Daily Telegraph said today. When she slipped out of Sweden Friday aboard the steamer Annie Johnson, San Francisco bound, she was "immaculately dressed as a man," the newspaper declared.

But, according to the report, trousers and her latest adopted name, Joan Emerson, could hardly be reconciled, even on the stilly deep.

So, with a sigh, menancholy Greta went back to skirts.

Thieves Pass Up Bibles, Steal Gun in Church

The underworld added to its store of lethal weapons today, when thieves stole an automatic pistol from the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, Rippey street and Highland avenue, according to a report to city detectives.

Church officials reported their stock of Bibles and hymn books undisturbed.

Entering the church by breaking in a cellar door some time last night, the thieves found the automatic in a desk drawer, after knocking the combination off the safe and not being able to open it, acording to detectives.

The pistol belonged to Van J. Abell, business manager of the church.

Every locked drawer and cupboard in the church was broken open, but except for the weapon, only a few stamps and odd trinkets were stolen.

NATION'S CHIEF USES PLANKS AS GUIDE

President Breaking Many Precedents In Office

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—It is Franklin D. Roosevelt's smiling boast that he is both a maker and breaker of precedents.

He has added steadily to his reputation in this regard ever since the day he flew to Chicago to accept the nomination from the Democratic convention in person, but his pace has been greatly accelerated since actually assuming the presidency.

He is now engaged in establishing a new one or breaking an old one in the unprecedented manner in which he is building his whole legislative program squarely on the planks of the Democratic platform.

He keeps a copy of the platform in a drawer in his desk, and consults it frequently.

STICKS TO PLATFORM

Save for the emergency banking act—the need for which could not be foreseen last June—none of Mr. Roosevelt's legislative proposals has gone outside the party platform.

Midway in his fourth week in the White House, he has initiated action on the most important platform planks, and has one of them—the legalization of beer—on the statute books.

A list of these platform pledges, and what has been done or is being done to carry them out, follows:

1—Immediate and drastic reduction of governmental expenditures by abolishing commissions and offices, and consolidating departments.

Sweeping authority to do this has been voted Mr. Roosevelt by Congress. He took the first step yesterday by consolidating agricultural credit agencies.

2—A balanced budget.

A long start has been made on this, through the dictatorial power voted the President to reduce Federal salaries, slash veterans' compensation, and the enactment of the beer-for-revenue bill.

3—Sound currency. An international monetary conference to be called by the United States to rehabilitate silver.

No action yet.

4—A competitive tariff for revenue, reciprocal tariff agreements, and an international economic conference.

ECONOMIC PARLEY

Discussion has been started on the world economic conference. Tariff negotiations probably will await the conference.

5—Federal credit to states for unemployment relief and expansion of public works program.

A huge new appropriation is to be asked shortly for this. Meantime, Congress is debating the Roosevelt reforestation-unemployment plan.

6—A shorter work-day and work-week.

No action yet.

The Roosevelt farm bill is now before Congress. A message will go to Congress shortly providing mortgage relief.

8—Adequate national defense.

No action will be taken toward building the American Navy to treaty strength until it is seen what the Geneva disarmament conference achieves.

9—Protection of the investing public through honest advertising of securities, coupled with federal control of holding companies engaged in interstate commerce, and divorcement of bank affiliates.

Legislation is being drafted.

Norman H. Davis has sailed for Europe as a roving ambassador to 10—No debt cancellation.

Preliminary debt discussions have been begun with Great Britain, with other non-defaulting nations to follow.

11—Repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead act to permit beer.

Beer has been legalized. The lame-duck Congress set in motion the machinery for repeal.

vision over the issuance of permits to all manufacturers and wholesalers, under terms of the measures. A $100 permit fee for brewers and wholesalers is provided.

The bills stipulate that all license fees shall be collected by municipalities and the tax on beverages will go to the state.

FEES ESTABLISHED

Retail dispensaries, where the beverage would be consumed on the premises, would be assessed a license fee of $200. Retail distributors for non-consumption purposes would pay a fee of $100. Both would be required to post bonds of $1,000.

The Department of Revenue would derive its revenue from taxes on stamps that would be required on each bottle or barrel. The tax fee would be one cent per pint while a graduated fee, running up to $2.48 for a 31-gallon barrel, would be imposed on bulk production. The minimum sale in all cases was placed at 144 fluid ounces.

Sale of beer would be prohibited to minors, intoxicated persons, and insane persons. No sales would be legal on Sunday and election day.

FINES PROVIDED

Persons convicted of operating saloons and establishments equipped with bars would be subject to a $300 fine on first offense. A second offense would make him liable to a $500 fine.

The bills were offered by Gov. Gifford Pinchot with a view of bringing all factions together and hastening action so that Pennsylvania will be legally prepared to control the flow of beer on and after April 7. A conference today failed to bring complete harmony among legislative leaders.

The Legislature has but seven days under its present schedule to put a control measure on the law books. If it fails there will be no restrictions on the sale of beer on April 7 and the state will gain no revenue from that source until a regulatory law is enacted.

The Governor apparently failed to win over Representative Clinton A. Sowers, who has several liquor bills of his own pending. Sowers' bills would retain only 10 per cent of the beer revenue for the state.

ment ordered 41,100,152 pairs of shoes, and succeeded in having 32,227,450 pairs actually delivered. Three million, five hundred and thirteen thousand, eight hundred thirty-seven men were the total in our army, and that meant nine pairs of shoes for every man.

At the armistice, Uncle Sam had 7,000,000 pairs of shoes on his hands, including "350,000 pairs of chocolate colored shoes" that the conscripted men did not like, because they did not match their uniform. Also 300,000 pairs of gymnasium shoes.

Patriotic business men that spent Uncle Sam's money for him ordered 2,265,798 pairs of shoes from England, 100,000 pairs from France, 800,000 pairs from Russia. Our Army certainly had shoes.

IT ALSO had branding irons, a thing that you heat red-hot to burn Uncle Sam's mark into the hide of a horse or mule. The Army acquired 580,182 horses and mules, of which 90,000 died. And (you may not easily believe it) the government bought and the taxpayers paid for 195,000 branding irons.

One branding iron for every three animals. In connection with these irons, the government was requested to pay 39½ cents a pound for 79,952 pounds of copper.

Some cruel expert later said the copper was impure, worth only 11 cents a pound. He was probably a Bolshevik at heart.

SUCH FIGURES are slightly annoying, but comparatively mild. Patriotic business gentlemen, spending Uncle Sam's money, ordered from one concern 89,000,000 tin cans, totally ignoring efforts of other concerns to sell the same kind of cans to the government at a saving of from twenty to thirty per cent.

Shoes and branding irons are small items. The cost of war got into the "real money" when patriots bought for you taxpayers nearly a billion dollars' worth of ships that never went to sea, including wooden ships, concrete ships, and ships that Henry Ford bought for old iron.

And the same patriots built AT YOUR EXPENSE nearly one billion dollars' worth of flying machines that wouldn't fly, so that our pilots in Europe had to borrow foreign planes for their fighting.

Do you wonder that we are loaded down with taxes, or that you should have a depression now that the time comes to pay these bills?

Washington's group of patriots in the Wilson adminmstration put a big load on your backs in a hurry. But you will not get it off IN A HURRY.

THE SUN shines brightly here on Biscayne Bay, the breeze is soft, and little colored boys at the railroad station selling cocoanuts "two for a nickel" are amusing.

But even Florida sunshine and the fattest lady with the least clothing on the sand of the Roney Plaza beach lose their appeal when you think of what was done to Uncle Sam by his $1 a year nephews, in the name of patriotism.

SENATE TAKES LIMIT OFF R.F.C. LOANS

States Now Denied Further Funds May Borrow More

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—Plunging into the President's unemployment program, the Senate today swept aside the restrictions which forbid any state from borrowing more than 15 per cent of the Reconstruction Corporation's $300,000,000 relief fund.

It adopted a proposal by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, at the outset of consideration of the reforestation measure. The proposal, an amendment to the pending bill, was designed to aid Illinois and several other states which are nearing the limitations of relief borrowings.

At about the same time that it took up the bill, the Senate Finance Committee approved a measure to provide $500,000,000 for direct relief, with the agreement that it would be taken up immediately after the reforestation bill, or which a final vote by nightfall was expected.

DIRECT GRANTS

The bill would permit the federal government to make direct grants of relief funds to the states, instead of loaning money as under the Hoover administration.

The reforestation bill was formally taken up by the Senate at the request of Senator Robinson, although it was informally debated yesterday.

Debate on the proposal to give jobs to more than 200,000 men in the forests began in the Senate at about the same time that Representative Byrns, of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, said he had been informed the revised measure was satisfactory to President Roosevelt.

While the measure faces more apparent opposition in the House than in the Senate, Byrns said that he expected it to be passed tomorrow.

CONNERY TO FIGHT

Chairman Connery, of the House Labor Committee, has announced that he would carry his opposition to the floor.

The Senate Banking Committee also agreed today to consider Thursday the Wagner bill to liberalize the law under which the Reconstruction Corporation can make loans for public construction.

The Wagner bill would permit loans for all projects deemed "needful and in the public interest" without requiring that they be self-liquidating as under the present law.

F.R. COURT PLEA IRKS SENATE

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Administration leaders of Congress, intent on hastening enactment of President Roosevelt's economic relief program, were highly disturbed today by his proposal for Senate ratification of the League Court protocol at the present session.

The President's advisers were well aware that Senate action on the court protocol, with its international complications, would delay consideration of all legislative matters for weeks. They preferred to postpone court debate until the next regular session of Congress, so the present special session may be devoted exclusively to emergency legislation.

Mr. Roosevelt urged ratification upon the conditions laid down by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee last June.

'Expect to Be Married'

MISS ROSE E. W. ALLEN . . . . . SHE'S BETROTHED AGAIN

Miss Allen, the Philadelphia debutante, now working as a fashion mannikin, whose romance with Francis Donaldson II ended with a pistol shot from her brother's gun, today betrothed to Insurance Broker Kenneth (Buddy) Coolbaugh, one-time athlete.

ROSE ALLEN IN NEW ROMANCE

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—(INS.)—A new romance soon to be culminated with a wedding has returned to Rose Allen the happiness she once knew, she said today.

Harsh memories of the slaying of her sweetheart, Francis Donaldson, III, at the hands of her brother, Eddie, have been dissipated by the thoughts of her approaching marriage with Kenneth (Buddy) Coolbaugh, an insurance broker.

Coolbaugh confirmed rumors of the engagement as did Rose, but both were reticent about plans for the marriage.

Rose said:

"We expect to be married, but I can't tell you just when."

Rose, employed in a dress shop, has discarded the somber black she wore after her sweetheart's slaying and during the trial at Norristown when her brother was acquitted of murder charges. Since the tragedy she has not lived with her father, Horace Allen, and her brothers, Eddie and Bill.

F. R. ACTS TO AID COAL INDUSTRY

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—A way to stabilize the coal industry is being sought by President Roosevelt. Yesterday he called in leaders of the United Mine Workers and two cabinet members to see what could be done.

After the conference, the White House issued this statement:

"There was a general discussion of the coal industry and mining conditions throughout the country with a view to finding the best means for improving these conditions. Further conferences with the President will be held."

John L. Lewis, president of the miners union, made no comment. The belief is held by some, however, that the union leaders hope to get Mr. Roosevelt behind new stabilization legislation along the lines of the Davis-Kelly bill. That bill would allow operators to form marketing combines under federal regulation and permit miners to organize in nonunion fields.

R. F. C. Grants Ohio $2,709,161 for Relief

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—Ohio today was granted an emergency relief loan of $2,709,161 by the Reconstruction Corporation. The money is to be used in 22 political subdivisions during April.

'Sistie's' Inspection Of F. R.'s Suite Delays Parley

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(Universal.)—Two youthful visitors have solved the problem of how to see President Roosevelt without an appointment. They just walked in yesterday.

The youngsters were "Sistie" and "Buzzie" Dall, small grandchildren of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. They said they wanted to see "granddaddy's new office."

The President was in the midst of an important legislative conference with Senators Robinson, of Arkansas, and Harrison, of Mississippi. He good-naturedly held up the conference while the children inspected the executive office.

MELLON FACING PROBE ON TAX EVASIONS

Senator Charges Huge Sums Lost to U. S. By Neglect

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(Universal.)—Charges that the Treasury Department, under former Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, permitted wholesale income tax evasions, including his own corporations, would be investigated by Attorney General Cummings, under a resolution offered in the Senate yesterday by Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana.

At the same time Cummings announced that the campaign against banking and income tax law violators, in which President Roosevelt is taking an active interest, is being vigorously prosecuted, he said:

"We are carrying on this work as fast as our facilities will permit."

The Wheeler resolution, which was ordered to "lie on the table," called upon the Department of Justice to institute civil and criminal prosecutions in the event the inquiry substintiates the charges against Mellon and his subordinates in the Treasury.

EVIDENCE SUBMITTED

Wheeler based his resolution upon evidence gathered by David A. Olson, former special counsel of the Sanate banking and currency committee, in its investigation of the New York Stock Exchange.

Olson was employed by the Senate committee in August, 1932, when he offered Senator Norbeck (Rep.), of South Dakota, then chairman, a program for collecting several hundred million dollars in allegedly evaded taxes.

On February 7, 1933, Olson resigned, charging, in an open letter, that Norbeck intended to "whitewash" the Stock Exchange and tax evaders. Following these charges, Norbeck summoned Charles E. Mitchell, of the National City Bank, before the committee, which resulted in Mitchell's indictment for tax evasion.

MELLON WON'T COMMENT

Andrew W. Mellon said last night at his home here, according to the Associated Press, that he wished to make no official comment on developments in Washington, but observed that $600,000,000 is "a very large sum."

Told that Senator Wheeler had demanded an investigation of charges that he and other former and present Treasury officials failed to collect $600,000,000 in taxes and interest Mellon expressed mild surprise. He asked:

"Six hundred million dollars?"

"Yes, that's a very large sum. Careless of them if they didn't collect that."

The former Secretary of the Treasury, just returned to his Pittsburgh home after relinquishing his post as ambassador to England's Court of St. James, declined to comment on developments in Washington, saying:

"I have only been back a few days and I am not familiar with the details."

CHARGES NOT RECEIVED

He said he had received no formal notice of charges filed against him and others by David A. Olson, former counsel of the Senate stock market investigating committee, that taxes and interest from former steamship companies and the Gulf Oil Company had been "illegally withheld" from the United States Treasury.

He said that, so far as he knew, no legal answer had been filed, but that he "supposed there would be one."

Mellon, a private citizen after 12 years of public service, visits daily his cozy office in the Mellon National Bank, discussing business and private affairs with friends and associates, but is prevented by law from assuming active control of his vast financial empire for two years after resigning as Secretary of the Treasury.

Chinese Actor Shot Dead In True Film Style

LOS ANGELES, March 28.—(AP.)—Ung Yock Ming was killed yesterday in the style of an old-fashioned Chinatown melodrama, plus a Hollywood flavor. He was a motion picture actor. He died from pistol bullets in a dark, narrow corridor at a Chinatown lodging house.

Robert Chong, a dapper little Chinese, who said he was a member of the Hip Sing Tong, catapulted from the building while the shots were still echoing, and was seized by Detective Lieut. E. C. Biffle and Officer A. Ortiz, of the Chinatown police detail. They had been eating chow mein just across the street.

From Chong's trouser leg, the officers said, they took a pistol containing five discharged shells.

Disregarding his protests that he picked the weapon up as it was dropped by a fleeing man and that he knew nothing of Ung's death, they placed Chong in jail.

Among the six persons in the building held as witnesses was Emma Young, pertty 18-year-old Chinese film extra, who said she knew Ung slightly, but was innocent of knowledge as to his death.

Ung was known to his friends as "the Chinese Tom Mix." He was frequently called on by the studios to fill character parts.

Beauty's Suicide Reveals Secret Kreuger Affair

LONDON, March 28.—(INS.)—A hitherto unrevealed chapter in the life of Ivar Kreuger, self-slain multi-millionaire Swedish match king, came to light today with the suicide of Alice Winifred Ormrode.

Once a reigning beauty, the 61-year-old woman took her life in direst poverty in a second-hand clothing shop. She had been separated from her husband, a theatrical manager, for 18 years.

According to the London Daily Express, which disclosed details of the woman's life, Mrs. Ormrode once told an unnamed confidante that for many years she lived and traveled with Kreuger, masquerading as his wife.

They separated long before Kreuger, facing exposure for fraud and forgery, committed suicide in his Paris apartment a little over a year ago.

According to the Express' informant, Mrs. Ormrode attracted attention of a British nobleman while playing in "East Lynne" many years ago. He showered gifts upon her, establishing a massage parlor in Mayfair to give her an income, but rumors circulated regarding conduct of the establishment and the London County Council closed it down.

Mrs. Ormrode returned to the stage, and a short while later met Kreuger, who was eight years her junior.

CITY'S NEXT MAYOR HOPES TO END FEUD OF 3 POLITICIANS

HERRON NEARS GOAL SOUGHT 15 YEARS

Wants to See Coyne, Mansfield and Harris In Same Camp

Pittsburgh's next Mayor doesn't drink, smoke or chew.

John S. Herron is 6 feet tall and has an aldermanic pouch he blames on his wife's cooking, which he says is excellent. He explains:

"Anybody that likes food as well as I do would have one of those, too."

He is 60 and has quite a few hairs left, a few of them still black. He takes no exercise, other than a bit of walking, but he is—and looks it—in good physical shape.

REALIZES AMBITION

The prospective Mayor didn't seem unduly excited today at the prospect of taking over the city, but his friends say it's been his ambition for 15 years.

He has another aim now. After he had readily agreed that he expects to be friendly with Senator James J. Coyne, he added:

"And Senator Harris is my friend, too . . . And so's Senator Mansfield."

And his utopian ambition is to unite these three politicians.

Herron said he was too good a politician to discuss right now the changes in jobs which everybody is expecting. He's going to wait until Council elects him—an election which he admits is in the political bag.

GOOD UNION MAN

Herron owes his political start to union labor. A young bricklayer, he was sent to Pittsburgh from his native Oswego, N. Y., in 1901, to lay brick on the Frick Building.

Four years later he was president of the Bricklayers' Union. And in 1913 he went to Council on labor votes. He's been there ever since.

He and Mrs. Herron live in a modest brick house at 7043 Hamilton avenue, Homewood. Their one child is Mrs. Margaret Herron Pope, of Squirrel Hill.

The new Mayor confines most of his reading to newspapers. His sense of humor shows itself in rubber peanuts, trick matches and false coins which he nails to the floor of his office to embarrass visitors.

Friends call him Jack. And along Grant street he is an easy mark for panhandlers.

PLAYS NO GOLF

His church is the Homewood Presbyterian, and he belongs to the Pittsburgh Athletic Association and the Pittsburgh Country Club, although he doesn't play golf. He is also a member of several fraternal orders. He has a common-school education.

He believes Pittsburgh's smartest politician was the late Senator William Flinn.

He reads detective stories and likes to tell stories—both varieties.

If he's not a drinker, he used to like to eat in the saloons for two reasons: the food and the congeniality.

He started saving a little bit from his wages of $5.20 per day when he was a bricklayer, and he's been saving ever since. He has some money. In fact, he emphasized:

"You can say that again! Building and loan for me."

GUILTY VERDICT IN SPY TRIAL INDICATED

Court Martial Clears 'Disgraced' Officer On 3 Counts

By CHARLES A. SMITH
International News Service.

LONDON, March 28.—Indicating a verdict of guilty, the court-martial trying Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart, of the Seaforth Highlanders, on charges of violating the official secrets act, announced late today that sentence on the seven main counts against him "will be promulgated in due course."

The 24-year-old officer was acquitted on three charges of attempting to obtain, collect and communicate secret military information.

SENTENCE AWAITED

Announcement of the decision to promulgate sentence on seven of the charges was made several hours after the court-martial retired to consider its verdict.

It is regular procedure in courts-martial not to announce convictions.

The findings in Baillie-Stewart's case will be handed to the Judge Advocate of the court-martial and transmitted by him to the commanding officer of the London district for promulgation. If confirmed the findings will be sent through the Army Council to King George for approval.

The judge advocate told the court in his closing argument:

"You are not here sitting in judgment upon him, for discreditable or immoral conduct, however reprehensible his actions may seem to you to have been as a British officer and gentleman."

'LIFE RUINED'

In his final plea for the defense, Norman Parkes, attorney for Lieut. Baillie-Stewart, said:

"There is no direct evidence showing Lieut. Baillie-Stewart collected military information for a purpose prejudicial to the state. There is only suspicion on which it would be wrongful to convict him.

"His life is ruined whatever the result of this case, and he knows it. His career in the Army is ended, and any possible life he may continue outside the Army will be wholly worthless. Every detail of his intimate association with this woman, Marie-Louise, has been reported for the edification of every shop-girl in the country."

SKIPPING ROPE USED TO KILL GIRL, 6

Child Sent to Cellar For Baby Carriage Strangled

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP.)—Six-year-old Barbara Wiles was killed in the basement of her Brooklyn home today, strangled with her own skipping rope which she had unwittingly tossed ready to the slayer's hand, and within three hours police seized for questioning a man unable to explain his recent actions.

As more than 100 uniformed and plainclothes police swarmed around the Wiles tenement in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn, a dark man in his early twenties came pushing through the crowd and elbowed his way into the building.

Detectives asked:

"Who are you?"

The man replied:

"I'm a barber. I've come to tend a sick man."

But he had no barber implements with him and a quick check showed that no one was sick in the tenement's six apartments. The man was hustled away to a police station.

ON ERRAND FOR MOTHER

Barbara, the daughter of Harold Wiles, an unemployed mill worker known locally as a cricket player of unusual ability, was sent to the cellar this morning to get the baby carriage for her baby brother.

There she was strangled with a skipping rope she had tossed down the stairs yesterday for safe keeping. An iron spike had been used to tighten the rope about her neck.

Barbara was asked by her mother to go to the cellar to bring up the baby carriage of her little brother.

FOUNDe UNCONSCIOUS

Fifteen minutes later the little girl had not returned to the Wiles apartment on the first floor and Mrs. Hanna Wiles, the mother, went to the top of the cellar stairs to see what caused the delay at the foot of the stairs the baby carriage lay overturned on what at first looked to the mother in the dark like a filled burlap bag, but which, as her eyes grew accustomed to the dimness, sh[e] was the body of her daughte[r] screamed and ran down finding the little girl uncon[-] with a hempen cord twisted arou[nd] her neck.

Police emergency squads were rushed to the scene and doctors sought in vain to revive the little girl. Detectives from Brooklyn and Manhattan immediately took up the hunt for the killer and Police Commissioner Edward P. Murooney hurried from headquarters to take personal charge of the investigation.

The Wiles live at 161 Nimrod street, a mile or so from where 5-year-old Florence McDonnell was found strangled in the basement of a vacant store a year ago, and wher 6-year-old Helen Sterler was murdered in the cellar of her home early this year.

Robert Smalls, a 15-year-old Negro, signed a confession tha he strangled the McDonell girl, giving as reason that she had "snitched" on hom when he played truant from school.

Lloyd Price, a 22-year-old Negro, confessed that he strangled the Sterler girl, who had been attacked before she was killed, as was the Wiles child.

The Wiles apartment is only two blocks from a police station.

MRS. WALKER FREE; NO PLANS

MIAMI, Fla., March 28.—(INS.)—Future plans of Mrs. Janet Allen Walker, who yesterday obtained a divorce from former Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, were uncertain today.

Mrs. Walker was granted a final decree by Judge Worth W. Trammell in Dade County Circuit Court yesterday afternoon after Walker's counsel agreed to waive the necessary 10-day wait before a master in chancery's report may be acted upon.

The divorce ended 21 years of marriage, and it was granted on grounds of desertion. Mrs. Walker testified that Jimmy left the Walker home in 1928 and established residence at a hotel.

Despite her pleas, he refused to return to live with her, Mrs. Walker testified in tears at the master in chancery's hearing, although he gave her generous financial support.

NICE, France, March 28.—(AP.)—Friends of former Mayor Walker of New York, whose wife was granted a divorce in Florida, said today that he probably will return to the United States before long, but that he is not considering re-marriage.

Mr. Walker declined to discuss his affairs.

CITY HONORED AS 'SAFEST'

Pittsburgh today was receiving national recognition as the safest city of 1932 with presentation of the National Safety Council award at a luncheon program in William Penn Hotel.

National radio programs, originating in New York and Chicago, were being supplemented by a local broadcast over Station KDKA and including the presentation part of the local affair. Acceptance for the city was being made by Council President John S. Herron, and the presentation by Frank J. Lanahan, member of the national executive and advisory committees.

Addresses by other speakers were to describe how the city's safety efforts have been productive under direction of the Better Traffic Committee in co-operation with the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council. Frank L. Duggan, chairman of the committee; Walter Rosenbaum, educational subcommittee chairman; George E. Clarkson, council manager, and Public Safety Director James M. Clark were speaking. Lewis W. McIntyre, chief engineer, Bureau of Traffic Planning, was chairman.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, was scheduled as the principal speaker on the national radio broadcast. Other speakers were to include Robert I. Catlin, assistant vice president, Aetna Life Insurance Company, and Alfred H. Swayne, vice president, General Motors Corporation.

BIDS CABINET FAREWELL

wiped out yesterday by Judge Thomas D. Finletter, the politics of the city government become those of Senator James J. Coyne, whom the new Mayor represents.

IGNORES ILLNESS

The Mayor's resignation, which has been in his attorney's possession for several days, makes no mention of the sickness which won him escape from jail, but simply and without explanation announces his retirement.

It marks, too, his departure from public life, for, at 62, his health is broken and his once all-powerful grip on the organization vote is gone.

The Mayor was at the East Liberty Station last night to meet Attorney Coll, returning from Philadelphia. He learned then that Judge Finletter, while granting the sick plea, had refused to wipe out the $5,000 fine against him.

This fine may be paid today.

PARK SATISFIED

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who yesterday presented to Judge Finletter the reports of six physicians, which agreed the Mayor was too sick to go to jail, heaved a sigh of relief today and announced, to put it mildly, he was glad the Kline case was ended. The press of this prosecution has been so great that the District Attorney, deep in thought, became lost in walking the few blocks from the Pennsylvania Station to his Philadelphia hotel Sunday night.

With Kline at liberty, the campaign to win freedom for his co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, former city purchasing agent, will be renewed.

It is likely that a pardon will be asked for him. It is likely also that Park will not oppose this plea. Succop has been in jail more than two months.

Young Astor Escapes Injury in Auto Crash

PALM BEACH, Fla., March 28.—(Universal.)—John Jacob Astor III, son of one of America's richest families, was unharmed after a narrow escape when his car overturned in a collision with a small sedan yesterday. Two men in the smaller car were slightly injured and their automobile demolished.

Young Astor's companions, George R. Rasmussen, Jr., of Chicago, and Miss Noel E. Hall, also escaped injury.

Urge Citizens Vote To Elect New Mayor

A resolution requesting that five persons be elected by the taxpayers to choose a Mayor to fill the remainder of Mayor Kline's term was to be presented to City Council today by the board of directors of the Beechview Civic League.

The decision was made last night at a special meeting of the board in the Boylan Building, Broadway and Hampshire avenue, on the grounds that in a democratic form of government its citizens have the right to choose its officers.

KING MAY BUY RAREST STAMP

UTICA, N. Y., March 28.—(AP.)—If the King of England still wants that rarest stamp in the world, a British Guiana one cent issue valued at $50,000 for which he was outbid once by Arthur Hind, of Clark Mills, he will have the opportunity again soon.

Hind's internationally known stamp collection is to be sold. He had refused $400,000 for his United States collection alone. Mr. Hind died a few weeks ago in Florida. The entire collection, under the terms of the will, just revealed, will be entrusted to William C. Kennett, of Hazelwood, O., and Charles J. Phillips, of New York, for disposition.

Old Arkad Had Right System

In ancient Babylon there lived a certain rich man named Arkad. He was famed for his generosity toward the public welfare—and, despite all he gave away each year, his wealth grew more rapidly than he spent it.

The story of Arkad and how he amassed his wealth is one of the most interesting chapters in a booklet being distributed free in Pittsburgh. The title of the booklet is "The Richest Man in Babylon," and it shows how the same laws that led to financial success 5,000 years ago are just as sound today if they are followed. Written interestingly semi-fiction style, there is nothing technical about it—its lesson is adaptable to the economic habits of men and women who today are concerned with the problem of putting aside a competence for the future.

If you want a copy of this booklet it will be sent free to you by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Telegraph Square Pittsburgh, Pa., without obligation. Just send your name and address.

Striking Taxicab Drivers Plan Rally

A meeting marking the twenty-first month of the strike of drivers of the Parmelee Taxicab Company will be held by Local No. 433, of the Pittsburgh Taxicab Drivers Union, in St. Patrick's Church Thursday night.

Father James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's, and advisor and chaplain of the union, is expected to be one of the speakers.

Frog Makes Meal Of Alligator, 'Prof' Peeved

TULSA, Okla., March 28.—(AP.)—The University of Tulsa had a very sick bullfrog today. He got that way by devouring a young alligator.

And Prof. H. D. Chase, of the zoological department, didn't like it one bit. Who'd have thought the six-inch frog would have made a meal of the department's 1-year-old alligator, 11 inches long?

The frog was still groggy, but Prof. Chase predicted recovery. The frog, Chase explained, has strong digestive enzymes.

THREATEN NEW ATTACK PLEA

DECATUR, Ala., March 28.—(AP.)—Pamphlets purportedly containing "the inside story" of the first Scottsboro trials were ordered confiscated by Judge James E. Horton today, and an order was issued for the arrest of the man who placed them on sale.

The action was taken on the request of Samuel S. Liebowitz, chief of defense counsel for the seven Negroes sentenced to death in the first trials and now facing a new trial on charges of attacking two white girls.

Liebowitz during an exchange with Thomas E. Knight, Jr., State Attorney General, threatened to "ask for a change of venue if similar occurrences interrupt the trial."

Examination of witnesses, mostly Negroes from Jackson County, regarding their qualifications for jury service proceeded after the interruption.

CROWDS STORM CLERIC'S TRIAL

MUNCIE, Ind., March 28.—(AP.)—In a courtroom filled to capacity with spectators, the trial of the Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, accused of attempting to attack 18-year-old Helen Huffman, began today.

Conway, who held the pastorate of the Madison Street Methodist Episcopal Church, was suspended two weeks ago when a church jury convicted him after hearing evidence in connection with the alleged attack.

The suspended pastor is also under indictment on the charge of assaulting Willard Aurand, his choir leader. He is accused of knocking Aurand over the chancel rail at the Sunday evening services on January 22. The trial on this charge is to be held later.

Congress Approves Fund for F. R. Pool

Long Lost Nephew Finds Aunt, Doesn't Know Her

There's a young man named O'Hare in town. He came from New York to see two aunts. He didn't know their married names—and now they're hunting him.

The comedy of errors began Sunday morning, when O'Hare came to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Hynes, 632 Boggs avenue, Mt. Washington. He told Mrs. Hynes he was hunting an aunt whose name he thought was Mrs. John Hynes, from Galway, Ireland. He said he had come from England, settled in New York, and hearing they were here, he wanted to meet his fathers' two sisters.

Not finding Mrs. John Hynes, he left.

Half an hour after it dawned on Mrs. Hynes that when she was very young, her brother, Martin O'Hare, left Ireland and settled in England. She decided this was his boy. She called her sister, Mrs. Uriah McCoy, of 751 Bryn Mawr avenue. They agreed it was probably their nephew. And now they want to find him.

Mr. O'Hare can call his Aunt Margaret at Schenley 8268.

School Lifts Dance Ban After Protest With Eggs

INDIANOLA, Ia., March 28.—(AP.)—The 50-year-old ban against dancing at Simpson College will be lifted next fall, it was disclosed today by a member of the board of trustees.

Student dissension reached a climax Friday when A. V. Proufoot, president of the board, was greeted with a shower of eggs and oranges at the conclusion of his speech, in which he referered to the suspension of six students for refusal to sign pledges not to dance.

The student body voted to make a personal apology to the board president.

J. O. Watson, Indianola attorney, presented the motion to allow regular dancing, at a board meeting Saturday. It was passed almost unanimously.

The rule against dancing has been rigidly maintained ever since the founding of the Methodist Episcopal school.

HITLER'S NAME BOOED AT BIG N.Y. PROTEST

By THOMAS WRIGLEY
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 28.—America's protest against persecution of Jews in Germany reached its climax last night in one of the greatest mass demonstrations in recent history in Madison Square Garden.

Thousands cheered the pleas for tolerance and for a fair deal to all races. Mighty choruses of "boos" shook the garden at each mention of the name of Chancellor Hitler, of Germany, and his brown-shirted Nazis.

Former Gov. Al Smith, Mayor O'Brien, United States Senator Wagner, Bishop William T. Manning, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and others were given resounding demonstrations as they spoke.

GOES OVER SEAS

There were 20,000 in the Garden. Outside 60,000 others blocked the streets where loud speakers carried the voices to the crowds. Radio carried the protest nation-wide while short-wave hookups sent it to foreign lands.

Under the shouts and the boos, the wild cheering and the jeers, there was a solemn note to the mass protest. It was a call for the German people themselves to restore to the Jewish people their rights of equality, both politically and economically.

The meeting was sponsored by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, Bernard S. Deutsch, president of the American Jewish Congress, was chairman.

HOLD NO ILL WILL

Deutsch emphasized that his organization and Jews in general felt no ill-will toward the German nation, and that the mass meetings' only motive was to protest against ill treatment of Jews.

Thanking the State Department for its promptness in obtaining authentic information, Deutsch pointed out that it showed Jews had been mistreated, their stores picketed, and professional discrimination exercised against them.

Mayor John P. O'Brien said:

"German culture largely rested on the Jewish people. I have too much respect for the German people to believe these reported persecutions have their sanction."

SMITH GETS OVATION

The most tumultous scenes were enacted when former Gov. Alfred E. Smith deplored racial prejudice in Germany, in Russia, in Mexico and even in the United States. He urged:

"Give this situation in Germany the same treatment we gave the Ku Klux Klan.

"It don't make any difference to me whether it's brown shirt or a night shirt."

The crowd roared.

Smith declared it was the avowed purpose of the Hitlerites to separate the Jews from the political life of Germany. When he spoke of Hitler's rise to power there was an outburst of boos.

One of the most stirring speakers was Rabbi Wise, who said:

"This protest is not against the German people, whom we honor and revere and cherish.

"This protest is not against the political program of Germany, for Germany is master within her own household, but solely against the present anti-Jewish policy of the Nazi government.

"The Jews of the world, no more than the Jews of Germany, do not demand exceptional treatment or privileged position or favored status for themselves. We do not even ask for our rights. We ask only for the right. We demand the right."

JEWS PROPOSE BOYCOTT HERE

A boycott of German-made products by Jews was proposed in a telegram read at a protest mass meeting in Carnegie Music Hall last night protesting gainst the Nazi persecutions. The telegram was signed by J. George Fredman, national commander-in-chief of the Jewish War Veterans, United States of America. It follows:

"The Jewish War Veterans of the United States of America emphasize the fact that we are not unfriendly to the German people as a whole, but we emphatically protest against the stated policy of the Nazi party, which has instituted a reign of terror and atrocities against the Jewish citizens in Germany, which also advocates confiscation of Jewish property and which will not allow peaceful Jewish citizens to take part in the commercial or intellectual life of Germany.

"We demand that this persecution cease immediately, that the Hitler government put a stop to all anti-Semitic activities and that immediate assurance be given that Jewish life and property will be protected.

"In the event that these assurances are not immediately forthcoming, we intend to push the boycott of all German products in every city in the United States."

Nazi Violence Denounced in Resolutions

These resolutions were adopted last night at the mass meeting in Carnegie Music Hall in protest of recent attacks on Jews in Germany by Nazi forces:

"Whereas, thousands of Jews have lived in Germany for centuries as peaceful and law-abiding citizens, contributing towards every phase of the cultural, social, economic and political life of the country, and

"Whereas, the dominant National Socialist Party is engaged in a vicious program of anti-Semitic propaganda, in utter disregard of the loyal service of Jewish people to the welfare of the country, and

"Whereas, under the inspiration of the insidious propaganda, and with the connivance of the present Nazi government of Germany, medieval tortures have been inflicted upon law-abiding citizens, and acts of wanton cruelty and savagry perpetrated against innocent and helpless Jews, in violation of all principles of humanity, and

"Whereas, the various governmental authorities in Germany have deprived numerous Jews of their offices as judges, lawyers, physicians, professors, have removed all protection of Jewish life and property, and are violating civil and political rights of the Jewish people as a whole.

"Now therefore be it resolved that we, the Jewish community of Western Pennsylvania, united under the auspices of the American Jewish Congress, and heartened by the sympathetic cooperation of our fellow-Americans, in public meeting assembled at the Carnegie Music Hall, Pittsburgh, Monday evening, March 27, 1933, utter our solemn and unqualified protest against these savage outrages and violations of human rights and civil prerogatives, and

"Be it further resolved that we petition the government of the United States to use its good offices with the government of German to the end that an immediate halt be called to these outrages and violations, and that the rights of the Jewish people, in common with their fellow-citizens, be duly recognized and respected, and

"Be it further resolved that copies of these resolutions be forwarded to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, now in session assembled, with the prayer that it memorialize the government of the United States to this end."

M'NUTT SCORES PERSECUTION

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP.)—Jews of Chicago last night protested reported persecutions of members of their race in Germany, and heard Gov. Paul V. McNutt, of Indiana, say such "injustice is outrageous against morality and humanity."

Gov. McNutt, a former national commander of the American Legion, said:

"For the second time in my life I rise to protest against acts of the German government. I join in this prayer with you for the freedom of the world."

More than 4,000 persons filled the auditorium, one of the largest in the city.

The meeting adopted a resolution urging the United States government to continue its "generous efforts to obtain for Jewish citizens in Germany restitution of their just rights."

MASS MEETING HERE SCORES HITLER

ceived an ovation from the crowd when he announced that he had just received word from Gov. Pinchot of his appointment to the bench of the County Court.

He went on to thank American newspapers for their part in placing the facts of conditions in Germany before the public.

CHURCH RAPS HITLER

Samuel Hardeman Church, president of Carnegie Institute and long an advocate of international good fellowship, spoke, condemning Hitler's policy. He said:

"One of his, (Hitler's) requests to President von Hindenburg was that his troops be allowed a free hand for three days to work their will upon the Jews and all against whom they hold enmity.

"Riding into power on this policy of appealing to the lowest instincts of racial and religious hatred, he sees his followers working his theories into action whereby peace and security have been torn from their foundations.

"In this manner Mr. Hitler has sown the wind, and now that he asks a world set on fire by his flames of hate, he stands appalled to discover that he is reaping the whirlwind. He is frightened at the world's resentment of his conduct, and he is trying to take refuge in a denial that any of these things have happened. Why, then, are Jews fleeing by the hundreds from their violated homes into these countries where the common and equal rights of humanity are respected?"

Church pointed out the number of positions of honor and trust filled by Jews in the United States and added:

"Men have written books on what the Man of Nazareth would do if he came to New York or London, but we need not speculate on what He would do if He came to Berlin, because Mr. Hitler would inevitably shut Him out from that city on account of His being a Jew."

RABBI APPRECIATIVE

Expressing the gratitude of his people for the expressions of sympathy, Rabbi Goodman A. Rose asserted Jews held no rancor in their hearts, rather were humiliated by the attacks on the ideals of humanity. He asserted:

"The Jews in Germany are outnumbered 10 to 1, they are weak. A nation that is sound and secure and can see the right does not fear the presence of a small minority in their midst.

"The Nazis feel their weakness and lack self-assurance, so they bully and hound down the weak in a frenzied attempt to stay in power. The leaders will soon be ashamed of their actions and shall retract."

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson reviewed the history of Jewish persecutions and pointed out that many nations had tried to suppress the Jews, but the race has lived while the nations are all but forgotten.

Rabbi Aaron M. Ashinsky and Dr. A. J. Ishlon also addressed the meeting.

Dr. Thomas S. Baker, president of Carnegie Institute of Technology, and United States Senator James J. Davis telegraphed expressions of sympathy. Similar messages were received from religious and fraternal organizations throughout the state.

meeting, they all offered their congratulations and were loud in their praise of his selection to the bench. He is to receive his formal appointment today.

The county's newest jurist was born in Rissina, Russia, a little village in the south-central part of the country. In 1902, when he was 6 years old, he left Russia with his mother and older brother, David, to come to the United States. His father, who had come to America a short time before them, met the three in Pittsburgh.

NEWSIE ON HILL

Attorney Lencher attended Moorhead Grade School and graduated from the old Central High School. His first job was selling papers in the Hill district. When his papers were sold he went to the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, where he led several clubs and engaged in recreation work.

In 1912, when he was 15, he explained that his ambitions to be a lawyer and a judge were aroused. He said:

"I was taking part in an oratorical contest at the Settlement. The topic was 'Abraham Lincoln' and I was fortunate enough to win the contest. Most fortunate for me, however, was a chance to meet Judge Josiah Cohen, then a judge in Common Pleas Court and the judge of the contest.

"From that time on I was one of Judge Cohen's kids. He was sort of a godfather to me and I have always hoped since that time to be able to follow in his footsteps. I knew him intimately and dearly after I became an attorney. He often counseled with me and helped me to get my start in the law business."

WORK AND STUDY

His next job was as page boy in Carnegie Library; later he became a librarian. With his position he managed to work his way through the University of Pittsburgh Law School. In college he was known as the best debater in his section. He teamed with Thomas Brynmor Morgan, Jr., now head of a news bureau in Rome.

Attorney Lencher lives at 5562 Hobart street and is married. Asked what his hobby was, he replied:

"Just one thing—books. My favorite are American history books."

Lencher has been prominent in civic and welfare movements in the county. Mr. Lencher has been active with the Republican campaigns and his ability as an orator is well known. He was a sergeant in Detachment No. 1, Headquarters Division, Camp Meigs, in the World War, and is a member of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars. He is also a Mason, a member of the Knights of Pythias and is a director in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, the Montefiore Hospital and the Y. M. and W. H. A.

in Chancellor Hitler's cabinet which heretofore has presented an outward picture of perfect harmony. The Nationalists, including Seldte, in the cabinet far outnumber the Nazis and that Monarchist party is closely affiliated with the Steel Helmet organization.

The Steel Helmets and Leftists were arrested in a raid last night on the former's headquarters here.

BOYCOTT PUSHED

BERLIN, March 28.—(AP.)—Orders from headquarters of the National Socialist Party, the organization of Chancellor Hitler, were to launch an organized boycott today against Jewish business in Germany.

First reports that is was under way came from Cleiwitz, in Upper Silesia, where Nazis stood in front of every Jewish shop with signs forging Gentiles to refrain from buying. Uniformed Nazi storm troops were keeping order. Police took no notice of the situation.

The Nazi party's newspaper in Munich said the government should not interfere in the boycott, but use it as a weapon to halt projected anti-German campigns abroad. The Telegraphen-Union News Agency said the government would "tolerate" the boycott as long as foreign governments took no steps to stop spread of "atrocity propaganda."

'ANTI-LIE' CAMPAIGN

The government, through the newly-created ministry of propaganda under Hitler's chief publicist, Joseph Goebbels, has launched an "anti-lie" campaign to counteract reports in foreign countries that Jews were being harmed or even killed.

Close upon an announcment by the Nazi party that the number of Jews in all professions would be reduced, 20 Jewish men and women were dismissed last night from positions in Berlin hospitals. The Nazi party communique said:

"Special committees will be appointed against Jewish businesses in Germany to answer the boycott pleas of the international Jewry."

In addition to urging that Chancellor Hitler himself keep his hands clean of the boycott movement, the party made plans to carry the measures out along what it described as "strictly legal lines."

Jews have been held responsible by the Nazis for what the latter call the "decay" of Germany under Republican government.

Protestant clergymen, Jewish organizations, industrialists and the Pen Club joined previously acting groups in sending telegrams to the United States protesting against exaggeration of reports of the German situation.

King Urges Break Unless Violence Is Halted

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(Universal.)—At a huge theater rally last night, Senator King (Dem.), of Utah, demanded severance of diplomatic relation with Germany unless "her diabolical and unjust Jewish persecutions" cease immediately.

About 2,500 jammed the auditorium to hear King and churchmen of various faiths. He said:

"I regret that there has come into power in Germany a party which is so fiercely nationalistic. We had hoped that the dark ages of war were ended."

The Rt. Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal bishop of Washington, assailed intolerance and bigotry, and asked for the "voice of all the people in protest" against conditions in Germany.

Foreign War Vets Urge U. S. Action

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 28.—The local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has forwarded a resolution to the Secretary of State at Washington, protesting ill treatment of Jews in Germany and urging the government to "make such representations to the German government as will cause this reign of terror to end immediately."

CONCERN TOLD BY RABBIS

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—(AP.)—Although expressing gratification of the State Department's action toward the "physical violence and excesses in Germany," the Philadelphia Board of Jewish Ministers today said it was "filled with grave concern as to the future." The board said:

"While we are willing to accept the sincerity of the assurances that there will be no physical violence, no attempt thus far has been made by responsible German statesmen or by spokesmen of the government retracting or repudiating the definite policy of the Nazi program, aiming at the exclusion of the Jews from the cultural, economic and political life of the German nation.

"We hope that the German people, true to their highest and noblest ideals, will quickly restore the Jews to their proper status of free and secure citizenship."

Globe-Trotting

—By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN—

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

Get your boots on; we are about to have another flood—a flood of words this time. Mary Sheridan wants to know whether the Monongahela flows upstream or down. All rivers flow downstream. It is the nature of water to follow the steepest descent. Sometimes the descent is so slight that under certain conditions the river has the appearance of flowing up. For instance that great body of water, the Amazon, has only a 10½-foot drop in 600 miles.

A brand new globe trotter has arrived in Wilkinsburg. This fellow has something to cheer about for he is the fifth generation of both sides of his mother's family. Christmas will be a big day for him with two grandmothers, two great-grandmothers and two great-great-grandmothers. He is Russell D. Bangham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bangham.

Another lightweight jigsaw champion is 4-year-old Master Dunlap, Jr., of Canonsburg. How he takes these 300-piece brain-faggers and puts them together is the talk of Canonsburg. We will have to arrange a match between him and Joe Pascarell, the South Brownsville 4-year-old flash.

A howl of protest comes from Duquesne because the Globe Trotter rhapsodized so over the South Hills High victory over the Duquesne basketeers. All I can say is that had Duquesne won, the same hearty congratulations would have been forthgoing to Duquesne High. Better luck next time, boys.

William S. Gronfeldt, who lives on Laketon road, and now visiting his parents in Denmark, received one of the grandest thrills radio has to offer. He heard the rebroadcast of the President's speech. He writes:

"What an inspiration to an adopted son of America, but my, how homesick it made me."

'Green Pastures' Star With Seibel

Richard B. Harrison, portrayor of "de Lawd" in "The Green Pastures," comes to the microphone as the guest of George Seibel, Sun-Telegraph dramatic and literary critic, during the latter's weekly "Plays and Players" broadcast on WCAE tonight at 7.

A quarter-hour of fun with Uncle Bob and Betty as they read the Sun-Telegraph comic pages is listed at 6 for WCAE listeners.

News flashes by Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, are broadcast over WCAE and WJAS daily at 9:05 p. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m.

If you hope to get on financially adjust your scale of living a little below your income, and save the difference.

The years ahead will be pleasanter and friendlier if you can do this.

Now is a good time to start. Regular saving of even very small amounts will soon build a background of character—and of credit.

Bernie Show To Welcome Beer

By AIRCASTER

The kilocycles are to have their own celebration on the night of April 6—or rather, part of the night, and part of the morning of April 7—the date on which, in case you've forgotten, you may begin quaffing beer with the consent and approval of your uncle Sam.

The theory of the air showmen is that there'll be enough stay-at-homes on that occasion to constitute an audience.

The celebration will be staged in four studios of the NBC, by Benjamin Bernie's present boss—and it will be, perhaps, a historic occasion, because it is to continue over four successive hours. No program of this nature, I believe, ever has contracted for so long a period.

Detroit, Chicago, New York and Los Angeles will be the points of broadcast, with Bernie as master of ceremonies, booker and general overseer. Present plans call for what the press agents would term a galaxy of talent.

Bernie, at this moment, is occupied in rounding up some of the more famous performers in all four cities. The possibility is that the broadcast will begin just before midnight and continue until sometime between 3 and 4 a. m.

The catch-phrase of the occasion, which Bernie will utilize, will be:

"O-Keg, America!"

According to the current dope sheets, the magic carpet presentations are to cease for the summer in June when Jack Pearl takes to the coast to make films. It begins to look now as if the films, which are taking Jack Pearl away temporarily, are contributing a substitute.

The gent picked for the chore, tentatively, of course, is no other than Jimmy Durante, whom the picture magnates have given a long extension to permit him to remain in New York.

Upon the suggestion of Al Goodman, the sponsor's favorite orchestra leader, Pearl's bosses, with Jack's full approval, are considering a series featuring "Schnozzle" Durante in the role of Cyrano De Bergerac, whose pals, I believe, called him "Savinien."

Durante, in his own quaint way, plans to provide extraordinary versions of the historic Frenchman's "voyage to the moon," his duels and other intrepid exploits, which the program director hopes, will rank amusingly with the adventures of that modest gentleman, Munchhausen.

Owen Davis Star In Radio Drama

With Owen Davis, Jr., actor currently appearing on Broadway in "A Saturday Night," playing the leading role, a dramatization of the opening chapters of "Big Time," Rae Chadwell's new story starting serially in the next issue of the American Weekly, is offered on WSAZ, Huntington, W. Va., at 5:15, and WKBN, Youngstown, O., at 9 o'clock tonight.

The American Weekly is distributed each Sunday with the Sun-Telegraph.

TRADE LEADERS UPHOLD FLOOD CONTROL PLAN

An immense control project to prevent floods in the Pittsburgh district and upper Ohio River valley and to provide almost $60,000,000 worth of business and employment in the Pittsburgh district has received the indorsement and support of a committee of Pittsburgh business leaders.

A meeting in the office of George S. Davison, president of the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, yesterday was attended by Arthur E. Braun, Farmers Deposit National Bank; A. B. Shepherd, Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation; A. L. Humphrey, Westinghouse Airbrake Company; Frank R. Phillips, Philadelphia Company; J. W. Cree, Jr., Denny Estate; Howard Irish, Commonwealth Trust Company; A. Rex Flinn, Booth and Flinn, Inc.; Charles Dreifus, of Charles Dreifus Company; R. Templeton Smith, Pittsburgh Coal Company; George S. Davison, Davison Coke and Iron Company, and Wilmer M. Jacoby, of the advisory board, Inland Waterways Corporation of the United States.

RESERVOIRS URGED

The group pledged unanimous support to the plan of the Flood Commission calling for construction in the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers of a series of 17 giant reservoirs to hold back flood waters.

The plan would cost approximately $60,000,000, according to Jacoby, secretary of the Flood Commission.

The men at the meeting have organized into an auxiliary committee to aid the reorganized Flood Commission. It was expected others would be added to the 11.

A committee from the group to go to Washington in the interests of the project is expected to be announced soon by Davison, president of the commission.

BENEFITS SEEN

Improved navigation, development of water power, and better sewage and water facilities for towns along the rivers would be major benefits its sponsors seek in the plan, developed by the Flood Commission over a long period of years.

The auxiliary committee members voiced the belief that since the Allegheny and Monongahela flood control project has been so carefully prepared, it could be one of the first improvements to be undertaken in President Roosevelt's program of public works.

Meanwhile, active picketing continued and only a comparatively small number of men were believed to have entered the works. No disorder was reported.

MANY SEEKING COXTOWN HOME

With spring weather around the corner, Father Cox is giving considerable attention to the development of "Coxtown," the farming community he established out on Kittanning Pike about a year ago. The recent announcement in the Sun-Telegraph that he had room for 50 additional unemployed families for the community, followed by the story of the street cars that the Pittsburgh Railway Company is donating for additional living quarters on the farm, brought him a flood of applications for accommodations — many more than he can take care of. He is personally interviewing each applicant and will take only those who can furnish the finest references.

He expects to have "street car city" ready for occupancy within 10 days but he still needs carpets or rugs, chairs and tables, stoves, beds and bedding to outfit these unique homes. Telephone Grant 4300, if you have any serviceable articles of this character and Father Cox will have them picked up by his truck.

Father Cox is still enthusiastic about his drive for Sun-Telegraph subscriptions. For every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings to his unemployment relief fund a liberal cash commission.

THERE MAY BE POISON IN YOUR BOWELS!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that come from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other pure ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstores sell.

C. Elliott. The rating allows these students a rebate of $30 tuition fees.

OPPOSE POLICE VACATION BILL

The State Senate today was to receive a telegram from City Council urging that the Lynch bill be sent back to committee.

The bill would give policemen of second-class cities a two-week yearly vacation with full pay and two pass days each month with pay. Councilman Clifford D. Connelley yesterday offered a resolution asking the Senate to withhold action until a hearing is given representatives of Pittsburgh city government. Council adopted it unanimously.

Connelley pointed out that owing to the city's program of retrenchment its policemen are receiving no pass days or vacations, and that the proposal would cost the city approximately $200,000. Reduction of the force may be compelled if the measure became law, Connelley said.

Luckies Please!

Lake Louise, Canada

In every corner of the world, both here and overseas, wherever you find joy in life, 'tis always "Luckies Please"

Luckies are distinctive in character ...unique in mildness

The wide world over, people want a cigarette that has character . . . and mildness . . . That's why they choose Luckies.

The "Cream of the Crop"—in those four words, you have the reason for Luckies' character—a character that sets them apart from all other cigarettes. The choicest tobaccos are aged and mellowed for nearly three years . . . and then "Toasted" for true mildness. For these two reasons—Character and Mildness—"Luckies Please!"

because "It's toasted"

J. L. LIVERMORE, 'BOY PLUNGER,' WEDS AGAIN

CHICAGO, March 28.—(INS.)—Jesse L. Livermore, 58, spectacular plunger of Wall street and Chicago, today announced that he and Mrs. Harriet Metz Noble, 38, prominent society woman, of Omaha, Neb., had been married last Thursday at Geneva, Ill.

Livermore, known as the "boy plunger," and who is reported to have amassed millions as a "bear" both in Wall street and on the Chicago Grain Exchange, in making the formal announcement of his marriage said that he and Mrs. Livermore would make their future home in Chicago.

This is Livermore's third marriage.

The bride is the former Mrs. Warren A. Noble, whose husband died in 1930. She is prominent in society in Omaha and has studied singing abroad.

Mrs. Livermore has made her home in Vienna since the death of her former husband. She is a charter member of the Junior League of Omaha, and has appeared in concert. It is also Mrs. Livermore's third marriage.

Livermore's two previous marriages, the first to Mrs. Nettie Jordon Livermore, the mother of his two sons, and the second to Mrs. Dorothy Fox Wendt Livermore, both ended in divorces. The second Mrs. Livermore was married to Walter Longcope, of New York, on September 16 of last year, a few minutes after receiving a Reno divorce.

Livermore, regarded in markets as the outstanding speculative genius of his time, acquired the sobriquet of "Boy Plunger" by making his first million in his early twenties.

Policeman, Girl Held For Further Hearing

A North Side patrolman and a 19-year-old girl were held over for a further hearing Thursday by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today after, police say, they arrested them in the patrolman's room early this morning, on complaint of the girl's mother.

Martha Cleveland, 19, of 3300 Eliska street, was sitting in a room at the apartment of Patrolman Albert McCloskey, 35, of 504 West Jefferson street, when they found them at 2 a. m. today, police reported.

Autoist, 61, Loses Fight With Officer

It cost H. D. Piel, 61-year-old Aspinwall salesman, $10 today to find out Police Sergt. Francis Boyle, of Morals Court, is a policeman and was a prize fighter. He paid the $10 to Magistrate Leo Rothenberg, of Central Police Court, when Boyle complained Piel bumped into his car yesterday, refused to show his license card and punched him in the nose. Boyle returned the punch. Piel denied everything.

MOLLISON, AMY PLAN FLIGHT

LONDON, March 28.—Capt. James A. Mollison, back in London today from his flight to South America, answered all inquiries guardedly concerning reports which have been current for some time that he and his wife, Amy Johnson, plan a dual long distance flight.

Presumably indicating they were going to Australia, where he lived, the noted flier said:

'We are going to return to the old farm."

One report is that the couple, each of whom has made numerous spectacular flights, will attempt to set a new long-distance flying record, starting at New York with Bagdad as their goal. Another is they will fly across the Atlantic together and then quit.

EXTEND SALES TAX RETURNS

Extension from April 1 to May 1 on the filing of the state retail sales tax returns and the privilege of paying the impost in six semi-monthly installments has been proposed by merchants in the eastern section of the state. The plan was proposed in a letter to Arthur C. Kaufmann, Pittsburgh, vice president of the Pennsylvania Retailers Association. Amendment of either of two bills now in the Legislature to effect the extensions was urged.

The communication called attention also to the question raised on whether the state has the right to collect the one per cent tax on business transacted under bailment lease.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That Proust once wrote 30 pages describing how he turned over and over in bed. He never bathed for fear of catching cold, and slept bundled up like an Eskimo with socks on. He'd stay awake for three days and nights in succession writing.

That Georgie Price, one of the better stars, says that if care kills people, "don't care" kills many more.

That there are lemons in the vicinity of St. Augustine, Fla., which are so huge that seven lemon pies can be made from a single one. (That's nothing. I've seen bigger lemons on Broadway.)

That you can rent a completely furnished four-room house with a radio and garage for seven dollars a week right outside of Miami.

That the husband of your wife's sister is not your brother-in-law. In fact, he's no relative at all. (So you can stop supporting him now.)

That snakes are not charmed by music. (They're simply curious.)

That Johnny Weissmuller had to make a monkey of himself in order to win fame. (I know a lotta guys that chose the same route.)

That Walt Disney, creator of "Mickey Mouse," is afraid of mice. (And Frank Buck, the bring-'em-back-alive gent, does not like cats.)

That the Mickey Finn was named after its creator, one Michael Finnegan, who pushed a wicked sour-rag in a Baltimore barroom opposite the old Camden railroad station many years ago. Croton oil was the active ingredient of Mickey's doses. Now they have a new ingredient, and it's spelled phenolphthalein!

That people with mustaches have more vanity than people without them.

That judging from the number of people who claim to trace their ancestry right back to the Plymouth Rock, the Mayflower must have been a fleet. (Even then the people were on the rocks.)

That George Jean Nathan says he can't stand the sight of a woman eating. (Probably means when he has to pay the check.)

That people who warn you not to mention their name in the paper (or they'll hurt you, by golly!), are the first to squawk if you happen to misspell it. (There's no gratitude in this racket.)

That $17,000,000 changes hands annually in this country in the name of alimony. (You may call it love—but I call it madness.)

That women's feet are now two sizes larger than they were twenty years ago. (Not to mention their heads.)

That the busy ant lives on an average of from 8 to 10 years, so you've outlived your life-span already, Bernie.

That Hood's "Song of the Shirt" is said to be the most terrible poem ever written. (You should see some of those I get)!

That the record of 112½ miles per hour set more than 20 years ago by the N. Y. Central's old 999 with J. Hogan as engineer, has never been beaten by any of the modern engines. (Them were the good old days!)

That William Billings, of Boston, was the first American to make of music a regular vocation.

That the beautiful Blue Danube, which Hellinger got seasick on, is called the Donau and they no savvy Danube.

That more persons speak English than any other language, except in New York, where more persons try to.

Oh, yes, Kerry Patch in the Kentucky Derby—to win!

And that very few of you can remember the first line of this column without looking back! (Stop peeking!)

Employes of the Pittsburgh postoffice presented an easy chair and autographed album to William Ott, a clerk in the postoffice, yesterday, in recognition of his 33 years of service. He retires on pension April 1. The presentation was made by Robert C. Quinn, assistant superintendent of mails, in behalf of the employes.

Ott, who lives at 108 Harwood street, Mt. Washington, entered the postal service July 1, 1900. For 25 years he has been treasurer of the United Association of Postoffice Clerks.

Collier Star In Variety

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Behind Jury Doors," photoplay heading the screen and stage bill in the Variety, is a story of jury-tampering, crooked politics and romance, with Helen Chandler and William Collier, Jr., in the leading roles. Mr. Collier is a reporter who becomes acquainted with Miss Chandler when her papa is convicted of murder. He thinks there's something queer about it, and discovers the jury has been fixed because a conviction would help the district attorney to be re-elected. So he turns things upside down, as energetic reporters are wont to do so much more often on the screen than they do in real life. And it transpires that somebody else did the killing, and of course William wins Helen, which is the big thing after all.

On the stage are vaudeville acts including Marinoff's canine actors, Valentine and Bell, Howe and Gaye, "Bugs a la Carte," and others. Additional screen offerings are a news reel and a Mickey Mouse adventure.

Folk Fable of Bible Story, 'The Green Pastures,' Is Nixon Novelty

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Since God made man in His image, it is only natural that the simple-minded folk of the Louisiana plantation should see God in their image. That is all the explanation and apology needed for "The Green Pastures," that Bible panorama at the Nixon, made by Marc Connelly from the book of tales by Roark Bradford. To the colored brother who has not gone to Princeton or Union Seminary, God is very much like the good old local preacher who expounds the Word from the rude pulpit of the meeting-house. And since the good old parson has lumbago, the Lord will not be immune. And since a fish-fry is the summit of worldly jollity, the heavenly kingdom will appear to be one eternal fish-fry. And since the height of affluence and generosity is manifested by the distribution of costly smokes, the Lord will naturally offer Gabriel or Noah a ten-cent cigar.

Mr. Seibel

The learned professors who know all about comparative religion will call this "anthropomorphism," making God in our own image. The unlearned multitude may understand Him better when He is thus brought down to earth.

Richard B. Harrison, who plays de Lawd in this scriptural fable, does it with such sincerity and profound feeling that no one could see any irreverence in the process, unless the irreverence is also in the Old Testament. Toward the close of the play, when de Lawd learns from the Prophet Hosea and Hezdrel what mercy means, the play is as good as a sermon—perhaps better than some.

NOBLE PIECE OF ACTING

In a part which must be about as long as Hamlet, Richard B. Harrison demonstrates that he is a fine actor. He has a magnificent musical voice and a native dignity that fits him for this noble piece of acting. When he admits that "I'm so far away, I guess I'm behind de times," there is infinite pathos in his utterance. When he mournfully announces that "bein' God is no bed of roses," it's a keen commentary on the tragedy of sin. But when he firmly refuses all the sly arguments and coaxings of Noah, who wants to take two "kags o' licker" aboard the Ark, it is a vindication of all-wise immutability.

Yes, Richard B. Harrison is the dominant figure of "The Green Pastures," and in his private office, where the Angel Gabriel functions as his secretary, and toys lovingly with his horn, he almost persuades us to believe that this is the true version of the celestial kingdom. When he gets serious and reflects that "dis earth has turned into quite a proposition," who will dispute his opinion?

Naive and absurd as may seem the picture of a sinful generation shooting crap on earth, or the angels flying to dances around the moon on Saturday nights, it is all as impressive as could be asked. After all, in his "Divine Comedy," the great Dante made his heavenly hosts medieval Italians and Satan like one of the Borgias.

PHARAOH LIKES TRICKS

Sometimes there is a note of sophistication, as when Moses, played by Alonzo Fenderson with appropriate meekness, looks like Michelangelo's statue and stammers as the close Bible student would imagine him. But this Moses is very convincing, and the picture of Pharaoh's court, where Pharaoh is surrounded by magicians and entertained by tricks, has all the tawdry splendor and infantile vividness of an actual monarch on his throne beside the Kongo.

This is the heart of the mystery—that the pictures shown on the stage are such as could actually be projected from the brain of the primitive folk. When they think of the Ark, they can hear its boat-whistle; when they think of the rainbow in the skies, it is projected there by a magic-lantern.

The village atheist who asks, "Where did Cain get his wife?" is answered without hesitation. He met her on the way to the parish of Nod. "You got a beau?" he asked her. When she grunted a negative, he snapped her up with "Yo' has now."

COMMITTEE IN HEAVEN

There are scenes of delicious comedy. When the Lawd summons Abraham, Isaac and Jacob to a committee meeting in his heavenly office, and tells them he is going to present Canaan to their descendants, they gratefully declare that it is "Quite a favor for de family." When directions are given for curing the wings of the moulting angels, or for putting the thunderbolts away in their boxes, there is laughter, of course, but this does not verge upon ribald mockery. For whatever this drama is, it is fundamentalist to the core.

Besides Richard B. Harrison, there are other notably fine bits of acting. Doe Doe Green as Gabriel, Tutt Whitney as Noah, George Randol as Pharaoh, Edna M. Harris as Zeba, and Charles H. Moore as Mr. Deshee were specially delightful.

The singing of spirituals and hallelujah choruses is a continuous performance and as good as a concert. The treadmill on which de Lawd walks abroad, Cain goes on his flight, and the Children of Israel march to the Promised Land, works as smoothly as the moving scenery of "Parsifal." And all the geography and architecture provided by Robert Edmond Jones have an authenticity of the primitive that is unanswerable.

Author Marc Connelly was there and made an address after the last curtain, giving expression to his joy at being back in Pittsburgh after 17 years and on the stage he had looked down upon a hundred times.

Wants Gable, Barrymore For Film

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1933, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 28.—Clarence Brown is out to draft Clark Gable as well as John Barrymore for his picture, "Night Flight," which goes into production in about 10 days.

A slender novel written by a former pilot of the night mail over the Andes, this story tells the adventures of the men who fly their planes 28,000 feet above sea-level, skimming over some of the world's greatest peaks to land the mail pouches in Buenos Ayres in time to make connections with the European plane.

Brown is keyed up to a pitch I have seldom seen. He says that Oliver H. P. Garrett, scenarist, has followed the book exactly, and that the treatment will be sensational—a drama in which the principal characters, even in the love story, never meet.

When Hollywood interiors are shot, Brown plans to go to South America and take a camera over that perilous 150 air miles between Santiago and Mendoza, Chile—a flight made in a dizzy altitude where pilots have to wear leather masks over their faces to protect them against 50-below-zero temperatures.

It is a flight where no ordinary passengers are allowed.

Here's something new. A group of Paramount exhibitors called the studio and asked the time of Mae West's return. They want to meet her with flowers. Reason is "She Done Him Wrong" has been a sensational box-office hit. At one small local theater, which customarily runs a double bill and and changes this three times a week, Mae's film ran alone for 9 days and did record business.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

ABOARD THE S. S. RESOLUTE, INDIA BOUND.—The passengers are all back now and the boat is moving rapidly through the usually peaceful waters of the Red Sea. Our next port of call—some time away yet—is Djibouti, in French Somaliland. I hope I like the spot because I have a swell name for a column about it. I'm going to call it "Djibouti and the Beast."

Tonight, shortly after dinner, I sat on deck with a young lady and her husband. Both came from New York. The husband was tired from his long trip to Cairo and fell asleep in the middle of a long sentence about the world's progress. That left the field clear for his smiling wife, who immediately spoke about the hotel in Athens, the cheapness of things in Gibraltar, the price of kitchenware in Gimbels basement, and did I think it would be too hot in India?

It was all very interesting, as the saying goes, but I had work to do. So I summoned my phoniest smile.

"Well," I murmured, "it would be heaven to sit here forever, but I'm afraid I must move along. I must finish a column before I go to bed."

She was very much impressed.

"That's wonderful. Imagine being able to do such a thing. I wish I were you. But whatever will you write about?"

I shrugged my shoulders.

"I don't know yet," I said truthfully. "But if I think hard enough, something will pop up, I suppose. And now, if you'll excuse me—"

She sighed.

"I don't envy you, even though I wish I had the gift. It must be a terrible task. I once knew a girl in Greenwich Village who was a writer just like you."

"So? What was her name?"

"O, you wouldn't know her," returned the young lady. "She had to give up writing after two or three years because she couldn't find any plots."

I was duly sympathetic.

"Tch, tch, tch," I tched. "That must have been very hard on her, as a writer. And now, if you'll excuse me, I—"

It was as if I hadn't spoken at all.

"But do you know," the young lady went on, "that my friend is having a wonderful time in life just the same? Just because she couldn't find any plots and had to give up writing, she's now one of the happiest women in the world."

"I'm certainly—" I began desperately.

"Whatever do you suppose happened to her?" cried the young lady, ignoring me completely.

I fell back in my chair with a sigh of resignation.

"She married Tom Mix," I ventured.

"No," she replied quite seriously. "You must be thinking of somebody else. Louise—that's my friend's name—had a really remarkable experience. Just wait until you hear the whole thing.

"After she gave up writing because she couldn't find any plots, she just rested for a while. And then after six months or so, something dreadful happened to her. She ran out of money.

"Well, some people might have taken gas or something—especially when they live in the Village. But not Louise. Did I tell you that she was a college graduate? Well, she was. And she had too much spunk to give up without a struggle. Do you know, Mr. Hellinger, that that girl actually went to work? Yes, she certainly did.

"And what doing, do you suppose? Well, you'll never guess, so I might as well tell you. She became a sort of nurse and companion to an invalid girl about her own age.

"Some of my friends cut Louise when she took that job, but not I. I'm much too democratic for that. Louise would come to my house just as she always did. And it was she who told me what a wonderfully sweet girl Jane was. Did I tell you that Jane was the name of the invalid girl? Well, it was.

"Louise just raved about Jane. She said that being her companion was much more fun than being a writer, even though it meant giving up the fame that belonged to her. I thought that was a wonderful way to look at it, don't you?"

"Remarkable," I replied.

"Well," the lady went on, "one day Louise came to my house with the most amazing news. Jane had fallen in love! Yes, I actually mean it. That poor, invalid girl was experiencing the joy that comes to a normal woman. And with whom do you think she had fallen in love? You'll never guess, so I'll tell you. She was in love with her doctor, a very wealthy and charming young man!

"Wasn't that just too thrilling! Louise was just as happy as could be. It even made me feel good, although I had never met dear Jane. It seemed that the doctor returned Jane's affections, even though I can't see really how one can fall completely in love with an invalid. But I suppose he admired her sweetness and her charm.

"Before anyone knew what had happened, the doctor and Jane were engaged. Louise was so thrilled that she almost wept for joy. It was supposed to be a secret for the time being, but Louise, of course, told me. And the plans they had made were positively marvelous.

"They were going to take a trip to California and back to New York—by boat. It would take a month or so, but the doctor thought the long sea voyage would be good for Jane. And then, shortly after they got back, they would be married. It would be a sort of wonderful engagement on the sea.

"Jane insisted, of course, that Louise be brought along. Louise thought she'd be in the way because an engaged couple generally wants to be by themselves. But Jane absolutely insisted, and the doctor said he thought it would be best. So Louise went along, too.

"And now we come to the strangest part of it all. Whatever do you suppose happened after that? Well, you'll never guess, so I'll tell you. By the time the boat reached Panama City, the doctor had fallen out of love with Jane and was simply mad about Louise!

"Romantic? I thought it absolutely divine. When the boat got to San Diego and most of the passengers went to Tia Juana, Louise and the doctor slipped away and were married to each other! Then the doctor bought a little car and they motored back to New York on their honeymoon.

"Louise and the doctor are together today and they're just about the happiest couple I know. And just think: if Louise had been able to think of plots, she would never have met the doctor at all!"

I asked the obvious question. I wanted to know about Jane.

"Oh," said the young lady, she got very sick after that. I think she died, or something. But she was an invalid anyhow, you know."

I arose.

"Thanks very much for your company," I asserted. "I must go to work."

"Oh, dear," cried the lady. "I had forgotten all about it. You go right ahead. Do you think you'll find something to write about?"

"Yes," I replied, "I think I will." . . .

Aid Given Children Honor Syria Temple And Dr. Lang

Love and care for children of misfortune brought today's awards of "Walter Winchell orchids" to Syria Shrine and to the Rev. David Lang, pastor of Shady Avenue Presbyterian Church.

The awards were the district members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association and the Sun-Telegraph's method of bestowing honors to those who voluntarily seek to assist others and perform good deeds. The honors are being given in observance of National F. T. D. week, two awards being made daily.

Syria Shrine won its recognition for the hospitalization it is giving to children needing medical care. They are crippled youngsters who are given a chance to recover from their afflictions. The orchid was sent to the Shriners' potentate, John G. Daub.

Hot breakfast every schoolday morning for the needy children of his district was one of the good deeds bringing honor to the Rev. Mr. Lang. Silently lending aid to individual cases and refusing his salary for three months to assist the church are among his good deeds.

Nominations for orchids are being asked from Sun-Telegraph leaders. This elaboration of the idea originated by Walter Winchell, feature columnist of the paper, provides an opportunity for honoring those who sacrifice for others. Send detailed information on candidates to the Orchid Editor, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Nominations close Thursday night.

HERRON SCORES TAX RULING

Commenting on a Mercer County court ruling that the Sharon Council erred in basing its tax rate on the percentage of taxes expected to be collected, President of Council John S. Herron said today it was "silly" to expect a city to set a tax millage without considering possible delinquency.

Judge J. A. McLaughry, of Mercer County, ruled in favor of Sharon taxpayers who brought suit to prevent the Sharon Council from setting the tax rate at 14 mills. The taxpayers furnished proof that the city government could be operated on a rate of 8 mills. Council claimed a rate of 12 to 14 mills was necessary because only about 45 per cent of the taxes would be collected.

In order to figure the income, Herron said, any city must determine as nearly as possible the number of persons who will not pay taxes and set its millage accordingly.

Pittsburgh's 1933 budget, Herron said, is based on an estimated tax collection of approximately 76 per cent. He estimated there is $10,000,000 in uncollected taxes on the city's books at present. This sum has accumulated in the years since the city was incorporated.

It was testified a defective drawhead caused the fatal mishap as Lewis was shifting coal cars. Mrs. Lewis was represented by H. Fred Mercer.

CONSERVATORS GET MORE POWERS

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—Broader powers by conservators operating state and national banks was granted today by Secretary Woodin in a regulation issued under the President's bank holiday proclamation.

Under the new regulation, a conservator will have the authority to determine exactly how the bank will operate and if he believes its condition warrants a withdrawal of a certain percentage of the deposits by the depositors he can order that permitted.

MORE AUTHIRITY

Thus, in a case of a closed bank if the conservator believes it could operate with a 15 per cent restriction on withdrawals he would have authority to permit such withdrawals subject only to the President's proclamation prohibiting withdrawals of gold and money for hoarding.

Treasury officials said that while the permission to open for limited banking functions lay in the Comptroller of the Currency with national banks and with state authorities in regadd to state banks that the recommendation of the conservator would be accepted and that official would have the broad authority to determine what restrictions the banks now closed would impose if they reopened under the new order.

PENAL STATUTES

Meanwhile, the Senate Banking Committee today asked Attorney General Cummings to report the penal statutes now applicable to officials, employes or appointees of the government and national banks with respect to administration of the banking laws.

The committee invited Secretary Woodin to appear Thursday to make recommendations for legislation and discuss conditions generally.

The penal statutes are to be used for information in considering future legislation.

BANKS GET BACK HALF BILLION

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—Federal Reserve banks gained $503,000,000 as a result of the ban on gold hoarding.

The time for returning the hoarded metal expired last night. Each of the 12 Reserve banks has been directed to turn into the Treasury names of those who have withdrawn large amounts of gold and failed to put it back.

What action the government will take against hoarders under the emergency banking law has not been announced.

HARRIMAN ILL, HEARING OFF

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP.)—Joseph W. Harriman, former chairman of the Harriman National Bank and Trust Company, was unable to be present at a scheduled hearing today on a warrant charging him with causing false entries to be made in the bank's books.

The hearing before a United States commissioner was postponed without date.

Harriman was reported to be suffering from hardening of the main artery. He was arrested in his bedroom two weeks ago after the bank he headed was placed in the hands of a conservator. He has since resigned his position with the bank, which he founded.

DETROIT, March 28.—(INS.)—Harry S. Toy, prosecutor of Wayne County, today prepared to investigate affairs of Detroit banking companies on evidence given him by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, famed "radio priest," of Royal Oak.

Toy conferred with Father Coughlin yesterday after the priest had stirred up a storm of controversy yith his radio sermon of Sunday afternoon. He charged that irregularities led to the closing of the First National and Guardian National banks. These two institutions, Detroit's only national banks, are in the hands of conservators.

Toy said:

"Father Coughlin gave us some valuable leads. There is enough to form a basis for investigation by my office."

"I like the plain TRUTH"

"I THINK there's something in most of us that responds to plain truth and is just as quick to resent being fooled. I guess that's why I continue to use Palmolive for my complexion. Any woman is smart enough to know that no soap can change the shape of her nose or give her that dazzling beauty of women more fortunate. The right soap can help you and me to make the most of what we have.

And somehow just knowing what Palmolive is made of gives me a lot of confidence. I don't like the idea of putting just anything on my face. I do like the honest, straightforward statement that a lot of olive oil goes into Palmolive. I like the effect on my skin—results I can see—not just imagine. Yes, I like the plain truth, and don't we all?"

*I also like the new prices on Palmolive—about half what we used to pay. That's very important nowadays.

What Max Hoefer says about Olive Oil—

"I know well what olive oil does to beautify the skin," says Max Hoefer, Chicago beauty specialist. "And I believe so firmly in Palmolive Soap because I know all this olive oil goes into every cake of Palmolive."

Now it costs less to keep that Schoolgirl Complexion

WORKERS RAP CAMP FEES ON FEDERAL JOB

Miss M. Emmelinne Pitt, commissioner of the Federal Department of Labor, has received affidavits and verbal reports charging unfair treatment of employes on the United States dam construction work at Aspinwall, from a special committee of the Allegheny County American Legion and others.

The reports, with other allegations prepared last week, will be laid before the War Department, which supervises dam construction.

The Legion committee which investigated charges made by workmen consisted of Ronald L. Thompson, chairman; Attorney H. Stewart Dunn, S. A. Waddell, district commander, and C. P. Grimm.

Charles Aguski, of 1611 Fifth avenue, and Edward L. Dill, of 632 Butler street, Etna, ex-service men, said in statements that they were hired through the Budd Davis Employment Agency, Second avenue, each paying an employment fee of $2. Dill said he worked from February 13 to March 16 and had left only enough to purchase a pair of shoes after paying commissary charges.

Aguski said that between February 8 and March 13 he received two pays of $3.09 and $4.60 after deduction of commissary camp charges. G. E. Riley, former foreman, said he and his entire crew were discharged without explanation.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About the Spleen

Recently I wrote about the spleen. I described this vital organ of the body and told how it becomes enlarged in certain inflammations and diseases. Reference was made to "Banti's disease," in which there are inflammation and enlargement of the spleen. I have received many inquiries concerning Banti's disease.

Dr. Copeland

As I write this article, I have before me a letter requesting information about "Gaucher's disease." This is a rare disease of the spleen, liver, lymph glands and bone marrow.

The sufferer shows a yellowish discoloration of the skin and eyeballs. He appears jaundiced. There is bleeding from the gums, lungs and intestinal tract. The liver and spleen gradually enlarge.

A characteristic sign of this disease is the ease with which black and blue marks appear on the skin. The slightest blow or pressure will result in a black and blue mark. The victim complains of pains in the bones and is very susceptible to fractures of the bones almost without external cause.

Gaucher's disease usually begins in childhood. It develops slowly and may not be noticed until the sufferer reaches an age between twenty-five and forty. Males are more susceptible to it than females. It is believed to be hereditary for it often runs in families.

At a recent medical conference this rare and unusual disease was discussed by several eminent physicians. Even now it is unfamiliar and for many years little was known concerning it.

It is now known that removal of the spleen should be performed as soon as the diagnosis of Gaucher's disease is made. The operation does not produce an absolute cure, but the progress of the disease is halted.

After the operation the patient is considerably improved. The anemia disappears and the blood begins to appear normal.

It is often difficult to make a diagnosis of Gaucher's disease. It should be suspected if any of the signs I have mentioned are present. The disease can be confirmed by careful study of the blood.

In this ailment the blood shows anemia, reduction in the number of white blood cells and a decrease in the number of blood "platelets," tiny cells found in the blood and believed to be substances that in some manner aid in the normal action of the red blood cells.

Fortunately, Gaucher's disease is a rare and unusual affliction of man. The cause has never been discovered. But scientists will not rest in their efforts to determine the underlying cause and to find a cure for this strange malady.

Answers to Health Queries

M. B. Q.—What would cause a sharp pain in the leg. It is not steady and seems to vary from a sticking sensation to a very painful one, causing the leg to jerk when standing. Is this neuritis? Would application of heat be of benefit? I am not ill otherwise, eating and sleeping normally—and walking several blocks to and from work every day. 2. Would it be advantageous of otherwise to take ——— once a week? I find that if I take a mild laxative once a week it keeps me in good condition.

A.—Neuritis or rheumatism may be causing the trouble. Find the underlying cause first of all. Application of heat might be very helpful meanwhile. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question. 2. Yes, this would probably be of general advantage. Proper diet would also help. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

ILLUSION:
A "strong man" once gave public performances in which he stopped a 9 lb. cannon ball shot from a fully charged cannon. The audience gasped when the gun flashed and the human Gibraltar stepped forward out of the smoke uninjured, with the 9 lb. shot in his hands.

EXPLANATION:
The trick lay in the way an assistant prepared the cannon for the performance. He used the regulation amount of powder and wadding, but placed the greater part of the charge of powder ahead of the shot. The cannon ball was propelled only by the small charge behind it which was just sufficient to lob the 9 lb. ball over to the strong man.

It's fun to be fooled—
...it's more fun to KNOW

A performance sometimes staged in cigarette advertising is the illusion that cigarettes are made easy on the throat by some special process of manufacture.

EXPLANATION: All cigarettes are made in almost exactly the same way. Manufacturing methods are standard and used by all. A cigarette is only as good as the tobaccos it contains.

It is a fact, well known by leaf tobacco experts, that Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand.

In costly tobaccos you will find mildness, good taste, throat-ease.

Smoke Camels critically, and give your taste a chance to appreciate the greater pleasure and satisfaction offered by the more expensive tobaccos. Other cigarettes, we believe, will taste flat and insipid to you forever after.

With only one intermission at the Pittsburgh opening last night of "Green Pastures" in the Nixon Theater, there wasn't so much foyer parading and chatting as usual.

I did have a glimpse in that brief interval of the Alan Magee Scaifes and the Dorwin Donnellys and Mrs. Blair Childs, Mrs. Charles Flaccus, La Salle Dorrance, Mrs. John W. Lawrence, Mrs. H. R. H. Hilliard and Mrs. George Deike and Mrs. George Deike, Jr.

Mrs. Scaife chose a frock of black satin with a cape of pink satin crossing in the back and ending in a twisted girdle, and a short strand of pearls as her only ornament. Mrs. Donnelly wore a dinner gown of black chiffon with long, full and flowing sleeves.

In Frock Of Satin

Mrs. Flaccus was in flax blue crepe, cut high in back and having a decorative slit to suggest decolletage. La Salle Dorrance chose red satin and Mrs. John W. Lawrence wore black satin. The W. Forman Bickels, the Edward W. Gwinners, the W. M. Farleys, Miss Eleanor Chalfant and others I recall seeing.

Working toward a redistribution of leisure that will liberate talents —a cultural individualism in which the essential achievement shall be of an esthetic nature is the goal of an individualistic society, according to Dr. Ralph E. Turner, of the University of Pittsburgh, who addressed the club yesterday morning. Discussing "Individualism and Culture," Dr. Turner said he spoke as "a social historian," one who is interested in the patterns of human life. Man is living today under such a pattern-individualism, Dr. Turner said, holding that it is not a state of decay or disintegration, but an aspect in a development that has been going on for seven centuries.

Its chief phases he outlined as humanism, Protestanism, capitalism, liberalism and "an ethical doctrine known as utilitrianism." This individualism has seven basic presumptions, he said — liberty, equality before the law, a career of talents (the right of the individual to choose his profession), faith in education, the morality of thrift, the idea of progress and a concept of refinement.

Simpler Education Seen By Dr. Rogers, Speaker For Sewickley Club

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Dr. Robert E. Rogers, of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, (you know—the man who gave that memorable advice to a graduating class about being snobbish) addressed the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday on "Our Children's Chances."

One thing Dr. Rogers thinks the present economic situation will do will be to simplify education. He believes that those studies which are rarely of practical value will be taken out of the curriculum and, in view of the added leisure which a six-day week and a four-hour day will bring, such courses as will make for happier, fuller, more creative living will be substituted.

Dr. Rogers declared the "gospel of American prosperity" had been taken as a sign that the Almighty was especially interested in this country, when as a matter of fact it has merely been the luckiest nation on earth. If it, a virgin continent, protected on both sides by oceans, had not been progressive and wealthy, it would have been only because its people were morons, he said.

Merely Lucky

The steady stream of immigrants "to do the dirty work" freed everybody else for "the higher brackets of experience." Now, he said, Americans will have to establish and stabilize themselves at a level not unlike but not quite as low as that of Europe. Life will not be as easy as formerly; there will not be as many opportunities nor as many luxuries. The present generation has had the easiest time getting on in the world, but at the sacrifice of old standards of competence; the need for professional people sent hordes of young people into colleges without regard for character training, long preparation, family background and that solid sense of something that can only be called civic responsibility.

The American shibboleth that you get a better job with an education is "on the smash;" great numbers of college graduates will find that they must be content with such modest positions as could have been filled without such long and costly preparation, he added.

Ideas Changed

Dr. Rogers recommended education as a good thing for its own sake, provided everybody understands it has nothing to do with making more money. He also suggested that colleges set up a standard so high and so professional that only a small group of people will enter and be entrusted with the professions of the country. He holds that people will be living increasingly in a chain store, a push-button civilization in which algebra and geometry have no part and in which men and women will need the ability to enjoy themselves instead of being passive recipients in a mechanized society. Most people today, he said, hate to be left alone with a book and conversation consists chiefly of "Oh yeah?" and "Oh, yeah."

WAXED MATERIALS APPEAR IN INTRIGUING NEW MODELS

IN THE midst of a season of dull-finish, chalk-like fabrics, materials that have not only a glossy surface but a waxy, brilliantly shining one are suddenly having their innings. Waxed satin, waxed mousseline and waxed lace are used to fashion many of the newest afternoon and evening dresses.

A DISTINGUISHING mark of the new dresses made in these waxed materials is that while many of them are in classic black, a large percentage are in rich dark clors. A gown of glossy wine red or brilliant purple in the midst of a group of dull-finish black or pastel frocks, stands out in startling effect.

THE OTHER dress is in black cire lace of a type that stands out stiff and full. Little round flower dots have been fagotted into an all-over pattern.

Miami Season Extended to Mid-April

MIAMI, Fla.—With the approach of what formerly has been regarded as the close of the Florida winter season, Col. Henry L. Doherty, noted engineer and scientist and president of the Florida Year-Round Clubs, moved this week a step nearer his goal of a Florida season without end and a sports and recreational program on a 12-month basis.

Having pioneered with success the idea of advancing the winter season by the formal opening in November of the Miami Biltmore Hotel, Col. Doherty this week announced the hotel will remain open until well into the middle of April, thereby more than doubling the length of the season for this hotel.

Outstanding on the week's calendar of events will be the Florida Year-Round Clubs golf championship opening on the links of the Miami Biltmore Club tomorrow. Closed for Year-Round Club members the tourney will be the occasion for a number of social festivities, including a dinner in the nineteenth hole of the Biltmore Club on the night following the final match.

Throughout the week art lovers have thronged the lounge of the Miami Biltmore Hotel to view the exhibit there under sponsorship of the Art Institute of Miami, which includes the works of many nationally known artists. Among artists who are showing are Henry Salem Hubbell, Denman Fink, Eva Hatfield Young Kennard, Howard Hilder, Alice Mumford Culin and Phineas Paist.

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barlo will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.

Drama League to Award Lane Thompson Memorial

A new prize, to be known as the Lane Thompson Memorial Prize, will be offered by the Pittsburgh Drama League during a week of exhibits in Kaufmann's auditorium preceding the annual amateur players' contest. The contest, which will take place in the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, is set for April 25-28 and the exhibit for the week of the seventeenth.

The new prize is an appreciation of the services of Lane Thompson, who until his death a year ago staged and lighted all the annual contests. It is offered for the best design or group of designs for stage decore in model form. In making the awards the judges will consider, appropriateness to the play; dramatic and esthetic effectiveness; practicability and craft skill.

A second prize, a copy of Lee Simons' new book, "The Stage Is Set," is offered by Kaufmann's. The next issue of the "Drama League Review," which is edited by Miss Helen St. Peter, will contain full information concerning the stage model contest.

If a Man Can't Run His Home He Shouldn't Have One

His wife wears trousers—and he thinks that's Front Page News!

It isn't. Wives had been wearing the trousers for millions of years before Marlene Dietrich donned her flannels, and the chances are that they'll be wearing them millions of years more.

But all of that's no comfort whatever to this "Distracted Husband." He doesn't care about other husbands' Mannish Mamas. He only wants to know how to control his own.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I have always read your column with great appreciation, and I hope you will be extremely frank with me, as you have been with other people in their time of need.

I married one of the sweetest girls in the world six months ago—and now she's gone completely masculine in her attire. She runs around from morning until night in trousers. After all, I didn't marry a husband; and because I won't take her out when she wears them, she goes out with other men.

I work in the office from morning till night, and haven't a chance to see her during the day; but I am completely aware, nevertheless, that she goes around with other men.

So, now that you understand the situation, should I let her go with other men, though I love her? Or should I tolerate the trousers? I appeal to you to advise me in this awful situation.

DISTRACTED HUSBAND.

LOSS AS HUSBANDS

So you want my advise, son? Well, you'll get it—but I warn you, you won't like it!

Why does your wife wear trousers?

Probably because she thinks someone in the family should wear 'em.

What do I mean by that nasty crack?

Just what you think I mean—that lads like you make lovely knick-knacks, but are a total loss as husbands.

Being a husband means more than mumbling a few words at an altar — and paying the rent. It means being the head of the house.

There's a reason why women want Strong Men for husbands —and why they feel abused and Act Up if they don't get them. For unless a man is a Strong Husband, he isn't a Strong Father. And Nature demands Strong Fathers for helpless children.

SELF-PITY

You claim that your wife is cheating you. Well, she feels that you have cheated her by pretending to have strength and control—which you haven't. And so she's getting even by wearing clothes that make you look silly—but which make her look even sillier, if she but knew it.

And what do you do? Why, you crawl off into a corner and weep big, wet tears of self-pity over yourself!

Stop it! Either act like a man, or quit blubbering because she won't treat you like one. You're getting what you've asked for. Nobody respects a crybaby.

Tell this woman that she'll either uphold the dignity and decency of your home, or you'll walk out on her. And then do it!

No, I'm not excusing your faithless wife. But I am understanding her—and so will every other woman.

Fay King Finds Two-Gun Film Hero Same as in Days Gone

WILLIAM S. HART HAS PUT ASIDE HIS GUN AND TAKEN A PEN IN HAND TO WRITE INTERESTING BOOKS
THE IDOL OF YOUNG AMERICA
FRITZ IS NOW MONARCH OF ALL HE SURVEYS AT HORSESHOE RANCH, NEWHALL, CALIFORNIA
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Had a nice visit with my old friend William S. Hart recently. He hasn't changed a bit.

He gossiped a lot about a famous movie star that is now fat as a butter ball, and loafs all day.

Yes, we were talking of his beloved horse that shared honors and world wide popularity with him in their inimitable pictures of the grand old West.

Fritz is old now. He has a special door in his stable that he can open and close himself, and roams at will over the wide acres of Horseshoe Ranch.

Bill Hart is busy writing books now.

Mail comes steadily. It makes him very happy to know he and Fritz are so fondly remembered—and missed!

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Hugh Grantland's Attitude Exasperates Madge

As Hugh paused after his revelation of Lee Chow's persistent watch of Charles Owen, I felt exasperatedly like reaching up and shaking him. It was not like him to be so prolix—his speech is usually a model of military brevity and I knew that he was talking as he did because of the penchant for slow and elaborate utterance which his Chinese friend has displayed upon several occasions. But I also was sure that a breath-taking disclosure was upon Hugh's lips, and I felt that I could not wait another second to hear it.

"With the aid of faithful henchmen," Hugh went on, "Lee Chow kept an unremitting watch over the room where Charles Owen was supposed to be lying ill.

"From the first, Lee was sure that some hocus-pocus was being practiced, yet when, by lavish bribery, he obtained a room next to Owen's, opening upon the same balcony, and, watching his chance, peered into the open window, himself unseen, he saw that the man upon the bed, apparently very ill, was either Charles Owen or a man as uncannily like him as a twin brother.

ANOTHER DISGUISE

"He did not relax his espionage, however, and he became convinced, first, that the physician in attendance upon Owen was an impostor whose beard and mustache and hair were false, but such clever imitations as to deceive almost anyone; second, that the pseudo physician was a man very like Owen in figure and physiognomy; third, that by a ruse older than Christendom, the two were exchanging personalities, the supposed physician, sans his false hirsute adornments, staying in the hotel room while the real Owen, behind the disguise of beard, mustache and false hair, going where he pleased.

"Of course Lee Chow had put a trailer upon the physician, and he traced him to one of those apartment buildings that have entrances upon two streets. It was swift and clever work, his discovery that two apparently separate apartments in an angle of the building, whose entrances were upon separate corridors, had a connecting door. The physician occupied one apartment, and an old lame man, apparently a Russian emigre, with grey moustachios and pointed beard occupied the other. That this man was simply Owen in another disguise, was the next discovery made by Lee Chow, but it was not until yesterday that he was able to track Owen up in this direction. The trail was so hot that Lee Chow did not dare to leave it even to let me know where he was, and of course, after that message from the Chinese, I thought that they must have captured him."

TREATED LIKE CHILD

Would he never get to the point? My frayed nerves shrieked the question as Hugh again paused. It was all very well, I told myself, for Hugh to defer to his friend's liking for slow and elaborate recital. It was another to spin this tale out to such tenuous filaments.

With a sudden recklessness, I put a question.

"Hush!" Hugh commanded, and my father's low, warning "Careful!" sounded in the same breath. Curiously enough, I found myself abashed by my father's rebuke, but angry at Hugh's, although I richly deserved both, for my excited pique had led me to raise my voice, unwittingly, but none the less dangerously. An instant later, I was raging at myself, at the humiliating knowledge that in these minutes of stress I could take "time off" to be chagrined because, for the first time since our war work together, Hugh was not only subordinating all thought of me to the exigencies of the task before us, but was treating me as if I were a troublesome child.

The next few seconds brought me further proof of my exile from Hugh's consideration, for he followed up his "Hush!" with an icy query as deserved as it was crushing.

"Do you think you will be able to restrain your excitement and keep your voice lowered if I answer your question?" he asked.

Even as I struggled for an air of indifference, of casualness, on the answer I must give him, there drifted across my mind an odd but intriguing comment upon Hugh's manner.

His was exactly the sort of irritation Dick might display toward me!

Hints for the Household

If a hot water bottle is placed once a week in the linen cupboard it will keep the contents aired.

If you dry a strip of orange peel and, when well dried, place this in the tin or tea caddy where you keep your tea, a very pleasant flavor is given to the tea. Tangerine oranges are the best to use and, after putting the strip with the tea, the lid should be kept on for at least a week before use.

To repair evening shoes for those who dance much in winter and find toes get shabby, get a stick of sealing wax to match the color, break this up and put in a bottle with enough methylated spirit to cover, and when dissolved apply a little to the worn parts with a small brush. Gold or silver shoes are easily mended thus.

Raisins soaked overnight make a good children's breakfast, with brown bread and butter for a change.

When cutting cream pies dip the knife in warm water and none of the filling will stick to the knife.

Contract Bridge -:-

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Selecting a Lead

The choice of the "killing" lead against a contract which apparently should not have been reached is one of the most difficult tasks faced by a Bridge player. In the recent Eastern Tournament, playing in a team-of-four game, Mr. Louis H. Watson was fortunate enough to make a contract with two suits unstopped, because the player charged with the burden of making the Opening lead was unable to choose the right suit.

East, Dealer.
East-West vulnerable.

	Mr. Watson ♠ Q 10 9 8 ♡ A K 5 ◇ J 7 ♣ K 6 4 2
♠ 3 2 ♡ J 3 2 ◇ A Q 4 3 2 ♣ Q 5 3	North West East South	♠ A K J 7 6 ♡ 7 6 ◇ K 10 8 6 ♣ 9 7
	♠ 5 4 ♡ Q 10 9 8 4 ◇ 9 5 ♣ A J 10 8

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	2 ♡	Pass	2 N T (1)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Very much of a gamble. The spade holding may well prove worthless if West can obtain the lead, and the diamond suit, of course, is entirely unprotected. However, Mr. Watson placed his partner with some strength, either in diamonds or clubs, on the basis of his Overcall with a suit as weak as the heart suit obviously was.

East studied long before making his Opening lead. He finally discarded his first idea of laying down the King of spades, because he feared that his partner might hold only a singleton in the suit and thus be unable to lead it if and when he obtained the lead. He next considered the possibility of a diamond lead from his tenace in that suit. This he also discarded, as he felt the only card in that suit that would be of benefit to him in his partner's hand would be the Ace. Finally the worst possible selection was made as the cards were distributed; namely, the club 9. This lead resulted in Mr. Watson taking 4 club tricks and 5 heart tricks before relinquishing the lead. It was, of course, a victory for his team, as the opposing players at the other table played a contract of three hearts, which was defeated 1 trick, due to inability to locate the proper finesse in the club suit.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Does the following hand warrant any response to an Opening bid of one heart, no intervening bid?

♠ Q 9 6 4 ♡ J 6 3 ◇ K 10 5 ♣ 9 7 2

Answer: Yes—one notrump. The minimum requirement for a one notrump response has been reduced to an Ace plus a guarded Queen or 1 plus honor-tricks. This hand contains 1 honor-trick and intermediates including a fit in partner's suit.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Correct Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—Three years ago, when my baby was born, an unmarried woman, about 40 years of age, who works with my husband, sent me a beautiful gift. She had then been living with an uncle. A month ago she moved into her own apartment. I would like to give this woman a pair of hand-embroidered pillow cases. Do you think it would be right?

2—Please tell me how to write a letter when I send the gift?

E.

1—This is a delightful gift, and I am sure that this kind friend would be happy over the fact that you are planning to make her such a charmingly-planned gift.

2—Perhaps a note of this kind would appeal to you:

Dear Miss Graham:

I am so delighted about the news that you have started a home of your own, and I want you to know how deeply I hope that you will be very happy in this new home of yours. It's a great adventure, this planning of a corner that we can call our own, and I am sure that your home will be a very artistic and charming one.

I'd like to have a tiny share in your plans for it, and so I am taking the liberty of sending with this note a small "housewarming gift." I want you to know that this gift comes with all best wishes to you.

Very sincerely yours,

Dance Expenses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Our club is having a private dance in a few weeks in a well-known hotel. The girls are buying the tickets, which include the cover charge. However, our problem is: do we or do we not pay the food bill and tip the waiters? Or is that part up to our escorts? We are exceedingly puzzled and would appreciate your help.

WONDERING EMMA.

The committee planning the dance should plan to make the price of the tickets include the supper-cost as well as the cover charge. It is an awkward plan to leave this supper charge for the guests to pay. Each girl should then buy her two tickets, one for herself and one for the partner whom she is inviting.

Lencher Appointment Procedure Unusual

—By MARK SHIELDS—

HARRISBURG, March 28.—Last night Attorney Benjamin Lencher was appointed a judge of the County Court of Allegheny County by Gov. Pinchot.

Mr. Shields

And that was all right, and probably a good break for the county. The information was made available to all, and I assume no copyright will be imposed.

That is, the information was available to all but the Governor's office, for the appointment was made public, not by Mr. Pinchot, the Governor of the commonwealth, but by Common Pleas Court Judge Ralph H. Smith, recently appointed by the Governor.

The manner of this appointment was one of the most unusual incidents in the history of executive appointments in Pennsylvania.

Here in Harrisburg there was much comment over the procedure. The executive offices were in the dark. The news was available only at the executive mansion and through Judge Smith in Pittsburgh. The latter wired Mr. Pinchot that he had issued a statement to Pittsburgh newspapers, presumably a statement by Mr. Pinchot, and that the reaction had been satisfactory.

County Leaders At Capital Approve

This evidence of precipitate perspicacity by the young jurist who has become the chief patronage dispenser of Allegheny County augurs well for his ability to suddenly clarify any knotty judicial problem. And his estimate was true, so far as Allegheny County politicians in Harrisburg are concerned.

Senator Frank J. Harris approved. So did Senator James J. Coyne, as well as Senator William D. Mansfield and Representative John D. Scorza, nephew of John Verona, the boss of the Hill District.

Yesterday afternoon it had been said at the executive offices at the capital that no appointment would be made during the day. The question has been a daily one with newspapermen in the past 10 days. Since it became assured that the political and legislative wheels were grinding to a decision.

It has become customary for newspapermen to take the assertions from the executive offices at face value, and not bother Mr. Pinchot with such matters. It has been assumed that his secretaries knew what they were talking about.

Quick Action Was Needed, Says Pinchot

But not this time. When the word trickled back to Harrisburg that Judge Smith had notified Pittsburgh of the appointment made by Mr. Pinchot, the Governor was called at the executive mansion. He explained the confusion on the basis of the necessity for sudden action.

Things had moved swiftly yesterday, he said, and he was compelled to act with celerity. Just what these things were was not explained. It is understood, however, that in the appointment was bound up an agreement by some members of the Legislature who have not played ball on the Pinchot nine to go along with the executive's program of relief legislation.

The appointment would have been made last week had the Governor been given assurance of these votes.

The circuitous method of the Lencher appointment cannot detract from the sympathetic manner it is being received, except within the ranks of the higher independent circles, including some lawyers who thought their patriotic devotion to the Pinchot cause should pay dividends larger than they have received up to now.

Lencher Expected To Aid Smith at Polls

Mr. Lencher has never been affiliated with the Pinchot political adventure. He has been consistently on the other side, but always on principle, and never with any degree of subterfuge or indirection.

The appointment of Mr. Lencher has been promoted by Judge Smith for some time. In addition to giving to the county court a young jurist enjoying universal respect, Mr. Lencher is expected to further the campaign for election of Judge Smith in the September primaries.

He will bring to Mr. Smith the support of organization factions which have followed the newest Judge in the past. He will bring also the assistance of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, who has been a bitter foe of Judge Smith. Additionally, he will bring into the Smith campaign the co-operation of Judge Harry Rowand, who will be a candidate for re-election.

Judge Smith and Judge Rowand will team on the same ticket, or slate, the only coalition so far arranged in the race for the three places to be filled on Common Pleas Court bench this year.

Furthermore, the Governor is assuming that Judge Lencher will be able to win election, a consideration which bulks large in all Pinchot judicial appointments.

At any rate, it was predicted in this column last week that Mr. Lencher would be appointed. It was explained that the indorsements he had received from worth-while lawyers in Pittsburgh were among the best any candidate ever had received. So everything must be all right.

BETTER STATE RELIEF WORK PROMISED

Pledges Given When Jobless Delegation Invades Meeting

Needy of Allegheny County today were waiting for state leaders to make good promises of relief changes and improvements given at the Regional Conference on Unemployment Relief at the Hotel Schenley.

The promises were the result of appearance of members of unemployed councils, Communists, who pushed their way into the hotel to confer for three hours yesterday with W. B. Rodgers, executive director of the State Emergency Relief Board.

PROMISES 'NEW DEAL'

Patiently hearing the men, representatives of many faiths and creeds, black and white, native and foreign-born, as they told how the heel of the depression threatens their American right to live, Rodgers promised:

"A new deal, and a new deck, too, if necessary, and the cards won't be stacked, either."

His petitioners cheered a man who said:

"All right, we'll go back home and wait. But all the other new deals have given us is clubs and black jacks."

CHANGES PLEDGED

Rodgers promised that representatives of coal companies would be removed from the Westmoreland County relief board, that milk distribution will be radically revised, medicine and doctors will be available to the sick, that he will take up the matter of having the Community Councils and the Unemployed Citizens League represented in administration of relief.

Asked what his policy would be if coal miners strike, Rodgers said:

"From conditions as I know them in the mines of this state, immediately after you strike you'll go on direct relief."

Corporation relief will be inquired into, he said; Salvation Army administration of relief in Duquesne will be investigated as will alleged payment of coal miners in relief food orders when they drew empty pay envelopes after deductions for rent and light and other necessities, sometimes including "church."

RAPS PINCHOT

Only in one conference during the afternoon was a Communist interrupted. He was Fred Kearns, of Wilkinsburg, who said:

"Commissaries pay from 35 to 45 cents a week in food.

"Does Mr. Pinchot, who is trying to use the community markets as a stepping stone in politics, live on 45 cents a week?

"It's very hard to leave the father of the plan out of a discussion of it."

Kearns was asked to eliminate personalities from his talk.

The one-day conference saw predictions that a large project to take care of the transient and homeless unemployed will be launched by the state. First, however, will come a census of the numbers in Pennsylvania, with all agencies aiding the transients throughout the state making a check on the same night.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 28. Papers all state Hitler is trying to copy Mussolini. Looks to me like its the Klu Klux that he is copying. He don't want to be Emperor, he wants to be kleagle. But ain't it a relief to have a government over here that is going to let 'em solve their own troubles over there. I see where he is kinder toning down on his racial and religious hatreds. If he does, that guy is liable to come through at that. You know nobody thought the Democrats could do anything either, when our old form of government was overthrown last fall. But the Democrats surprised not only the world, but themselves, and now every country is trying to borrow a good Democrat to come and put 'em on their feet. Mexico has already made me an offer.

Yours, WILL.

NEW OPERATION FACES DAVIS

Senator James J. Davis, convalescing in South Side Hospital from an appendicitis operation, may have to undergo another one, his physician, Dr. J. W. Shirer, revealed today.

The senator is suffering from an abdominal lesion and probably ulcers, Dr. Shirer declared. His system also reveals a diabetic condition, he said.

The abdonimal condition was revealed in an X-ray examination which the senator has been undergoing this week. The X-rays, according to Dr. Shirer, will be completed this week.

Dr. Shirer said his patient had been placed on a strict diet. Because of the conflict of the diets necessary to diabetes and ulcers, Senator Davis has not been able to take a great deal of nourishment and is in a very weakened condition, Dr. Shirer said.

He will not be able to leave the hospital this week, as predicted earlier.

WOULD BE PART OF ROOSEVELT PROGRAM

Reservoir in Lincoln District, Sanitation Projects Pushed

A program of reservoir, water line and sewer construction involving an expenditure of $4,000,000, all in the city of Pittsburgh, has been forwarded for consideration to the Federal authorities in Washington by the city Department of Public Works.

This action was taken by Director Edward G. Lang in response to a request from Chief Engineer W. L. Stevenson, of the Pennsylvania State Health Department.

According to word from Harrisburg, the projects are to be considered as a part of President Roosevelt's public works program. Stevenson has gone to Washington to confer regarding similar improvements in the entire state, which total $56,000,000.

INCLUDES RESERVOIR

All projects on which the government has asked the authorities here to report deal with the construction connected with sanitation, needed by the community but for which local funds may not now be available.

The $4,000,000 proposed expenditure here is figured on contract prices. Hundreds of men would be put to work in various sections of the city as almost every locality is included in the plan.

HALF FOR LABOR

Chief City Engineer Charles M. Reppert, under whose direction the plans are being prepared, said:

"About 50 per cent of the cost would go to direct labor."

The construction of a large new reservoir in the Lincoln district would fill a need which has long existed in Pittsburgh's water system, according to officials of the Bureau of Water. It would be constructed on high land near the Lincoln avenuep umping station.

The reservoir itself would cost $550,000, including the purchase of the land. A supply main to the Squirrel Hill district which would considerably improve pressure there would mean an expenditure of $360,000, and a line from the Brilliant pumping station to the new reservoir another $300,000. Additional pumps are estimated at $50,000.

NEW MAINS PLANNED

Other water line construction totaling $800,000 includes a new main from Brilliant station to Highland reservoir No. 2 at a cost of $200,000, a new main in Smallmann street $150,000, and the replacement of four-inch line throughout the city at a cost of $200,000. The latter size of pipe has been held partially responsible for low pressure in certain sections.

Other pipe line improvements are scheduled at Main and Alexander streets, West End; Boundary street, Hazelwood, and Herron Hill.

Eight sewer projects on which contract plans are for the most part completed are Four Mile Run, Hillsboro street, North Braddock avenue, Courtland street, Castlegate street, Albree way and new outlets at Fifty-fifth and Fifty-seventh streets. The total cost of these is estimated at $495,000.

SURVEYS MADE

General plans and surveys have been completed for an additional 14 projects the total estimated cost of which is $1,500,000.

The largest of these are the Thirty-third street drainage basin, to cost $750,000, the Negley Run drainage basin, to cost $340,000, and the former borough of Hays sewer system, to cost $250,000.

Other sewer projects include South Twenty-third and Twenty-fourth street, Southern avenue, Connecticut street and Ordinance avenue, Chelton avenue, Westmont street, Goff street, Hinote way, Brook street and Soho district.

WOULD AVERT FLOODS

A number of the projects would increase the size of present storm sewers, removing the danger of flood waters after torrential rains, which in the past have caused serious property damage.

It is generally expected that if the federal government provides funds the work will be launched soon, that it will be done by contract, using machines as well as men. The report is in the hands of R. E. Tarbett, sanitary engineer of the Public Health Service, in Washington.

Fewest Words Seem to Bring Most Results

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

Congress is rather upset because the President proved you can pass bills without talking.

Anytime a politician can get a toe-hold on a small subject he nurses it along into a national hook-up.

But, five important bills have been validated without a murmur and in ghostly silence. That's tough on the lad who considers it his duty to talk first and keep his powder dry second.

The lawmakers are now afraid that they may be dismissed from school for whispering in class.

We agree with Mr. Roosevelt on the excess mumbling. But he should ease up a little and at least allow the happy laughter of childhood to ring through the legislative halls.

2 Charged With Murder In 'Jig Saw' Killing

Two men were committed to jail by the Coroner today on a murder charge to await an inquest into the slaying of Joseph Szparowski, 45, of 142 Forty-sixth street, whose battered body was found in a field at Blawmox March 19.

They are Edward Worcheck, 28, and Adam Jahoski, 40, both of Blawnox. Worcheck admitted, county detectives said, that he had hit Szparowski with a brick after he had interfered with Mary Pacewcez, who was working a jig-saw puzzdle during a party at the home of John Kutchinoski, in Blawnox. Jahoski aided in getting Szparowski out of the house, he is said to have confessed.

Detectives Harry Barker and John Duderstadt said they learned Miss Pacewcez was so absorbed in the puzzle she didn't know anything about the trouble. Nearly everyone had been drinking, the detectives said they learned.

Kutchinoski, whose statement yesterday led to arrest of the two accused men, was discharged.

REPEALER GOES TO PINCHOT; VETO SEEN

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(AP.)—Prohibition repeal moved forward in the Legislature last night as the Senate concurred in House amendments to the bill which provides for a convention to consider revocation of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The bill goes to the Governor and dry leaders are predicting that he will veto it.

Both chambers had hung out the figurative "S R O" signs as the biggest crowd of the session heard 48 of the 50 Senators vote final approval of the McClure convention measure.

The McClure bill, as amended, provides for election of 51 delegates, 34 by congressional districts and 17 at-large at the November election. These delegates, pledged before election either for or against repeal, will meet 28 days after the election to approve or reject the twenty-first amendment to the national constitution. This is the amendment that repeals and takes the place of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Presbyterians Oppose Beer, Repeal Program

Presbyterian ministers of Allegheny county representing a membership of 64,000 are on record as opposed to sale of beer in groceries and restaurants and will fight to prevent election of delegates at large to the repeal convention.

At a meeting yesterday the ministers sent a telegram to Gov. Pinchot urging the election of convention delegates by legislative districts rather than at large, or by Congressional districts as proposed in the McClure bill.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Shelton, spokesman for the ministerial association, said:

"We drys want every possible limitation placed on the sale of liquor. We don't want young women in restaurants to serve as barmaids. Nor do we want beer sold near churches and school or in groceries.

"We would like some regulation such as the Brooks law administered by a non-partisan liquor traffic board, altogether divorced from politics.

"Sale of beer in grocery stores is particularly objectionable. If it is permitted, mothers will be buying beer when they should be buying bread for their children."

HOUSE DEFEATS TEACHERS' PAY SLASH BILL

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(AP.)—The Legislature today stands amid the wreckage of its emergency school program.

The administration-organization Republican plan to slash $5,200,000 from the education budget collapsed suddenly in a midnight session. Its staunchest advocate, Representative Thomas B. Wilson, of McKean, interpreted the 88-113 defeat of one of the six bills as ending a fight which began almost with the start of the session.

The bill defeated was one permitting 10 per cent reductions in teachers' salaries and allowing poorer districts to make further reductions.

SELECTED FOR TEST

It was not opposed by all of the groups fighting the measures reducing state payments to districts. Its sponsor termed it the strongest of the group and selected it for a test.

Wilson, ill and barely able to speak, took little part in the debate. Other Republican organization leaders bore the brunt of defending the bill. Representative Wilson G. Sarig, Democratic floor leader and Berks County schoolmaster, was one of the principal opponents.

On the vote, the Democrats who have favored increased subsidies for school purposes, were practically unanimous against the bill. Administration and organization Republicans broke ranks to join them and defeat the bill.

ALLEGHENY VOTE

The Allegheny County roll call was:

For the bill—Dwyer, Metzler, Rectenwald, Ruby and Steedle.

The other five bills, three of which reduce state payments for teachers' salaries, vocational education, transportation and closed schools, were placed on the postponed calendar.

Wilson insists they are "dead," sharing the grave of the proposed school code they were drafted to supplant. With them die proposals for eliminating districts of less than 1,000 population and cutting salaries of county and assistant superintendents.

$5,200,000 BOOST

Without the subsidy cuts, Wilson said the Legislature must provide $58,200,000 for educational purposes instead of $53,000,000 recommended by Gov. Pinchot and accepted by the Republican organization. The effect is to add the $5,200,000 difference to the amount which is to be raised for general state expenses and unemployment relief.

In the debate, opponents of the Wilson bill charged it provided greater cuts for teachers than are contemplated for state employes. Representative Hiram G. Andrews, of Cambria, said he opposed it while $725,000 is being spent for salaries and expenses of traveling jurists whom he described as "Gypsy judges." Others criticized the salary system generally, saying it is a "disgrace" to pay teachers as little as $800 a year and then cut their salaries 10 per cent.

Supporters of the measure pictured it as a part of a general economy program.

Women to Crash Hotel Bars in Chicago

CHICAGO, March 28.—(AP.)—Women are to be admitted to the bars of most of the city's hotels.

James X. Galbaugh, manager of one hotel whose bar was "for men only" in preprohibition days, said:

"What can we do about it? If the ladies insist on coming in—and I suppose they will—we can't put them out."

COYNE TAX CUT BILL OFFERED

HARRISBURG, March 28.—Judges of Common Pleas Court would be empowered to appoint a commission of fiscal control over the budget of every taxing body in Allegheny County through the terms of a bill introduced last night by Senator James J. Coyne.

The bill grows out of the hearings held by the Coyne committee on costs of government in Allegheny County, and is recommended by the Community Research Bureau of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board.

The commission would be created only through referendum of the voters, who could have the question put by the County Commissioners on petition of 1 per cent of the electorate.

If created, the Commission would be to some degree advisory, but on the petition of citizens of any taxing district, city, county or school, could review budgets, establish new levels of expenditure, and reduce tax levies.

SUNDAY SPORTS BILL REVISED FOR HOME RULE

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(AP.)—Sunday sports scored again last night as the Senate-House conference committee agreed on a report returning the essential features of the House Schwartz bill and eliminated Senate provisions for a state-wide referendum.

The conference bill to be submitted to both branches provides for simultaneous local referenda at the November election.

In this manner, each municipality will determine for itself whether the local governing bodies will be permitted to enact ordinances licensing Sunday sports.

The conference agreement also discards the Senate proposal to restrict the referenda to baseball and football exclusively.

The new bill, upon which both branches must vote before it goes to Gov. Pinchot, represents important concessions by Senator John J. McClure, Delaware, one of the Senate conferees. His agreement to the report was accepted by most supporters of blue law changes as indication that the Senate will pass the revised measure.

Milk Truck Rushes Injured to Hospital

TRENTON, N. J., March 28.—(AP.)—Unloading his milk truck to convert it into a makeshift ambulance, a dairy employe rushed eight victims of a Brunswick pike automobile accident to McKinley Hospital this morning. Several sustained serious injuries.

The milk truck driver, Hartwell Smith, witnessed the collision of two cars as the driver of one vehicle swerved sharply to the left when he realized a heavy truck was just ahead.

2 MILLION AID BILL IN SENATE

HARRISBURG, March 28.—Funds to continue the state's unemployment relief program were expected to be provided this week as the Senate today passed on second reading the Talbot bill appropriating $2,000,000 for April and May.

The Talbot bill was passed finally by the House last night and will come up for final action in the Senate tomorrow.

The House passed the bill unanimously after a brief debate in which Speaker Talbot made his first speech of the session.

It was the first final vote in either branch of the Assembly on relief legislation.

Immediate plans were made to re-report the original $22,000,000 Talbot bill, amended to appropriate $20,000,000 for relief during the biennium starting June 1.

PINCHOT FLAYS BANKS ON CODE

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, lauding Congress for what it has accomplished in three weeks, last night said the Pennsylvania Legislature has produced "nothing at all" in the way of "real results" in 12 weeks. He said:

"There is a strong movement, in which many prominent bankers are said to be implicated, to prevent any action on the new banking code at this session of the Legislature."

"That would mean to let the interests of depositors go unprotected for the next two years. And on what ground? On the ground that depositors might be protected too much at the expense of bankers' profits if action is taken now. Can you beat it?"

TAX RELIEF CRY AT CAPITOL

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(AP.)—Headed by a band, thousands of Pennsylvania taxpayers, many of them farmers and small home owners, today made a spectacular appeal for relief.

Gathered from all sections of the state, the delegations assembled in the rotunda of the Capitol after lunching in their automobiles parked on the grounds of the State House. Their leaders asked economy in government and reduced real estate taxes.

Gov. Pinchot and other state officials as well as legislative leaders were to address the visitors this afternoon.

Leaders of the Pennsylvania Taxpayers' Association, the Tax Justice League and a score of affiliated groups, said more than 5,000 persons will attend the state convention and demonstration.

EIGHT BREWERY FIRMS ELIGIBLE

Herman P. Locker, inspector in charge of the Pittsburgh office of the United States Bureau of Alcohol, House Building, announced today that eight brewing companies in Western Pennsylvania, by holding federal permits to manufacture and sell cereal beverages, are eligible for temporary permits to make, bottle and store 3.2 per cent beer.

Before the new beer regulations go into effect April 7 these manufacturers must obtain permanent permits to sell the new beer, he said.

Those announced as eligible for temporary permits are the Pittsburgh Brewing Company and Independent Brewing Company, of this city; Fort Pitt Brewing Company, of Sharpsburg; Brownsville Brewing Company, Brownsville; Penner Brewing Company, Johnstown; DuBois Brewing Company, DuBois; Erie Brewing Company, Erie, and the Victor Brewing Company, Jeannette. Other applications for temporary permits are pending, Inspector Locker said.

New York's G.O.P. Fights Beer Bill

ALBANY, March 28.—(INS.)—Republican lawmakers voted unanimously today to scrap Gov. Herbert H. Lehman's bill providing for drastic state control of beer and to substitute a "more moral" measure of their own.

At the same time the Democrats continued a disorganized attack on the Governor's bill and won an amendment removing the legal barrier to the return of the bar. The Governor consented to an amendment to his bill giving the state control board discretion in the matter.

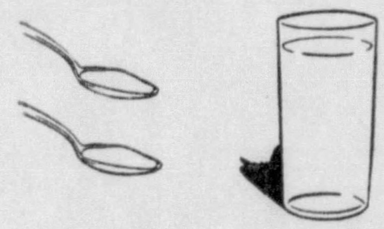
How You Can Easily Correct It

Almost Instant Relief This Way



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Democrats Get Jobs Here, G. O. P. Ignored

HARRISBURG, March 28.—If you want to be confirmed to public office by this Legislature you must be a Democrat.

That seems to be the procedure in view of the action of the Senate last night in confirming, as members of the Pittsburgh Registration Commission, Mrs. J. Wood Clark and John McCarthy, Democrats. They were nominated last week by Gov. Pinchot in a legislative deal with Joseph F. Guffey, Roosevelt leader in Pennsylvania.

At the same time the Senate Committee on Executive Nominations reported favorably the names of Mrs. Clark and McCarthy, it ignored John K. Morrow, chairman of the commission, and Mrs. Sarah Braun, the fourth member.

Both are Republicans and have been on the board for nearly two years.

Senator James J. Coyne is understood to have had some influence on the action last night of the committee, of which Senator Chauncey W. Parkinson, of Greene County, a strong Republican organization man, is the chairman.

DEATH SUSPECT FIGHTS AGAINST DOOM IN CHAIR

Fighting to escape the electric chair, Louis Scoratow, 23, former McKeesport youth, was expected to take the witness stand to defend himself against a charge of murder in Criminal Court late today.

Scoratow is charged by the state with being the trigger man in the slaying of William Weddell, shot in an attempted holdup of his barbecue stand in Long Run road, near McKeesport, February 4, 1930.

TELL OF FIGHT

Scaratow's case was helped in the morning session when Morris Kaminski, a McKeesport dry cleaner, testified that Scoratow and Louis Zemler, members of the robbing gang, told him at the time that Frank Baskay did the shooting.

The men borrowed Kaminski's car the evening of the shooting, the cleaner testified, returning at 3 a. m. to tell him of a "tough fight" they had in which "one of the fellows got tough" and "had to be plugged."

Two witnesses have identified Scoratow before the jury in Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff's court as the member of the robber trio who did the shooting. One was Charles Weddell, brother of the slain man, who said Scoratow shot him through the arm and fatally shot his brother. Carl Wesser, a customer at the barbecue, also identified Scoratow.

BROUGHT FROM WEST

Louis Zemler, alleged lookout for the robbers, who remained in a car with the engine running, is serving life imprisonment for the murder. He was captured soon after the slaying, but Scoratow and Baskay escaped. All three were indicted and police have kept up a constant watch for the fugitives.

Recently Scoratow, who had been in Mexico, visited a race track at San Diego, Cal., where he was arrested for vagrancy and recognized as the man wanted here.

JAPS BOMB U. S. MISSIONARY

PEIPING, China, March 28.—(AP.)—The Japanese Charge D'Affaires here today received a communication from Nelson T. Johnson, United States Minister, regarding the bombing March 24 by Japanese airplanes of Taitowying, 10 miles south of the Great Wall and 35 miles west of Shanhaikwan.

A dispatch released previously by the American legation said slight damage had been caused to the residence of Charles Oscar Kautte, an American missionary, and to the Church of the Brethren Mission and that nine Chinese civilians had been killed.

The Japanese official said he would immediately bring the matter to the attention of the commander of the Japanese forces in Northern China.

GAS DEAL HELD TRUST MOVE

WASHINGTON, March 28.—(AP.)—G. A. Stephens, a commission economist, testified to the Federal Trade Commission today there were "strong indications" that the Columbia Gas and Electric Corporation had acquired the American Fuel and Power Company to eliminate potential competitors for distribution of gas to Northern Ohio and Detroit, Mich., areas.

The Columbia, one of the utilities of the J. P. Morgan & Co. group, acquired the American Fuel and Power in October, 1930, and along with it, the American's subsidiaries, the Inland Gas Corporation—organized in 1927—and the Kentucky Fuel Gas Corporation—organized in 1928.

Stephens pointed out testimony at a previous hearing by Edward Reynolds, Jr., vice president of the Columbia, that through the acquisition in 1930 his company had sought to acquire additional reserves of gas in the Kentucky fields with a possible view of serving cities on the eastern seaboard.

BANK ROBBERS GET $15,000

GALLIPOLIS, O., March 28.—(AP.)—Three robbers obtained between $15,000 and $25,000 in cash at the First National Bank here today after holding officials and customers at bay with guns and then locking them in a vault.

It was the first bank robbery in Gallipolis' history.

The trio brandishing revolvers as they entered, forced the bank staff and several patrons into a vault.

They then scooped up all cash and escaped in an automobile.

ERIE OFFERED GAS RATE CUT

HARRISBURG, March 28.—(INS.)—The Pennsylvania Gas Company reached an agreement with the Public Service Commission today to revise its rate schedules so that annual savings of $60,000 would result to consumers. Th proposition, however, must be ratified by the Councils of Erie, Corry and Warren before being finally approved by the Commission.

Edward M. Murphy, City Solicitor of Erier, was not wholly in accord with the proposals. He said the proposed new rate schedules would result in decreases only to large consumers and throw a heavier burden on the small or private consumers.

"Beech-Nut Coffee is always the same—fresh and delicious"

Mrs. Joseph Dilworth

MRS. JOSEPH DILWORTH

Mrs. Dilworth is active in the work of the Welfare Fund and other charitable organizations, and is the wife of a former executive of the Dilworth-Porter Steel Company who now serves on the Industrial Rehabilitation Committee. The photograph of Mrs. Dilworth and her nine-year-old daughter, Bettina, was taken in her beautiful old home on Aylesboro Avenue.

Have you, like Mrs. Dilworth, been dissatisfied with the coffee you are using? Have you, too, tried many brands in an almost hopeless search for one coffee that would be always the same, always fresh, always delicious?

Then read what Mrs. Dilworth has to say on the subject of Beech-Nut. "I find that most women are alike in their quest for a better cup of coffee, and we try and try until we finally find what we want. Beech-Nut Coffee, I am sure, will end the search once it is used. It is always the same — fresh and delicious."

It is not strange that Mrs. Dilworth writes, "It affords me great pleasure to state that Beech-Nut Coffee is by far the best we have ever used." Discriminating women everywhere feel the same. You will also, after your first cup of Beech-Nut. Then you'll agree with Mrs. Dilworth that "it makes such a delicious cup of coffee that its superior quality is immediately apparent."

Coffee ALWAYS at its best

Only those who use Beech-Nut Coffee regularly can appreciate the great difference between this rare flavor from tropic heights and just coffee.

So we thank you, Mrs. Dilworth, for helping us acquaint the housewives of Pittsburgh with the superior quality of Beech-Nut Coffee.

Yet in spite of the extra trouble and expense it takes to get such coffee, Beech-Nut brings this delicious mountain coffee to you for but little more than you pay for ordinary coffees—it is a luxury in flavor, but no luxury in price.

And remember, the full fresh flavor of Beech-Nut Coffee is sealed in high vacuum tins a few minutes after it leaves the roasting oven. Its flavor and its freshness are always certain—it is coffee always at its best.

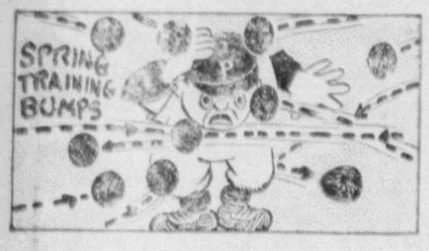
PIRATES FACE SEATTLE AT SANTA BARBARA TODAY



SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

TWENTY — TUESDAY, MARCH 28, 1933 — BEST IN PITTSBURGH

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Schedule Bue Handicap. May Block Flying Start. Dean Bearing Out Dope.

Hoodoo Sticks to Peel. Travels of Rosenbloom. Athletes as Aviators.

ON ROAD IN 23 OF FIRST 30 GAMES

GEORGE GIBSON will have the schedule as well as seven rival clubs to fight in his efforts to get the Pirates off to a flying start in the 1933 pennant race. The National League playing program, making a belated appearance today, is decidedly unfavorable to the Bucs' chances for picking up some ground on the opposing field in the early stages. Of their first 12 games, nine are scheduled abroad, and of their first 30 contests no fewer than 23 must be played on foreign fields. Only seven games at home in the first five weeks of the season is a leaner allotment than is drawn by any other club in the league, a handicap at a time when a club needs all the practice it can get. The last six games of the year, too, are listed for enemy parks.

George Gibson

The schedule has other unsatisfactory features. It keeps the Bucs away too long at a stretch, and also makes a home stay too lengthy. From June 11 to July 3, the Rovers are kept on the road for 21 out of 22 straight games, visiting six of the seven other cities and playing only one game at home in more than three weeks. Again, from August 4 to September 1, they are kept abroad so steadily that they play only two games here in four weeks, besides being given a nice little jump from Chicago to Brooklyn. On the other hand, they are kept at home almost the entire month of July, playing 23 games at Forbes Field.

ON THE ONE side, local fans will be kept without baseball too long, and on the other side they will be given too much of it at one time. As a whole, the schedule does the Pittsburgh club no favors. The three holidays and 15 Saturdays at home are due to the Pirates unequally by reason of their being without Sunday ball on their own lot.

The innovation of making the Western clubs go through an Eastern trip as early as May 1 to 14 evidently is an arrangement to accommodate the American League, which wanted an intersectional series earlier than usual to prevent the other strong Eastern clubs from gaining a big lead on the West by cleaning up against the weak Red Sox while the Westerners were holding one another even. The National did not need such a series. National League schedules make baseball fans realize more than ever the remarkable job that the late Barney Dreyfuss used to do in arranging slates that gave no club ground for complaint.

IN A SERIES of bonehead plays in baseball, Max Carey tells one himself which he says he thought was going to be a smart one. He was pulled while Carey was playing for the Pirates in a game at Chicago, with Carson Bigbee on third base and one out.

Carey grounded to Howard Freigau, who was playing third for the Cubs, and Freigau and Catcher Gabby Hartnett trapped Bigbee between third and home.

"WHEN I ROUNDED second base," Carey relates, "Freigau and Hartnett still were chasing Bigbee, and I continued in stride for third. I saw that Bigbee hadn't a chance and decided to keep going. I figured on blasting right past Freigau and Hartnett while they were tagging Bigbee and thus scoring a run. It would have been a great play, going all the way around the bases and scoring on a fielder's choice, but it never worked out. For some reason, Freigau held the ball without tagging Bigbee as I sped past. Immediately I was automatically out for passing the runner, and all that Freigau had to do to end the inning was to reach out and tag Bigbee for a double play. Had Freigau tagged Bigbee while I was running toward the play, I could have scored, since there is no penalty for passing a runner who has been retired."

DIZZY DEAN is picked to come close to being the best pitcher in the National League this year, and the prospect wasn't weakened by an exhibition that he gave against the Yankees the other day in saving a 3-to-2 game for Tex Carleton, who had preceded him on the slab for the Cards. Dean pitched four innings, struck out seven men and threw out two, while another batter ed out. The world champions got only hits, one of which was a scratch, against the Yank bombers, that's pitching, whether in March or July.

Dizzy Dean

THE OLD JINX which Homer Peel thought he had shaken off continues to stick on his trail. He had an extra outfield job with the Cubs practically sewed up when a thrown ball fractured a finger. Peel makes a strong bid for the hard-luck stakes. This is the second time he has suffered a broken finger, and he has also been handicaped in his efforts to win a place in the majors at various times by a broken leg, an appendicitis operation and a severe case of mumps.

WHEN MAXIE ROSENBLOOM came to Pittsburgh on June 3, last year, to win a 10-round decision over Larry Johnson at Greenlee Field, he was just doing a lap in a year of travel that cracked a few records in the boxing game. During 1932, Wilbur Wood computes, Rosenbloom covered 73,000 miles, almost equivalent to going around the world three times, to box in 30 bouts in 25 cities, two of them in Canada and the remainder scattered over nine states, from Florida to California. He averaged about one fight every 12 days. In less than 11 years of boxing, Maxie has engaged in 192 bouts for a total of 1,782 rounds. He has lost 19 decisions and has been knocked out once, by Tommy Milligan.

BUT AT THAT, Rosenbloom's total of 73,000 miles wasn't the high mark of his stable for travel during 1932. His manager, Frank Bachman, covered 90,000 miles, making every trip with Maxie and a lot more with his other fighters. And he did it without once boarding a railroad train, as he travels exclusively in his automobile.

Since the promoters reduced transportation to expenses for two instead of three, Bachman and the trainer have traveled by auto and Rosenbloom has used the trains. Bachman does about 600 miles a day in his machine. His best day's run was 888 miles.

IN PREDICTING THAT the Boston Bruins will win the Stanley Cup in the National League hockey play-offs now in progress, Cecil Hart, former manager of Les Canadiens, must be credited with showing plenty of courage.

Fred Kelly

For he speaks from Montreal, which city has two teams in the play-offs in opposition to the Bruins. Hub fans are taking it to mean that there may be something in the report that Hart will manage the Bruins next season.

EVER SINCE WAR days, when Hobby Baker, Ham Coolidge, Eddie Rickenbacker and others were Army fliers, aviation has drawn many recruits from the front sports ranks. Bill Henry observes a number of them out on the coast, a notable example being Fred Kelly, winner of the Olympic high hurdles at Stockholm in 1912. For several years, Kelly, who was originally an Army pilot, has been toting the air mail regularly between Los Angeles and Salt Lake. Jimmy Doolittle was a star boxer and all-around athlete at University of California. Ace Williams was a good enough baseball player to get a tryout with the Giants. Cliff Henderson captained the Southern California basketball team. Maj. Corliss C. Moseley was a crack halfback and sprinter for the Trojans. Harris Ashue played football for Michigan and drove a racing car. Joe Dawson was one of baseball's most prominent contributions to the air game.

SOUTH OPPOSES ALTOONA

HEINIE MEINE DUE TO START FOR BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

SANTA BARBARA, March 28.—This garden spot of California is all het up over the Pirates, who are slated to tackle the Seattle Indians this afternoon. The town is plastered with baseball signs, and the Junior Chamber of Commerce is working in tireless shifts to see that the Pittsburgh guests are treated royally. A goodly crowd is expected at the ball orchard in the event of a continuance of the ideal weather.

HAID TO PITCH

Harold Haid, of New Castle, will heckle the Pirates this afternoon. Once the wearer of Pirate regalia, Harold is now one of George Burns' best pitchers. The Indians have designs on the Coast League flag, and if they are to stay around the top, a lot of the burden will fall upon the tall lad who learned his pitching tricks in Lawrence County.

Hal says "Hullo" to all the gang back home.

Heinie Meine will do a three-inning trick against the Coast Leaguers, at least that was Manager Gibson's idea this morning. When Meine leaves the slab he is likely to be succeeded by Bill Swift.

Gibby is far from being in the dumps concerning his slab staff. While it is common talk that no pitcher on the club, aside from Larry French, has shown the form required by a major leaguer, Gibby holds to the feeling that he will have several sharpshooters ready for the exacting test when the season opens two weeks from tomorrow.

MEINE IN SHAPE

Meine said this morning his arm was feeling fine. A little analysis of Heinie's slab work indicates that he is close to a point. The veteran, it will be remembered, was a holdout one year ago and he had not joined the club as late as opening day. Heinie thinks he is on the verge of a successful season.

Remy Kremer did a little more pitching yesterday. The big Frenchman is sure his arm has been benefited by the treatments he received in Los Angeles.

Chilly Sauce

Wagnerian notes continue to pop wherever Honus shows himself. The Pirates had hardly reached their hotel in Santa Barbara before a little Italian pitcher was on a rampage. Shouted Tony:

"Hey, Joe—wher's thees Honus Wag? I no see heem for more as 20 year. I worka barbera shop East Liberty and wan Forbes Field open I see Honus Wag play. I moosta see heem now."

Wagner is due to broadcast another baseball program tonight from a Santa Barbara station. The Los Angeles Examiner plans to have Honus and Mike Donlin on a feature program Saturday night. Wagner and Mike were great batting rivals 25 years ago.

TOMORROW: THE MAN WHO SURVIVED HIMSELF.

WINNER ENTERS STATE FINALE SATURDAY

By JULIUS LEVIN
Staff Correspondent.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., March 28.—The Western Regional championship of the Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association basketball playoffs will be decided on the Penn State College floor here tonight when South High, champion of Pittsburgh and District VIII representative, engages Altoona High, champion of District VI.

The winner earns the right to meet the survivor of the Lower Merion-Scranton Tech contest, scheduled in Allentown tonight, for the state championship Saturday night.

FANS ARRIVE EARLY

The South High Orioles, heralded by those who have seen them in action, as one of the greatest floor machines developed in the Western end of the state, left Pittsburgh at 8:30 this morning and arrived early in the afternoon. The Pittsburghers made the trip in a radio-equipped bus.

The Pittsburgh party was composed of the entire squad of 12 players, Prof. J. M. McLaughlin, principal of the school; Head Coach Grover C. Washabaugh, his assistant, E. J. Caye, and other members of the physical education department.

A steady stream of automobiles bearing Pittsburgh supporters of the Orioles, began arriving shortly after noon, indicating that the City League champions will be well supported. Several hundred are expected to arrive later in the day by bus and train.

Altoona scholastic fans likewise lost no time in starting their invasion of State College. Like the Pittsburgh delegation, they arrived in automobiles, buses and trains.

RECORDS AT STAKE

The battle for the western regional championship brings together two teams which will rise long winning streaks. South High showing a record of 21 victories out of 22 games, boasts a string of 20 successive triumphs, while Altoona is undefeated in 18 games played during the present campaign.

FINALE IN EAST

The final contest for the state championship Saturday will be played either here or on an Eastern floor, depending on which teams survive. If Lower Merion and South meet, the game will be played in the Palestra in Philadelphia; if South and Scranton Tech are the contestants it will be played near Scranton; if Altoona and Scranton Tech are the finalists, the game will be played at State College.

The South lineup for the game tonight is expected to find Bill Jesko and Joe Galiszewski at forward, Eddie Spotovich at center and Charley Miskevics and either Ed Czlapinski or Vince Jakubowski at guard.

CONCERN FELT FOR JACKSON

He says his injured knees are in fine shape again and that his only worries are over a crop of corns which developed in California.

However, the fact remains that he has played in only two exhibition games so far, once as a pinch hitter.

N. L. Briefs

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—William Watson Clark, one of the most efficient southpaws in the National League, seems set for another big season with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Clark pitched six innings in yesterday's game with the St. Louis Browns and allowed only one hit. He faced only 19 batsmen as a double play followed his one base on balls.

WINTERHAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—Pounding two rookie pitchers and stealing bases freely at the expense of a third, the Phillies gave the Boston Braves an 11-to-5 trouncing yesterday. The Phils could not hit Kirley, trying to earn his feathers as a Brave, but they scored two runs in the seventh inning without a hit. Three walks and four steals, including a double steal, did the trick.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—Before the week is over, several of the younger members of the Chicago Cub squad will learn where they will play baseball this season, Le Roy Newsom, righthanded pitcher, was turned over to the Los Angeles Club last night, and Lyle (Bud) Tinning, Le Roy Herrmann and Beryl Richmond, pitchers, appear to be slated for shipment. Herrmann or Tinning, and perhaps both of them, probably will remain with Los Angeles and Richmond may be sent back to Baltimore.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—Held to three hits until the eighth innings, the Philadelphia Athletics unloosed a counter-attack which routed the St. Louis Cardinals, 6 to 4, from the American League team's training camp yesterday. Frank Higgins started things with a triple and Doc Cramer, pinch hitting for Tony Freitas, drove the third baseman in with a double. Then Mickey Cochrane beat out a single and Ed Coleman's high fly behind second got away from Crabtree, St. Louis outfielder. The two runners scored, giving the A's their margin of victory.

Hockey Manager Out on Bail

PARIS, March 28.—(AP.)—Harold Ballard, manager of the Toronto Nationals amateur hockey team, arrested in connection with a fracas here early Sunday morning, was released on bail when he appeared in court yesterday.

Following upon their defeat by the Massachusetts Rangers Saturday night, players of the Nationals got entangled with Parisians in a restaurant in an argument over the game.

RED SHIELDS WIN

The Red Shields five defeated the Trojans, 41 to 21, in the first game of the play-off series for the Greater Pittsburgh League championship last night.

WERBER STARS FOR YANKEES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 28.—(AP.)—There are signs now that Joe McCarthy, manager of the World Champion New York Yankees, has turned to Bill Werber as the possible answer to his shortstop problem.

Lyn Larry and Frank Crosetti alternated at the post last season with neither any too consistent. McCarthy has been using Werber frequently in exhibition games and the former Duke University star played the entire game there yesterday.

With Charley Devens, Harvard graduate, and Lefty Gomez pitching five-hit-ball, the Yankees pounded the ball to all corners of Huggins' Field to defeat the Cincinnati Reds, 16 to 3.

Devens held the Reds to two hits and one run in the five innings he was on the mound.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—The first real rainfall the Detroit Tigers have encountered in their spring training camp here fell yesterday, postponing the opening game scheduled with the New York Giants. The Bengals will meet the Giants in Beaumont today, weather permitting, in the first of a series of exhibition games which will take the clubs through the south and land them in New York two weeks hence.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP.)—Wesley Ferrell will be given his first pitching assignment of the training season this week in one of the Cleveland Indians' exhibition games with the New Orleans Pelicans, Manager Roger Peckinpaugh said today. Ferrell, who was a holdout for nearly a month after the Indians reached their training camp here, will be used for three to five innings in his first start.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—(AP.)—The Washington Senators took another baseball game from the Birmingham Barons yesterday, 6 to 4. Laboring under some pressure by the powers that be in the matter of a little more accurate batting, the big leaguers got 11 hits. The first ball pitched by Ray Caldwell was smacked for a home run by Buddy Myer.

OAKLAND, Cal.—(AP.)—Manager Lew Fonseca and the rest of the Chicago White Sox are wondering where their hitting attack has gone to. Until Sunday, the 1933 Sox were mistreating all kinds of pitching. In two Sabbath games, however, they damaged no fences, and yesterday, before rain forced Umpire Babe Pinelli to call a battle with the Missions in the sixth inning, the punch still was lacking.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—The St. Louis Browns bunched four of their six hits in the seventh inning off Ray Benge to score all of their runs and defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 3 to 1, yesterday. The victory was the American Leaguers second in three games with the Dodgers.

Teddy Yarosz To Appear With Seals

A treat is in store for boxing followers tomorrow evening, when Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, the Pittsburgh district's leading title contender in the boxing ring, will appear with the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph during their weekly radio program over WCAE at 7 o'clock.

Ted will tell of his championship ambitions, his career to date and other facts of interest to the fans in an interview with Harry Keck, sports editor. Yarosz's manager, Ray Foutts, of East Liverpool, O., also will speak.

HOCKEY TEAMS RESUME DUELS

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP.)—The National Hockey League's complicated playoff tournament, leading to the Stanley Cup finals, will be resumed in three sectors tonight with two of the six contenders doomed to elimination.

On the basis of developments thus far, it appeared more than probable that both Montreal entries, the Maroons and Canadiens, would be forced out of the championships, leaving the field to the Boston Bruins, Toronto Maple Leafs, Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers.

Theoretically at least, the evening's program is headed by the second clash of the best three-out-of-five game series between Boston and the Maple Leafs at Toronto, first place winners in the American and Canadian divisions during the regular season, but the chances are that more attention will be centered on the doings at Detroit and Montreal.

At Detroit, the Red Wings and Maroons will clash in the second and final contest of the second-place series, decided on the basis of total goals, while at Montreal, the Rangers and Canadiens will get together in the final tussle of a similar series.

VINES TO MISS CUP OPENER

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP.)—The United States probably will play its first-round Davis Cup tennis series against Mexico without the services of Ellsworth Vines, national champion.

Word received while the Davis Cup committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association was meeting in executive session here last night was that Vines would not play against Mexico, but would come east about May 1 to participate in the second round, assuming that the United States wins at Mexico City.

The Davis Cup committee meeting was called to choose the personnel of the selection committee which will pick the 1933 team and arrange definitely for the first-round matches, to be played in Mexico City May 5, 6 and 7. Announcement of the personnel was expected later.

Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., No. 2 in the National ranking, is expected to captain the team against Mexico. The other members of the squad probably will be chosen from among Frank Shields, Cliff Sutter, Keith Gledhill, George Lott, John Van Ryn and Sidney B. Wood, Jr.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 28.—Here it is Tuesday, and I've still got to wait until April 15 to get a dollar. You know, we ball gamers don't get paid till the regular season starts. And, if you think this spring training is any treat to us, ask Mr. Insull how he likes Athens, Greece.

Nick Altrock

Yesterday I went up to Griff to put the slug on him for a couple of dollars. I hummed "Two Buck Tim from Timbuctoo." Griff sang the theme song from "No, No, Nanette."

I chirped, "Here It Is Tuesday and I'd Still Like a Dollar." Griff crooned, "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby."

Then I whisky-tenored, "Brother, Could You Spare a Dime?" Griff wheezed out the Stein Song and tossed me a nickel. I grabbed it and went off whistling "Not for Just a Day, Not for Just a Week, Not for Just a Year, but Always."

And yet some folks think we baseball people have it soft!

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

What to do when a fighter has an opponent at his mercy and won't put over the finishing punch, and the victim is too game to quit?

What to do? That is the question.

A referee with intelligence stepped into the breach in the main bout at Motor Square Garden last night and supplied the answer, satisfactory to all concerned, although it entailed putting a knockout blot on the escutcheon of a local favorite, Mose Butch, Oakland Italian featherweight.

PAUL CLAIMS FOUL

Mose was in there with Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, for 10 scheduled rounds, the same Paul who recently defeated little Jimmy Thomas in the same ring. Through the first round they slugged it out with swings, Mose fighting in his southpaw style. It was sock, sock, sock, all hard punching, with honors even. The second round was a repetition, except that Paul was beginning to show his class with cleaner scoring toward the finish.

The start of the third round saw Paul, with the fight well in hand, beginning to cut down the stocky Butch when suddenly Mose dashed headlong in, swinging a left to the body. Paul reeled back with the punch into the ropes near Butch's corner and went down, holding his mid-section, groaning, his face contorted.

It was obvious that he was claiming a foul on a low punch, but the referee, Al Grayber, evidently was satisfied the blow was fair, for he didn't hesitate, but started a count that reached the limit of nine before Paul dragged himself up. A clinch or two and Tommy shook off the effects and resumed the business of bossing the fight.

REFEREE ENDS BOUT

From then on it was a shamble. In the fourth round, during an exchange, Mose pulled away and went down and rolled on his neck while the timekeeper banged off a count of two with his mallet. In the fifth, rights under the heart made him hold on.

In the sixth, his right eye and lips were badly swollen from punches and Paul began to ease off. It was so in the seventh and eighth, with Paul playing with him as a cat with a mouse. Late in the eighth, Tommy put on a rally and had Mose out on his feet, with his left eye joining the right in mourning. Once or twice Paul looked at the referee as if to ask him to stop the one-sided fight because he didn't want to punish Mose any more.

After the eighth round, Referee Grayber went to Mose's corner and asked him if he wanted to quit. Mose declined. Badly beaten, he wouldn't accept the ignominy of taking the easy way out sitting in his corner. So Grayber let him go up for another round, but he was so helpless and Paul was so insistent upon prolonging the agony that, after 1 minute 49 seconds of the round, the official did what Mose's friends wanted to see him do. He grabbed the too-game Oaklander about the waist with both arms and dragged him from midring to his corner and called a halt to the bout.

MOSE'S SECOND KNOCKOUT

There was no disgrace for Butch in losing to so good a two-fisted fighter as Paul, the recent National Boxing Association featherweight champion, and no one has any complaint to make about the manner in which he lost, gamely carrying on against hopeless odds until the referee wouldn't let him go any longer.

Paul still was a pound overweight at 127 pounds after working off three-quarters of a pound at weighing time in the afternoon. Butch scaled 124. The battle marked the second time Butch has been stopped, the first time having been by Marty Gold, two years ago. He evened the score with Gold in a return bout. He has boxed Fidel La Barba, Al Brown, Johnny Datto, Jackie Rodgers, Frankie Wallace, Jimmy Thomas, Eugene Huat and other stars.

The least said about the eight-round semi-final the better. Sam Bruce, Negro welterweight, of Buffalo, tincanned to the finish against Jimmy Belmont, of Braddock, making his first appearance after a layoff of a few months. Jimmy won all of the way, and dropped his man for a count of two in the second round, but Bruce's eternal clinching made the bout such a poor one that the fans were stamping their feet for action.

ZIVIC STOPS CARPENTIER

Red Bruce, Hill Negro middleweight, came from behind to beat Billy Flanagan, of Clearfield, in another six-rounder, and Fritzie Zivic, Lawrenceville lightweight, fought the best bout of his professional career to technically knock out the veteran U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, after 30 seconds of the fourth round. He dropped Carp for a count of one and had him all but out in the third round and polished him off with a right to the jaw that sent U. S. helpless into the ropes, where he was rescued by Referee Grayber. Zivic boxed and punched in a manner that bespoke future greatness.

Jack Henderson alternated with Grayber as referee. The show drew a little less than $2,000. A tribute was paid to the memory of the late Albert (Irish) Kane, boxing manager, who died yesterday, the crowd standing in silence while the timekeeper tolled 10 on the bell just before the semi-final got under way.

Due to a hitch in closing for a windup, no show was announced for next Monday night.

ARENA CARDS WILLIE DAVIES

Willie Davies, of Charleroi, former leading contender for the world flyweight title, will box the six-round semi-final to the Tony Falco-Tracey Fox bout at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night, it was announced today by Matchmaker Lew Raymond. His opponent will be Charley Burns, of Johnstown.

The card wos completed today. In three other six-round preliminaries, Don Asto boxes Johnny Durso, Eddie Hebner meets Steve O'Malley and Joey Bazzone takes on Max Elling.

Between Rounds

Unknown Winston, the Negro heavyweight sensation, would be a principal in the main bout at Motor Square Garden next Monday night but for the fact that he is matched with Reds Barry in Holyoke, Mass., the same night.

Ray Alvis, manager of Tony Herrera, writes from Chicago that he will agree to let Ted Yarosz come in at 149 pounds for a match with his 140-pound Tony at the Garden here, April 17, if the match can be made and will guarantee Ted a battle with Jackie Fields if he wins.

Billy Ketchel and Wally Sears battle in Philadelphia Thursday night. Spib Styer meets Lew Raymond there Friday night.

Jaggers McLain and Press Johnson box the main bout of a show in Struthers, O., Friday night.

Strong entries have been made by Erie and Oil City clubs in the annual Allegheny Mountain Association A. A. U. senior tournament at the Keystone A. C., beginning Thursday night.

Tony Falco, Philadelphia lightweight, will miss Irish Kane in his corner when he boxes Tracey Cox at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night. Irish, who died yesterday from injuries received in an automobile accident last week, helped Manager George Engel to second Tony in every one of the latter's four bouts here, against Johnny Datto, Harry Dublinsky and Tony Herrera twice.

OLDEST GRID RIVALRY IS RENEWED

Announcement of the game was made today by the Princeton board of athletic control. It will be played here.

On November 6, 1869, Princeton and Rutgers met in the first intercollegiate football game ever played, with Rutgers winning, 6 goals to 4. They have met 29 times since, with the Tigers victorious in every one.

The inclusion of the Rutgers game gives Princeton its first nine-game schedule since 1912. The revised schedule:

Baer vs. Schmeling Bout May Be Off

NEW YORK, March 28.—(INS.)—The Max Schmeling-Max Baer fight may not be staged and, instead, Jack Sharkey may defend his world heavyweight title against Schmeling in a third meeting here on June 1, under the joint promotion of Jack Dempsey and Madison Square Garden, it was revealed today.

Schmeling, who leaves Germany next week to begin a series of exhibitions in the United States, is said to realize he did not make the best possible match in agreeing to meet Baer out of pique toward Jimmy Johnstown, the Madison Square Garden matchmaker, and to be willing to get back into the Garden fold if the Garden will toss Johnstown out on his well-known ear, in which event Dempsey would kiss and make up with the Garden interests and cut himself in on a slice of the profits.

GRAPHIC GOLF

GOLF FORMS VARY

Climatic conditions have much to do with developing golfing forms. English golfers, faced with the necessity of combating stiff breezes, have developed a stance and swing that contrasts strongly with the American style.

In order to successfully brace themselves against the strong winds they have been forced to assume a wide stance in which the feet are placed solidly on the ground in the manner of Leonard Crowley above. This handicaps their body action and the swing is necessarily limited in consequence.

American golfers, on the other hand, seldom face a breeze of this nature, and, as a result, assume a narrower stance, in which the feet are closer together. This does not place the restriction on body turn that a wide stance does and a more ample pivot results. This, in turn, allows a longer, free-swinging arc, in which greater momentum may be gathered before the clubhead reaches the ball. As a result, American usually are longer hitters, although there are no few exceptions to this rule.

Their length, however, does not mean they are more accurate. In fact, the shorter swing, being simpler, leaves fewer chances for errors to creep in.

The average player should aim at a happy medium between the two extremes so that he can gain a measure of both length and accuracy.

LASTS LONGER

• The "BLUE BLADE" lasts longer—gives you one perfect shave after another at an actual saving in cost. Users call this the cheapest shaving method known—and here's why. The "BLUE BLADE" is made to give more excellent shaves per penny. The steel is tempered by secret process—so hard that it will cut glass. Metal like this takes a long-lived edge of unapproached sharpness. Try the "BLUE BLADE" and see. Effect savings and get great comfort at the same time.

STOCKS DRIFT IN LISTLESS SESSION

NEW YORK, March 28.—(AP.)—The stock market again moved horizontally in extremely listless trading today.

Ordering of the regular quarterly dividend by Allied Chemical gave the list a slight bulge just before midday, but it quickly flattened out again.

Allied Chemical rose more than 2 points, but quickly lost much of its gain. American Telephone again encountered some selling and lost about a point. Rails were mostly steady, although Union Pacific pushed up as much as a point.

Commission house quarters reported that there had been considerable short selling of American Telephone, on the theory that directors at their May meeting would reduce the annual dividend rate of $9. No mention was made of dividends at today's annual meeting of stockholders, however. But the series of reductions in the dividend rates of subsidiary or affiliated companies has been interpreted in several quarters as foreshadowing an eventual paring of the parent company disbursement.

Allied Chemical again provided a pleasant surprise by ordering its regular quarterly disbursement of $1.50, thus maintaining its boom-time rate. There had been an inclination in some usually well-informed quarters to look for this action, although hopes had dimmed somewhat when the stock broke nearly 4 points in the late dealings yesterday. Directors of William Wrigley, Jr., Company ordered three regular monthly disbursements of 25 cents.

Interest in the administration's railroad rehabilitation program, which Wall street has been inclined to expect this week, was whetted by news that Frederick H. Prince, Boston banker, who has proposed a plan of regional consolidations, had called at the White House today. Wall street was also following closely the oil conferences held by Secretary Ickes. Freight car loadings reports from individual carriers thus this week have shown some over the previous week. Northern and Western reported February net operating income well above the like month of last year, though most carriers thus far reporting have shown recessions.

The renewed flurry in gold mining issues attracted attention, but temporary upturn in commodity prices, during and just after the banking holiday, had momentarily cast a shadow over these issues, for rising prices of raw staples would mean lessened purchasing power of gold.

Several of the merchandising companies thus far reporting for 1932 have shown very strong cash positions. President Avery, of Montgomery Ward, told stockholders at their meeting as of January 31, 1933, current assets were $83,460,366, against current liabilities of only $7,140,395.

'Mop' Will Contest Receivership Suit

ST. LOUIS, March 28.—Two receivership suits against the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company were filed here today by attorneys representing shippers who claim that refunds are due them for overcharges dating back over a period of many years. Edward J. Quite, counsel for Missouri Pacific says that the action is unjustified and will be contested. A hearing of the case is scheduled for April 3.

European Copper Quotation Lower

NEW YORK, March 28.—Copper selling abroad has diminished in volume and the price is slightly lower at 5@5.05c a pound c.i.f. Hamburg, Havre and London, compared with 5.25d to 5.10c yesterday.

Virtually all custom smelters are now willing to sell at 5c a pound delivered in the domestic market.

Sharp Drop Noted In Trade Failures

NEW YORK, March 28.—Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reports that business failures for the past week numbered 393 against 382 and 494, respectively, for the two weeks preceding, and 628 for the same week of 1932. March insolvencies for this year, says the review in commenting on the favorable record of the past three weeks, from present indications will be "far below those for March in any year back to 1925 or 1926."

Daily Oil Output Up 83,157 Barrels

TULSA, March 28.—Daily average production of crude oil in the United States during the week ended March 25 totaled 2,264,055 barrels daily, an increase of 83,057 barrels daily over the previous week, according to the Oil and Gas Journal.

TRADE MIRRORS SPURT IN BUYING

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 28.—Trade and industry have begun to resume operations where they left off during the bank holidays.

The trade reviews report a reversal of consumer buying sentiment, which, if continued, would give healthy leverage to the attempts to raise gross volume in the United States. Seasonable weather would help to keep up the momentum of consumer buying — at least among the gainfully employed groups.

Mr. Rukeyser

President Roosevelt has made it a policy to seek data from the scientists of business as well as from the practical practitioners. Even before, Senator Glass had been making active use of the counsel of H. Parker Willis, professor of banking at Columbia University. Dr. Willis has received the co-operation of students in a seminar in banking at the school of business, which has been compiling and classifying material about the banking situation in the United States.

SAVINGS INCREASE

In commenting on the emergency banking plan which originated with the President, rather than with the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, Dr. Willis said:

"The plan for reorganizing banking that is now being pursued has many difficulties. It has at least stopped the continuous deposit of funds in unsound banks. The difficulty with it is that these unsound banks are not compelled to liquidate but are continued under the direction of conservators. Eventually they must in many cases be surely closed. This reorganization is the ultimate goal toward which our banking system must work and when it is accomplished conditions will be much better."

In attempting to visualize the banking situation, one should keep in mind the sharp relative increase in recent years of savings deposits. Savings bank deposits increased from a volume equal to 40 per cent of demand deposits in 1912 to 65 per cent in 1932. All savings, which in pre-war time equaled commercial deposits, now bear to them the relation of 8 to 5.

URGES NEW BANK

W. Espy Albig, deputy manager of the American Bankers' Association, urges a central bank to give liquidity to savings deposits.

In unfolding his economic program, President Roosevelt is giving expression to ideas formulated systematically since his nomination last June. Expecting to be elected, he immediately started a series of interviews with well informed persons. Weeks before he entered the White House he already had definitely made up his mind concerning necessary recommendations.

Mr. Roosevelt has not confined his inquiries to persons known to be politically sympathetic to him. He has gone out systematically for the facts, and his capacity to act with startling rapidity after taking office reflects months of careful preparatory work.

BUSINESS PLANS POSTPONED BY UNCERTAINTY

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, March 28.—The outstanding factor affecting business recently has been uncertainty. When business men turn to their papers each day wondering what has happened over night and what move will be made next, we may be sure that many business plans are being held up.

What is to be done to the banks? What is to be done for farmers? How is the railway situation to be handled? Are we going to inflate or deflate?

No one knows the answers, because they depend upon political action. And even when such action is taken it is difficult to figure on the results of artificial policies.

DOLLAR VALUE QUESTION

But above all is the great uncertainty in men's minds as to whether "inflation" is to occur or not. This question will not down as long as strong political elements favor an attempt to boost prices by cheapening the dollar. Yet business can hardly settle down to work until business men know what a dollar is really worth.

Now, as for a year past, the one great essential for business recovery is a basis for confidence in our money, which involves sound banks and sound government credit.

The news of the past week has been indecisive, but, on the whole, indicates continued deflation and recession.

Industrial activity appears to have touched new lows. Steel production was at 13-14 per cent of capacity. Automobile production declined. Electrical power output fell to the lowest point yet recorded.

Railway traffic naturally rebounded from the "bank holiday" slump, but was only about 50 per cent of the 10-year average and 23 per cent below a year ago.

COLLECTIONS SLOW

Credit conditions remain unsatisfactory and act as a business depressant. For example, collections are very slow, as many retailers have funds tied up. The banks, of course, are not functioning normally.

About 76 per cent of the country's banks are open for business, but in some states the number is under 50 per cent. And some banks which have reopened are still on a restricted basis.

Back of the whole credit situation lies a tendency to divert the nation's credit into a government relief plan. This may be necessary, at least in part, but we must realize that just as speculation took credit from business in 1929, so now government borrowing restricts credit for business purposes.

HOARDING DECREASED

The banking figures, however, naturally showed improvement after the preceding collapse. Especially welcome is the fact that hoarding has greatly decreased and that it has not been necessary to issue any large amount of the new Federal Reserve bank notes.

Community price trends last week were mixed. Metals, gray goods, lard and cattle were reactionary, while wool, grains and hogs were stronger. The weekly averages were about unchanged, but I would say that the majority of sensitive commoditiy markets were a

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 28.—Except for a firm tone in the U. S. government division the bond market gave a generally dispirited performance today. Lower prices were the rule in the foreign section with especial pressure on German, Italian and Japanese issues.

Life of Andrew Carnegie

Carnegie Visits German Emperor

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE BY BURTON J. HENDRICK

Soon after Carnegie's return to America, in the autumn of 1902, there came a call from Albert Ballin, one of the Kaiser's closest friends and the man chiefly identified with the development of German shipping. Herr Ballin brought the Emperor's thanks for the St. Andrews address, and presented a copy of one of his master's writings in return. Carnegie's ideas on Germany, said the imperial emissary, had greatly interested William II; they set forth many conceptions which the Emperor wished to discuss in detail. The purpose of Herr Ballin's call was to extend an invitation for a private meeting the following summer.

Carnegie was flattered, but nothing came of the suggested interview at the time, though his letters for the next two or three years contain occasional references, now jocular, now serious, to the friendly latchstring proffered from Berlin.

"I declined the first invitation," he writes Morley, June 7, 1903, "but the President (Roosevelt) wrote that he hoped I would reconsider, as he was in a position to say that H. M. the Emperor wished to make my personal acquaintance, etc., etc. I thought it my duty to go, as I might have a chance of a few words with him bearing on peace, etc., and here came a letter from the Russian Ambassador at Washington: he had been charged by the Emperor of Russia to express his deep appreciation, etc., of my gift to the Hague.

"Now if you and I were the two Emperors what an alliance we'd have! A bad mistake; we should have been in their places."

Informal With Kings

"I look forward with great pleasure to meeting His Majesty some day," Carnegie wrote Albert Ballin, "one of the few really great men in the world I am anxious to meet. We must arrange later. Thank you for your kindness."

There was a charming informality about Carnegie in his relations with royal personages. To the author of "Triumphant Democracy" an imperial wish never assumed the proportions of a command.

On September 24, 1903, there came a letter from Mr. H. Percival Dodge, American charge in Berlin, reporting a visit just received from the Hofmarschall.

"He informed me that the Emperor would be at Hubertussock, a hunting lodge, from the sixth to the fourteenth of October, and at Neues Palais (Potsdam) from the fourteenth to the twentieth of October, both places being easily accessible from Berlin. He said that the Emperor would be able to receive you upon practically any day during this time."

To this suggestion Carnegie replied to Mr. Dodge: "Thanks for your favors . . . Much as I desire and appreciate the opportunity of meeting that extraordinary man, the Emperor, it is impossible for me to come to Berlin this time, but you may be sure I shall not fail to keep the matter in mind and to communicate with you further next season and arrange a time. It is so great an honor and privilege that I consider it a duty not to miss."

A line to Morley explains that more pressing engagements forestalled a visit. "The Emperor suggests that I see him at his place near Berlin where he is going for a time, but Ireland prevents. Am sorry but I can't disappoint"—that is, he couldn't disappoint the Irish. In 1904 came another invitation, extended through Ambassador Tower, but again Carnegie could not make the trip.

Three years afterward the Kaiser opened the subject once more. Ambassador Tower wrote proposing Kieler Woche as an appropriate season—the regatta at Kiel in the latter part of June.

The Kiel Meeting

"All right," Carnegie replied, "I leave the matter with you. Meet at Kiel, always provided that, after seeing the gentleman, you find that he really would be pleased. You might intimate to him that, if he would like me to come, you could arrange it."

A letter to David Jayne Hill, at that tihe (June 12, 1907) American minister to the Netherlands, soon to be transferred as ambassador to Berlin, explains Carnegie's reasons for finally going to Germany: "Madam and I go to Kiel, arriving there the twentieth instant. The Emperor has invited me several times and I hear from Tower that he begins to think I don't want to see him, although I do very much indeed, and I hope to get my say, which is that I think he is the man responsible for war on earth."

That latter phrase summed up Carnegie's real purpose in visiting His Majesty.

"Ere this reaches you," he wrote Samuel Harden Church, June twelfth, "Madam and I shall be at Kiel. Couldn't put it off any longer, but I have other ends in view than merely to be presented. Wouldn't go a hundred miles for that."

In his autobiography Carnegie has preserved a few scraps of his conversations with the Kaiser aboard the "Hohenzollern" and elsewhere. For the most part these quotations concern the genial side of their intercourse. Carnegie's manner, even in the presence of the ruler of a great empire, inevitably led to a lively interchange of ideas—to jokes, laughter, bantering, reminiscence, serious criticism cloaked in humor, and the like. Carnegie began by saying that this was the first time he had traveled so far to meet a crowned head.

"Oh, yes, yes!" answered His Majesty. "I have read your books. You do not like kings."

"No, Your Majesty, I do not like kings, but I do like a man behind a king when I find him."

This led to pleasant chat about a monarch who was a favorite with both men, Robert the Bruce, whom William II, through his English mother, could claim as ancestor, and this started Carnegie on the subject of Dunfermline and its royal legends.

A mention of His Majesty's uncle, King Edward, proved unfortunate.

President Roosevelt's name aroused more appreciation. The Kaiser's guest insisted that he and the President had many points in common and that he would like to hitch them together in the sacred cause of peace.

"Ah, I see!" replied the Emperor. "You want to drive us. Roosevelt will be in front and I behind."

'Wild Colts'

"No, Your Majesty," said Carnegie, "I know better than to drive such wild colts tandem. You never get enough purchase on the first horse. No, I would like to have you both in the shafts, holding you abreast."

By-play such as this provided a favorable introduction to the more serious matters that presently engaged their attention. Three interviews took place, Carnegie also having long talks with von Bulow, the Imperial Chancellor. On personal grounds these confabulations were successful, for no man, when the mood was on, could be more friendly and charming than the Emperor, and Carnegie was captivated.

The American's informal behavior and rapid fire conversation were something quite new in Wilhelm's experience, and all the more enjoyable for that reason. It is not likely that Carnegie's advocacy of a new policy on the over-shadowing questions of the day made much impression on the man, most of whose energies at this critical moment were devoted to increasing the German fleet, and it is certain that the visit, and the many attentions shown Carnegie and his wife were not pleasing to the be-medaled devotees of Prussian might assembled at the regatta.

One thinks of Col. House's call at Potsdam on a similar errand, seven years afterward, also unsuccessful in its attempt to halt the Germanic program. No definite record of Carnegie's long conversations exists, but there need be no mystery concerning their substance. The correspondence leading up to the occasion indicates plainly enough the chief points covered. "Thou art the man!" was the burden of his argument when he came face to face with majesty, as it had been in his writings.

Germany was asked not to make the Hague Conference, then starting its deliberations, a mockery, and again the way was indicated in which the Kaiser could be a new Messiah in improving the status of the world. Letters written during the next few weeks show that, as a companion if not as the leader of a more enlightened day, the Kaiser had not proved a disappointment.

'A Wonderful Man'

"I had three interviews with the German Emperor and dined with him twice"—this to Sir James Donaldson, principal of St. Andrews. "A wonderful man, so bright, humorous, and with a sweet smile. I think he can be trusted and declares himself for peace."

To Richard Watson Gilder: "Our visit to the Emperor was a decided success. He's a rare man, as free and informal as the President; chuck full of fun. Very engaging smile—very; can't help liking him."

While the festivities were at their height, Carnegie wrote his daughter, aged 10:

To Margaret

'Kiel, den June 22 (1907).

"Saturday night.

"Well Darling, here it is the end of the week and your telegram just came a few minutes ago, and before going to bed I thought I would just write you a note. We have had a busy time here. Warships, yachts, sailing boats, motor boats crowding the bay.

"I have had one talk with the Emperor, who is very nice indeed. Also I dined with him one evening and he lifted his glass and drank my health and I did drink his. He laughs and talks and you may be sure he tells that he is Scotch. We have great fun.

"Tomorrow evening Mama and I are to meet him again at dinner on Mrs. Goelet's grand American yacht Nahma (means swan I think). It's very big. Mama and I were with the Prince and Princess Henry today. Of course Mama is a great favorite with every one. On Monday morning we start for The Hague in Holland (see the World ball in the Library) where the Dutch are—two days there and then for London and home.

"Good night; it is after 10 o'clock and I must retire. Good night. Always ever and ever your own

"Loving Papa."

In a letter to von Bulow, written soon after leaving Kiel, Carnegie summed up his points on at least one subject—the menacing progress of the German fleet. Von Bulow's Memoirs disclose that his views were similar to Carnegie's. At his final parting with his master, so poignantly described, he besought the Kaiser to reach some agreement with Great Britain on naval expansion.

"I will not allow John Bull to give me orders on how many ships I am to build," Was William's answer.

National Steel Will Cover Dividend For Quarter

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

NATIONAL STEEL continues to hold its position of distinction as the only major steel producer which is earning and paying dividends.

Ernest T. Weir, chairman, told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday that earnings for the first quarter of the present year will exceed dividend requirements for the period. The stock is on a 50-cent annual basis so that Mr. Weir's statement indicates that profits for the three months ending March 31 will exceed 12½ cents a share.

Such results are particularly outstanding in view of the interruption to general business which followed the national bank holiday.

Company Was Only Earner For 1932

THE COMPANY WAS the only one of the leading steel makers to report earnings for 1932. Its recently issued annual report showed net profit for the year of $1,662,920 after making full provisions for depreciation, depletion, interest and taxes. This was equivalent to 77 cents a share on the capital stock. There is no preferred stock.

While the earnings for the year reflected the decline in general business, comparing with $2.06 a share in 1931 and $3.91 a share in 1930, the results were outstanding for the steel industry.

Interest on the company's funded debt was earned 1.89 times in 1932 and 3.34 times in 1931. The organization has no near debt maturities with the exception of $233,333 of mortgage bonds of Weirton Coal, a subsidiary, due in 1933.

Current Financial Position Is Strong

THE ANNUAL REPORT showed a strong current financial position at the end of 1932. Current assets of $32,526,508 were 9.4 times current liabilities. Cash of $6,215,433 exceeded substantially all current liabilities of $3,446,492.

Working capital was increased during the year. It stood at $29,080,016 at the end of 1932. At the end of 1931 it amounted to $27,884,466.

Several factors have contributed to the exceptional results of National Steel. Its plants are among the most modern. They are str

The Flapper's Daughter

By BEATRICE BURTON

THRILLING NOVEL OF THE CHILDREN OF DANCING MOTHERS

CHAPTER VI.

"What's wrong?" Edna asked, sitting down on the bed beside her. "What's happened to you tonight?"

"Nothing." Sharlie's tone was sullen.

What had happened to her was none of Edna's business, she told herself. It was nobody's business but her own.

"You've been having something to drink—I can smell it on your breath," was the next thing that Edna said, and she said it grimly.

"I haven't had a thing—" Sharlie began. But something in Edna's eyes stopped her.

"What if I did have something to drink?" she asked. "Everybody takes a little something once in a while. I didn't have much . . . . Edna, did you tell the folks where I was going tonight?"

Edna shook her head "No."

"I knew you were a good sport," said Sharlie. "I knew you wouldn't give me away—"

Edna shook her head.

"I'm not a good sport. I tried to tell your mother you were going out with that boy tonight," she interrupted. "But she was too busy with the Hanaberrys to listen to me."

EDDIE TELEPHONES

There was a hint of bitterness and resentment in Edna's voice. Edna herself never had very much to do with the Hanaberrys and the Schultzes.

"I'm glad you didn't say anything about tonight," Sharlie told her, "because I'm all through with Eddie Wallis. You were right about him, Edna. He's no good."

But she was far from being all through with Eddie Wallis.

The next morning at half past 8 he telephoned her.

"You left your hat at my place last night, Zany," he said to her, and his voice sounded as cheerful as it usually did. "You meet me somewhere tonight and I'll bring it to you."

"No!" Sharlie's voice was nothing more than a little gasp.

She caught her breath and went on clearly:

"Please leave it at Zowl's drugstore for me, Eddie. I can get it from Mr. Zowl the next time I go there."

She kept away from Zowl's all that day. She was afraid that Eddie might be hanging around the corner, waiting to see her.

That night Edna stayed downtown to work late at the office. Mr. Dunn clapped his hat on his head as soon as dinner was over and left the flat to go to a meeting of the American Legion.

"I'm going straight to bed, myself," Dodie announced when he had gone. "I'm going to try out that milk mask that they sold me at the beauty shop the other day. It's supposed to take away wrinkles like magic."

ETS LONESOME

She went into the bathroom for the bottle of milky liquid that formed a mask when it dried on the face, and Sharlie began to clear away the dishes.

The Dutch clock on the kitchen wall was just striking seven when she set the last dish in the cupboard shelf and hung the dishpan up on its nail under the sink.

There wasn't a new magazine in the house or a new library book.

She turned on the radio, and rippling stream of gay dance music came pouring into the room . . . It made her think of Eddie Wallis. How she and Eddie could dance together! She and Eddie—

What a good time they always had had together, and how lonely she was now without him!

At eight o'clock Sharlie opened the door of the flat and crossed the landing to the door of Barnums' flat.

No one was home but Jim Barnum.

"Mother went to the movies with Gertrude and Guy," he told Sharlie, opening the door wide. "Come in."

Sharlie went into the sitting room with him and sat down in Mrs. Barnum's chintz-covered chair.

Jim Barnum was one of those young men who are pleasant to look at without being particularly handsome. Sharlie never knew whether his eyes were light brown or light gray. But she did know that they crinkled at the corners when Jim smiled. He had the nicest and kindest smile in the world. His nose was blunt, his mouth straight and well shaped, and his hair was dark brown. For the rest he was a little above average height and looked strong and hard as an oak knot.

INVITED TO MOVIES

Jim's pipe and book lay on the table beside his chair. The book was Martin Johnson's "Lions."

"You were reading, and I interrupted you," said Sharlie. "I'm sorry—but Jim, I was so blue and lonely at home. I just didn't know what to do with myself."

She stayed there in the circle of the yellow lamplight for an hour or so, talking to him.

Jim was interesting. He had been reading a book about Turkestan, and now he was reading this book about Africa. He told Sharlie about them in a way that was thrilling, somehow.

It would never occur to Jim to seize her in his arms and kiss her until both of them were breathless. He would never take a flask along when he went to Green's Island to dance . . . As a matter of fact, she was sure that he never had gone to Green's Island—

"How would you like to go to the movies, Sharlie?" His voice brought her out of her musings. "We can get there in time for the second show if we start now."

"That will be fine!" Sharlie answered eagerly. "I'll get my hat—" She was on her feet in a second and out of the flat.

AN UNEXPECTED VISITOR

"That you, Sharlie?" her mother called to her when she came rushing into the little hall that led from the dining room to the bedrooms.

"Yes—I'm going to the movies with Jim Barnum." Sharlie called back, cramming a white felt hat down over her pretty head and giving her nose a quick dab of powder.

In another 30 seconds she was out in the hall of the building once more. She sat on the stairs to wait for Jim.

She had not been sitting there for more than a minute when she heard someone open the vestibule door on the floor below.

There was a sound of stealthy footsteps on the thickly-carpeted steps—and then the top of a black-and-white cap came into view.

Sharlie knew that cap as well as she knew the reflection of her own face in the glass. . . . It was Eddie Wallis' cap!

He had made the turn in the stairs before he saw her.

"Hello," he said. "I was bringing this to you."

EDDIE OBJECTS

He had her yellow felt hat in his hand. He held it out to her.

"I told you to leave it at Zowl's for me," said Sharlie reaching for it.

She nodded.

"Where?"

"To the movies with a man I know," she replied.

He shook his head. He had not troubled to take off his cap or to remove the cigaret that was pasted on his lower lip. It moved up and down as he talked.

"No, you're not going out with a man you know," he said. "Not this year——"

He broke off talking. Jim Barnum had come out upon the landing behind him.

"Ready, Sharlie?" he asked, his puzzled eyes going from Eddie Wallis to her.

The phrase "hard-boiled" might have been coined for Eddie Wallis. He looked like a young thug sitting there with his cap pulled down over his eyes, and his cigaret hanging from his lip.

"No, she ain't ready," he said. "Not to go with you—anyway!" He stood up and faced Jim.

THE LIVING TORCHES OF NERO (World's History)

Nero, Roman emperor from 54 to 68 A. D., notorious for his debauchery and tyranny, is believed to have set Rome in flames (64 A. D.), reducing two-thirds of the city to ashes. He blamed the Christians—that mysterious sect who, like the Jews in the Middle Ages, were blamed for all otherwise inexplicable calamities—and persecuted them with great fury. He is depicted enjoying the burning alive of Christians.

Golf Clubs Introduce New Ideas

The most beautiful club in the Atlantic district has a fleet of 600 rocking chairs on the front porch, three dining rooms, a dance floor, 14 colonial fireplaces and a swimming pool.

From a table on the terrace you can see the liners on the ocean, grab a telephone and interrupt your broker's suicide or play midget backgammon on the back of a postcard with a total neighbor.

It would seem that golf clubs are going in for less golf and more amusement. And you're right. We have not been feeling so well since they dug us out of the January snow banks on a summer membership.

Having filled our window boxes with the best cloverized divots, we grow tired of golf and look for new fields to annoy. There is one golf club in our district that organizes yachting parties and takes you out of the irritating atmosphere altogether.

Golfers cannot live upon golf alone. The most popular club on Long Island features real swans to the right of the first tee. A bad slice might get you a very good dinner. Every golfer aims at the swans, which have lost enough feathers to stuff a mattress. The swans haven't enough sense to leave the pond and join the foursome for safety. Proving that, once a swan always a swan. There is probably some professor at Columbia University who will dispute that.

Life at a country club devoted to golf becomes such a monotonous verdict that it is a relief just to raise and lower an awning for about three days handrunning. We have seen people burst into uncontrollable laughter just because their neckties were wrinkled. We don't know the reflexes of this symptom, but it could be explained by any scientist on the observation platform of a hoistin' engine.

We think it all proves that golfers hate the game of niblickin' the turf. The clubs are going in for diversified farming same as Georgia and Kansas. You can now play tennis on the first fairway or go hossbacking riding on the greens.

We are glad to see the rules committee is getting more liberal and are entering the spirit of the thing. First door on the left.

Relief in Public Works

Self-Liquidating Projects Will Furnish Jobs and Increase the People's Purchasing Power

The working people of the United States have lost more than half of the purchasing power that they had in 1929, according to the National Industrial Conference Board.

The Board reported yesterday, after study of unemployment statistics, wage cuts and reductions in working hours, that the wage earners are now receiving only 33.4 per cent as many dollars as they received four years ago.

But the dollar goes further than it did then. Taking this into consideration, the Board finds that the purchasing power is 46.3 per cent of what it was before the slump.

Agencies of the government—national, state, county and municipal—can and should take the initiative. They can provide jobs and increase purchasing power by constructing public works.

Let us consider some of the public works that are needed in the Pittsburgh District.

We ask the Federal government to build the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal, to improve the Allegheny River so that it may be navigable the year round as far as Olean, N. Y., to construct 17 storage reservoirs at the headwaters of the Allegheny and the Monongahela to protect Pittsburgh and the Ohio Valley from floods, and to reforest the denuded areas in the Allegheny and Monongahela National Forests for the same reason.

We ask the State government to build the Western State Psychiattic Hospital on the land donated for the purpose by the University of Pittsburgh, to enlarge and improve the overcrowded State asylums and penal institutions in this district, to widen and straighten highway route No. 8 between the Allegheny County line and Butler, and to make safe the cuts on state highways in this vicinity from which boulders and rocks fall upon the road during rainy seasons like the present.

We ask the County government to build the Town Hall and the proposed new bridges over the Monongahela at Homestead and the Allegheny at Aspinwall, to improve the Wabash tunnel and bridge if it decides to buy them, and to improve the county roads.

We ask the City government to build the downtown subway, to improve the water front, and to consider the advisability of constructing and operating its own plant for the disposal of garbage.

Every other municipality in the county needs public works of one kind or another—new schools, sewage disposal plants, sewers and street improvements.

The improvements should be financed, of course, by bond issues, if possible, that the increase in the taxpayers' burden may be spread over a period of years and largely postponed until they will be better able to bear it.

Some taxpayers may be unwilling to accept even a slight increase in their burden, may oppose being called upon to make the slightest sacrifice to restore prosperity.

The public works to be constructed then should be self-liquidating projects—jobs which will yield revenue and pay for themselves. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been authorized to lend money for such undertakings.

The Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal would be a self-liquidating job; the tolls to be charged shippers for the use of the canal would amortize the bonds. Ex-Mayor W. A. Magee suggested in an address several years ago that if the Federal government refused to build the canal, the cities of Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Youngstown and other municipalities directly benefitting from it should construct it.

The new bridges over the Monongahela and Allegheny, if tolls should be charged, would pay for themselves.

The new administration at Washington is going ahead with public works on a large scale.

Are the state, the county and the city going to lag?

Prosperity will not return until jobs are found for the idle and the purchasing power of the working people, now less than half of what it was four years ago, is restored.

Private commercial and industrial concerns cannot be expected to hire men to produce commodities which cannot be sold because of the people's diminished purchasing power.

The public authorities must act.

Emancipating Children

The Child Labor Amendment Will Release Jobs for Adults and Furnish More Work for Teachers

By ratifying the child labor amendment to the Federal Constitution, the Ohio Legislature brings to 10 the number of states that have ratified this progressive proposal.

Other states that have ratified this amendment since the new year are Oregon, Washington and North Dakota. And California, Arizona, Wisconsin, Montana, Colorado and Arkansas share the distinction of being the first six among the ratifying states.

Ohio's ratification comes at a most opportune time. The government at Washington is organizing ways and means of reducing unemployment.

By giving to Congress full power to limit, regulate and prohibit the labor of persons under 18 years of age, as the child labor amendment provides, hundreds of thousands of children of school age can be returned to school, and their places as wage earners filled by adults now jobless.

Approximately 1,000,000 children of school age are believed to be out of school today and out of work. It is estimated that more than 2,000,000 children of school age are out of school and at work.

If the states will ratify the child labor amendment forthwith, they will clear the way for the return of several million school children to school, and for the re-employment of as many jobless adults.

In addition, 80,000 teachers now idle can be given employment, and new construction started in every state in the Union to provide school buildings which will be required by the new army of pupils that the child labor amendment will emancipate from the yoke of premature employment.

In the famous song, that splendid chord could never again be repeated. But Uncle Sam, seated at the Harmony organ, has found the lost chord for which he has searched so long.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Perversity

I know the folly of desire
That leaves no mortal free,
Yet ardently I still aspire
To that which cannot be.

The hand of winter I would hold
Away from autumn's sheen;
I would turn summer's blue and gold
Back into springtime's green.

Although this truth is clear:
The fleetness of the linnet's wing
Is that which makes it dear.

The knowledge that I once despised
What now I hold of worth,
Makes it by me more greatly prized
Than all things else on earth.

Yet this amazing paradox
Affords life's ready key;
The chance which flees, not that which knocks,
Lures man's perversity.

The late and beloved Dwight Morrow was a little man with shy humor. Shortly before his passing, he was told that a certain man in Wall Street had it in for him. "I don't see why he should have it in for me," he said. "I don't remember doing anything for him."

Fred Keating, a deft and suave magician with what Percy Hammond calls "a tarty tongue," recently proved himself one of the most finished light comedians of the day, in a Tallulah Bankhead play. Keating's versatility also includes several years of successful newspaper reporting.

Incidentally, Miss Bankhead's most rollicking line was in a drawing-room scene when a hiccupy girl came lurching in with her clothes askew. "Probably hurled from a speeding car," she archly observed, after a quick glance.

Miss Bankhead's accent shows no trace of her deep Alabama origin. It was a disappointment to Major Dickson who attended her premiere. "A great actress," he sighed, "but who beat the drawl out of her?"

Likely, it has been commented upon widely, but I have not noticed it—that is, the similarity of Jimmy Walker's profile to Beatrice Lillie's. It's startling.

Outside of Maury Paul, Harry Bull, of Town and Country, is probably the best informed man in New York on who is who and why, in upper-case society. He is an authority on those-who-belong as far back as Edwardian times, as well as Gotham's present Mayfair. At his luncheons in his 72d street penthouse—likely the most select private luncheons in town—the French language predominates.

Most of my adult years, I have stifled a secret hanker to muss people's slick hair. Years ago, I used to turn on a heel, passing Frances White, and whip down the impulse to sneak up, despoil her patent-leather coiffure and run like everything. Once, in a theater, I permitted, as though by accident, my overcoat to ruffle the sleek brush of Louis Calhern. It was deliberate. Today, I heard of a kindred soul in Bertram Weal, director of a fashionable hotel. He has an assistant hotelier upon whom he sneaks, when the lobby of that shrine of proprieties is deserted and no one is looking, to give a Dutch rub and a necktie a fierce yank.

They were talking of that investment house whose victims included the hopelessly deaf, two in wheel chairs and a blind widow. Up spoke Henry Sell: "Wait until you hear the low down on still another. It specialized only in basket cases."

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I used to worry a lot about people respecting me. I thought that all my success and happiness depended on their respect.

So I was always watching people out of the corner of my eye. Trying to see if I was making the right impression. Doing anything to make one. Trimming, hedging, squirming, yessing—doing the most shameful, silly and cowardly things to win approval.

For approval. That was all that counted—or so I thought. But suppose I had to lie to get it? Mask my true feelings? Flatter fools and coddle crooks? Well, that wasn't exactly pleasant; but that was life. You had to do things like that if you wanted to live successfully with the rest of humanity.

But no matter how hard I tried, no matter how many disagreeable or downright dishonest things I did to achieve popularity, I was still gnawed by the hideous doubt. Did or didn't people respect me?

What agonies I suffered when I thought they didn't! A cool glance, a dubious smile, was enough to spoil my whole day. I was positive, then, that they were sneering — snickering up their sleeves at me! I felt sick with humiliation; seared with embarrassment.

I'd made a fool of myself; that's what I had done. What was the use of trying any more, if people despised me?

For what?

For nothing!

Presently I began to realize that. All this begging for other people's respect wasn't getting me anywhere; wasn't doing anything for my life.

ACTUALLY I WASN'T LIVING MY LIFE AT ALL. I WAS LIVING OTHER PEOPLE'S NOTIONS; BEING WHAT I THOUGHT PEOPLE WANTED ME TO BE; STOOPING TO ANY KIND OF SAPPINESS OR SNEAKINESS THAT SUITED THEM.

I was never myself; never trying to express myself.

That was why life was peculiarly empty and unsatisfactory. I was cheating myself—committing a sort of spirit suicide—and it came to me that what counted was not the respect of others, BUT MY RESPECT FOR MYSELF.

The respect of others—that was a fine thing, if the people themselves were fine. I would always desire it. But it wasn't the essential thing. The essential thing was, what did I think of myself?

Did I, or didn't I, respect myself?

Had I, or hadn't I, squared accounts with myself?

COULD, OR COULDN'T I LIVE PROUDLY WITH MYSELF?

For that was where I had to live, after all. And I, myself, was the person whose good opinion I absolutely must have if I was to make anything of my life.

There was another peculiar aspect to this ploblem. No matter how popular I managed to become by flattery and fibs, I was never able to achieve any really lasting power over other people. Beyond a certain point, people did not trust me. A strangeness persisted. It seemed almost as if my secret dishonesty contaminated our contact—poisoned our spiritual relationship—as a secret infection poisons physical relationship.

THE WORLD WOULDN'T TRUST A MAN WHO DIDN'T TRUST HIMSELF.

THE WORLD WOULDN'T HONOR A MAN WHO DIDN'T HONOR HIMSELF.

So now I work for my own approval, first of all. I no longer worry much over whether people like me or not—though that needn't deter you from writing some swell remarks to my editor about me. But I do worry, mightily, whether I respect myself—whether I'm keeping my bond with myself.

The German Scene: Miss Perkins Explains

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Germany is now in the hands of a dictatorship of the most rigid sort. The republic is dead. Democracy is outlawed. Liberty is taboo. Hitler is the master of the destiny of a great nation for four years, according to the action taken. Just who, if anyone, is behind Hitler, time will soon develop.

One of the decisions made by, or forced on, Germany this week is that the foreign policies of the nation shall be determined by the dictatorship without consultation with the people. That means that wars may be decreed regardless of public sentiment. That kind of concentration of power has made half the wars of the world.

As we have said before, the democratic republic of Germany has been killed by other nations. If you would understand why such masses of furious men alligned themselves under the banner of the dictator you will find the explanation in this paragraph from Hitler's speech of the Reichstag:

"Germany has now been waiting for years for the fulfillment of the promise that the rest of the world was to follow us in disarmament. Germany wants nothing but equal liberty."

It is possible to understand the high tide of intense nationalism in Germany because of the kind of "peace" that was imposed upon her.

Outrages Against The Jews

But if the dictatorship of intense nationalism is to mean a policy of barbarous persecution of the Jews, all the sympathy and understanding will be lost. That there have been outrages against the Jews cannot be denied. There has been no combination of all the reputable newsgathering agencies of the world to slander the present regime.

A mere denial from Berlin, coupled with a threat to the correspondents of foreign newspapers, is not impressive.

Before the dictatorship was established those now armed with autocratic power had declared war upon the Jews. If this war is to go on it will be impossible to keep it a secret from mankind beyond the German borders; and with such a war Germany, which had captured the sympathy and good will of liberals throughout the world will forfeit that good will and sympathy.

If the persecution of the Jews continues the government of no liberal country which still believes in liberty can prevent its people in their individual capacity from making vehement protests.

We soon shall know whether this persecution is part of the fixed policy of the dictatorship put in motion with official sanction, or whether it has been the work of irresponsible individuals in brown shirts acting on their own volition. If the latter, it will be expected that the government speedily will end the outrages. A very little time will tell.

Miss Perkins Attacks Plan

Anyone who has followed the career, the public service of Miss Perkins, Secretary of Labor, cannot be surprised to find that she, better than any other, has met the criticism of the President's plan for a peace-time army of 250,000 men to be recruited from among the jobless and paid $30 a month with food, shelter and medical attention. The idea that the plan means a proclamation by the government that a dollar a day with board and keep is enough for a workingman is absurd and utterly unfair. But it is Miss Perkins who has met that claim most convincingly when she told the House Committee:

"That doesn't make sense. If all common labor were reduced to $1 a day, we would have a complete national collapse. Such labor provides the bulk of the purchasing power of the country and I believe industrialists realize it. They know they cannot sell their output to a dried-up consumption market, and that is what they would have under a dollar a day wage."

Emergency Plan Proposed, Substitute for Charity

Mr. Green, of the American Federation of Labor, almost always reasonable and clear headed, must understand that the emergency plan proposed is a substitute for downright charity. There are vast numbers of self-respecting, industrious workers denied their right to work and forced to accept help who receive less than a dollar a day. There is nothing in this to their discredit. They have a right to live. But there are few among them who would not prefer to work for what they get. That is one of the thoughts behind this temporary plan. Thus Miss Perkins puts it plainly:

"These are not jobs and wages in the ordinary sense The proposal submitted is considered primarily as relief work, whereby the man gets a chance to keep himself healthfully occupied in return for the relief funds, and whereby the Government gets something valuable in return."

No person of intelligence and humanity would pretend to say that a dollar a day is living wages for American workingmen in industry; least of all an administration which is known to be deeply sympathetic toward the human problems of the workers.

Old-fashioned gentlemen with a Victorian concept of woman and her place in organized society must be disheartened to note how easily Miss Perkins handles herself before a congressional committee; how easily she met the questioning of the critics. But old-fashioned gentlemen must get used to a lot of things that belong to this new day.

Talk of Another War Is Ridiculous

Phil Lafollette, former governor of Wisconsin, returning from a tour of observation in the troubled regions of Europe, tells us that the feeling there is that another war is inevitable. That means that Europe is becoming reconciled to suicide.

Ramsay MacDonald, wishing to quiet the troubled waters, says that something must be done about certain treaties that are a constant menace of war. He tells us that "every treaty is holy but none are eternal." Some such announcement should have been made and acted upon before Germany got the impression that treaties binding her to slavery were not eternal. Now Mr. MacDonald says that there must be equality for the Reich, but it must be granted gradually. The Reich after 14 years will want a definition of the word "gradually."

As MacDonald announces the new point of view, Winston Churchill in the Commons, in the presence of the world thanks God for the French army.

Meanwhile not much progress has been made in the matter of the limitation and reduction of armament, and it is generally agreed in Europe that Europe cannot pay the debts she contracted in the waging of the last war.

In the event of a new war where is the money to be found?

If the money is on hand and stored away, then the debts can be paid unless there is to be another war.

To the man in the street this loose talk of another war seems the ravings of madmen—and we are almost persuaded that it is nothing else.

Once Overs

By J. J. Mundy

A husband may not object to his wife assuming the role of boss in their home, but even the meekest man is displeased when his wife becomes dictatorial outside the home and in the presence of others.

Now every man wants to be thought the head of his household.

He may not emphasize this position to others or even desire to do so, but he certainly wants it to be generally understood that he is the "king fish."

But there is little he can say or do in public to offset a wrong impression that his wife may create.

However, it is more than likely that when they are alone after humiliations by a bossy wife, friend husband may explode orally and there may be some fireworks.

And can the man be blamed?

Whatever a wife may be able to do at home, she should be tactful enough to treat her husband in public in a way to command respect for him, not lessen it.

She should do everything in her power to build him up and encourage him.
